VANCOUVER CHINESE SLAIN

'I've Just Murdered a Man' Says Suspect in Knifing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A young man was taken, handcuffed, to police headquarters today, two hours after a Chinese confectionery store operator had been found dead of knife wounds in the rear of his store.

A police official said the man would be charged with murder later today.

First police to reach the scene said a young man was standing in the store with a knife in his hand when they arrived. They found the store operator, identified as Lee Yung lying dead in a back room. His throat was cut.

B.C. INDIANS GIVE POPE WOOD CRUCIFIX

A "totem" crucifix carved by British Columbia Indians has been presented to Pope Pius XII on behalf of Roman Catholic Indians of Canada, it was learned here today.

The presentation was made Friday by the superior general of the Oblate Fathers in Vatican City on the occasion of the Pope's 40th episcopal anniversary.

The crucifix, which stands about two feet high, was carved by Jimmy John, a Nootka Indian from Cedar, B.C., five miles south of Nanaimo, and finished by Percy Paul of the Squamish Indians near Vancouver.

First word of the slaying came when a hysterical woman telephoned police. She later told them she approached the store and was met by a young man who said "I've just murdered a man."

Police said the suspect, said to be about 25 years old and to have been wearing a blood-stained plaid jacket, apparently attempted first to leave the store by the rear door. After being stopped for some reason, he then started to leave by the front door when he met the woman. She telephoned police from a beauty shop next door.

'UNHOPPY' DAY FOR CANADA

French Frog Flips Into Fast Favor

ANGELES CAMP, Calif. (AP) — Qualifying jumps in the 31st annual Calaveras Jumping Frog Jubilee began today under a pall of rain clouds—suitable to the frogs, especially the foreigners. They always get here kind of dehydrated.

Some 20 frogs from 15 foreign countries are participating. The event is billed as an International Frog Olympics. It commemorates Mark Twain's famous story of the "Jumping Frog of Calaveras County."

CANADIAN THREAT — Oldtimers are worried about a huge Canadian import, Miss Assignment, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp's entry. The Canadian hopper makes all other entries look like pygmies.

A foreign entry with hopes of surpassing the existing world record of 16 feet 10 inches is Won Long Hop, the Free China champion from Formosa, sponsored by China Air Transport—Gen. Claire Chennault's air line.

A French frog, Denise, from the Seine near Paris, was due to arrive by helicopter today. Denise reached San Francisco Friday night via Trans World Air Lines. A TWA spokesman described her as "rather a petite frog, very soignée."

Australia Drought

MELBOURNE, (Reuters) — A serious drought threatens vast areas of eastern Australia, where sheep and cattle producers are facing feeding hardships.

In New South Wales, where no useful rain has fallen for four months, an estimated 80 per cent of the state is experiencing the worst conditions in 10 years.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Eternal God, in all the relationships of this day help us to live by the values of Christ. May our ideas of duty and honor and justice be those which Thou hast revealed in his life. So may we be his faithful witnesses and gain a measure of the goodness that we find in Him; in Christ's name. Amen.

Benny Cheats Death

Courage, Valor, Luck Play Part in Rescue

(UP and AP Dispatches) MANORVILLE, N.Y. — The death-defying valor of volunteer rescuers, a steady flow of oxygen, the indomitable courage of the victim—and luck—were credited today with the rescue of seven-year-old Benny Hooper from the bottom of a well shaft where he was entombed for nearly 24 hours.

Suffering only from exposure and shock, the slender, blue-eyed boy was reported resting comfortably and in good condition at Bay View hospital in nearby Mastic Beach. He took his first solid food—cereal.

Doctors, who expressed amazement at the child's survival in the bottom of the 10-inch pit, said he was regaining his color and was well on the road to recovery, although suffering from a shoulder injury.

"He's doing fine," said the boy's father, Benjamin Hooper. Hooper and his wife, Borg-hild, kept a vigil at their son's bedside.

"Mommy" was his first word and then he called for "Daddy."

"The boy's condition is good," said Dr. J. H. Kris, the attending physician. "He is able to talk and asked for food. Everything is on the up and up."

Benny took some beef broth, hot tea with sugar and ginger ale. He was given penicillin as a guard against the possibility of respiratory infection. His temperature was nearly normal.

Kris said doctors would need to keep a close watch for 24 hours because of the danger of pneumonia in such cases of exposure.

Benny's rescue was a triumph of perseverance for 200 grimy workmen who battled hour after desperate hour to save the boy. They fought with oxygen lines, power shovels, piping, wooden shoring—and sweat.

They fought with the hopes and prayers of millions.

They never gave up hope even when it appeared that only a miracle would save the boy.

And a "miracle" is just what many of the weary men called it.

COAL MINER TRAPPED

LYKENS, Pa. (AP) — A 34-year-old coal miner, father of three children, is trapped 250 feet underground by a cave-in.

David Snyder hasn't been heard from since Friday when a mines inspector made contact with him via tapping with a hammer. The rescue operation continued although the volunteer workers had no indication Snyder still was alive.

Snyder was cut off from the mouth of an independent mine on nearby Short Mountain Friday.

TOTEMS DRAW CAMERA EXPERTS

Victoria is a shooting ground today for 500 camera enthusiasts attending annual convention of the Photographic Society of America. Thunderbird Park attracted such well-known photographers as James McVie, Victoria (left); Clarence Arai, Seattle lawyer turned cameraman; Rex Frost, radio commentator and creative photographer, Toronto. Convention lasts till Sunday. (See story, page 29.)

WEATHER (AND FESTIVITIES) TO BE VARIED FOR HOLIDAY

Variety being the spice of life, Victoria can look forward to a spicy time this holiday weekend—weatherwise and otherwise.

Variable is the word for weather, says William Mackie, the sage of Gonzales Heights.

And variety is the word for the entertainment program lined up for holidaying citizens. (See Page 15).

The official forecast warns us to expect showers, but heavy rain is not expected. The sun will make its presence felt from time to time, and it's safe to attend outdoor events—preferably with a broom or light raincoat handy.

Prince Charles Pens Love Note To Eight-Year-Old Blue-Eyed Girl

LONDON (UP) — It was learned on high authority today that eight-year-old Prince

Charles wrote a note to a blue-eyed girl his own age last week — and signed it "with love."

Charles had never met the pretty little girl, who lives in the less-than-elite London neighborhood of Islington. But he was moved to pencil her a message on Buckingham Palace stationery while lying in bed recuperating from his tonsillectomy.

"To Maureen with love from Charles," the note began. To quote any further than that, of course, would be unfair.

It was Charles' tonsils which brought him together with his new pen pal, Maureen Vernon.

Her father, Jack Vernon, is a porter at Great Ormond Street Children's Hospital. He was sent around to Buckingham Palace to retrieve the operating room equipment installed there temporarily for Charles' first surgery.

The young prince, pining in his sick-bed, asked if he could talk to one of the men moving equipment. Vernon was brought in.

"Have you ever seen any tonsils taken out before?" asked Charles. "Thousands of times," said Vernon. "One of my children had them taken out last year."

"How many children have you?" asked Charles.

"Two. A boy of 14 and a girl just a month older than you. The boy is called Jimmy and the girl is Maureen."

Prince Charles paused a moment, and then he asked without a sign of bashfulness, "May I write a note to Maureen?"

"She would love it," her father replied. The note was written at once and Charles gravely gave it to Vernon for delivery.

Maureen, whose mother is Irish-born, was tickled pink. She loves Davy Crockett, phonograph records, and ice cream, but a personal note from Buckingham Palace was really something.

"I don't know quite what to write in reply," said Maureen today. "But I'll think of something."

'Change Proposed' For Reply to Russ Says Spokesman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressure by Russia for a Western reply to its latest disarmament plan has set off a top-level review of United States disarmament policy.

The state department said Friday new decisions are in the making. They are expected by the end of next week.

Harold E. Stassen, U.S. representative in United Nations disarmament talks at London, who returned to Washington Friday, reported to State Secretary Dulles and other officials.

A state department press officer said Stassen made "a full report" on the negotiations and had answered a number of questions which were not publicly reported.

"The meeting today," he said, "was the beginning of discussions which will lead to further formulation of the United States position in the light of various pending proposals, including the Soviet proposals of April 30."

NEED REPLY

It was understood that Soviet representative Valerian Zorin told the five-power meeting in London a few days ago that Russia did not see how any further negotiating could be effectively carried on until Western powers replied to the Soviet plan.

The London talks were recessed Thursday until May 27. The Russian proposal, which covered all aspects of disarmament from ending hydrogen bomb tests to cutting military manpower and setting up a limited system of international aerial inspection, has interested American officials chiefly on two points.

In the first place, it was interpreted here as meaning that Russia accepts the principle of aerial inspection as applied to Soviet territory.

In the second place, it declared Russian readiness to approach a disarmament agreement by relatively easy stages instead of insisting on initial development of a complete program, beginning with abandonment of atomic weapons as instruments of war.

Coldwell Urges UN Action on H-Bomb

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF leader M. J. Coldwell said Friday night radioactivity in the atmosphere from atomic and hydrogen bomb explosions is nearing the danger point.

Mr. Coldwell said scientists agree that when a certain level of radioactivity is reached human health both now and in the future will be seriously endangered.

"And we are nearing that level," he said.

The great powers of the world had reached a diplomatic impasse on methods to halt bomb tests. Proposal after proposal had been made but nothing had happened.

"The Soviet Union has hypocritically continued with its tests in blatant disregard of the facts that scientists are beginning to discover about the dangers of these tests. So has the United States. Now the United Kingdom, too, is joining in the hydrogen bomb race."

"It is now time for the smaller nations of the world to take a hand," he said. "This question is not just a matter for the great powers to decide. The tests that the Soviet Union and the United States are conducting are contaminating our atmosphere as well as that over the rest of the world."

"Canada could use her position in the Commonwealth and the United Nations to take an imaginative lead in this matter and bring this great issue before a special session of the UN . . . I urge the prime minister even in the midst of this election campaign not to delay."

The statements were included in a recorded speech broadcast over the CBC Trans-Canada radio network originating in Toronto.

ON THE HUSTINGS

Rally Tuesday For Diefenbaker

Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker will highlight another busy week of election campaigning here next week.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who spoke in Victoria last March soon after his election as national leader, will speak at a public rally Tuesday night in Memorial Arena.

The arena has a seating capacity of more than 6,000, and local Conservative officials predict the meeting will be the largest political rally ever held on Vancouver Island.

Mr. Diefenbaker drew a capacity crowd of 1,500 in Central Junior High School auditorium the last time he spoke here.

TO SEE VETS

The Conservative leader will arrive at Pat Bay airport at 3 p.m. Tuesday and plans a visit to Veterans' Hospital before his evening address.

The following day, Mr. Diefenbaker will motor up-Island, with public meetings scheduled at Duncan, Nanaimo and Courtenay. He flies to Vancouver from Comox Thursday morning.

The other main event locally next week is the Social Credit rally at the Royal Theatre Friday night which will feature Premier Bennett as speaker.

It is the party's first big pitch in the Victoria area and local candidates Noel Bell (Esquimalt-Saanich) and Waldo Skillings (Victoria) will be on the platform.

Federal Liberal cabinet ministers will continue their active campaigning in B.C. next week, but only one will be in Victoria.

He is Health Minister Paul Martin, who is scheduled to make a brief address at a public reception in the lower ballroom of the Crystal Garden at 12:25 p.m. Thursday.

UP-ISLAND

Mr. Martin will spend most of his time up-Island and plans speeches at Parksville Thursday afternoon and Nanaimo in the evening.

Finance Minister Walter Harris will be in the Vancouver and Lower Fraser Valley regions for one day on Tuesday.

Defence Minister Ralph Campney and Fisheries Minister James Sinclair will both be campaigning throughout the province next week.

Mr. Campney will address a public meeting in Duncan on Friday.

In addition to the parties' "big guns," the eight local candidates have a full schedule of meetings throughout the week.

(Details will appear in The Times each day.)

Leon Ladner, co-chairman of the Progressive Conservative federal election campaign in B.C., Friday night challenged Fisheries Minister James Sinclair to debate Columbia River power development.

"We are not going to force control and ownership on the province that properly owns it," Mr. Ladner told a meeting at Nelson. "It is up to the provincial government to decide what it is going to do."

Mrs. Evelyn Fingarson, Social Credit candidate for Coast-Capilano, said Friday night she was told reliably that Union Steamships Ltd. is selling out "to a foreign country."

SUBSIDY BOOSTED

Mrs. Fingarson, speaking at a meeting with Premier Bennett at Powell River, did not elaborate except to say that Senator S. S. McKen and F. B. Brown and associates of Vancouver held 147,000 of the company's 158,000 shares.

She said the company's $300,000-a-year federal subsidy was boosted by $300,000 in the past year.

Fisheries Minister Sinclair said in Kitimat Friday night Canada is the envy of the world.

The Canadian standard of living is the second highest in the world and it is to Canada, not the United States, that immigrants are trusting their most precious possessions, their own lives and the lives of their children," he said. "Canada has risen during the last eight years from 14th to fourth trading nation in the world," Mr. Sinclair said.

"We have done this by expansion of foreign trade and by expansion at home. Every province is surging ahead from coast to coast."

SAM WOODSON
... answered call

RESCUER SAYS:

God Said Go And Help Get That Boy Out

Editor's note: Sam Woodson, a 25-year-old Negro construction worker, was the first person to reach Benny Hooper, Jr., in his sandy tomb. Here is Woodson's story.

BY SAM WOODSON

As Told to United Press
MANORVILLE, N.Y. (UP)—I heard about that boy at work and all of a sudden I got the sensation that God was saying to me, "Sam, you must go and help get that boy out."

I went home and told my wife, "I'm going to see if I can help that boy. My wife called her sister and they went to the church to pray for him."

I went to the boy's house. People tried to keep me back but I pushed through. I was in and out of that hole all day.

I kept thinking, "God told me to come here so the boy must be alive and I'll get him out." I got tired but I thought of my little girl and it helped keep me going.

I was digging carefully when I saw the jacket covering the top of Benny's head. I started to brush the sand away from his coat when I heard him whimper.

Just then we started to cave. I grabbed him a little bit and he looked at me and started to groan.

I didn't have a chance to talk to him. I talked to God. I had to yank Benny pretty hard because the sand really started coming. And when I yanked, John (Arambo, the worker behind Sam) yanked me to keep me from letting go. But we got him out.

When we found him, I turned to John and told him, "The boy is alive, thank God."

I looked at that boy and looked into his big blue eyes and I tell you, "that was the happiest moment of my life."

VATICAN CITY (UP)—Pope Pius XII invested Polish primate Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński with his symbolic red cardinal's hat today and urged him to be "intrepid even unto death and the shedding of blood."

Rescuers feared the worst, but they refused to give up.

CHRONOLOGY of the RESCUE

MANORVILLE, N.Y. (UP)—The timetable of suspense in the ordeal of Benny Hooper:

THURSDAY

7:30 p.m.—The boy falls in the well.

7:52—A frantic Benjamin Hooper Sr. drops Benny a rope, but child cannot hold onto it.

7:55—Dad calls police. West-hampton air force base, and fire department, begs for oxygen equipment.

8:20—Oxygen arrives. Manorville fire department, other rescuers arrive.

8:30—Manorville firemen start digging hole next to well. Benny is unable to hold on to hook dropped down.

9:15—Power bucket shovel goes in operation to widen crater next to well. At 4-foot depth, sand is struck and crater starts filling in. Workers start digging manually.

11:00—Eight-foot depth is reached. Thirteen feet to go to match well's depth.

FRIDAY

1 a.m.—Seven feet to go. 3:00—Reach 21-foot depth. Diggers start cutting across 12 feet to the well.

3:10—Small earth slide in excavation stops work. After shoring operation, work resumed.

4:15—Hooper calls down well to Benny: "Move your hand." No answer.

6:00—Worker sees movement at shaft bottom.

6:10—Crossy tunnel shoring collapses. Digging must start over.

7:30—Dr. J. H. Kris says longer the boys stays down in well, slimmer are chances for survival.

11:30—Kris and firemen veto proposal to use vacuum to pull sand out of well on grounds it would displace more sand and draw out oxygen.

Noon—Slowly the sand sifts down and buries outstretched hand of Benny Hooper. Hope for rescue lessens.

2:10 p.m.—"This is a lost cause," says Suffolk County chief deputy sheriff Philip Coros. He announces a derick and bucket will be used to try to remove sand quickly and reach the boy.

3:42—Section of 48-inch piping fitted into rescue shaft. Eight minutes later, an eight-inch pipe is lowered into well so oxygen hoses may be pushed through to bottom.

5:15—Rescue shaft operation continues as new piping is sent down.

7:00—Benjamin Hooper, Sr., comes out of house. Air of excitement in the Hooper backyard becomes more intense.

7:20—Final section of pipe fitted in place.

7:32—Rescuers make contact with well shaft. The call comes: "He's alive!"

7:41—"He's all clear," someone shouts up from the rescue shaft. "He looks fine."

7:46—Benny Hooper is brought up from what almost was his grave. The ordeal is over.

Tories, Socreds Fought Pensions Claims CCFer

Both Progressive Conservatives and Social Credit parties are asking the public to forget they once opposed old age pensions, Victor Williams, Victoria CCF candidate, told a meeting of 20 persons Friday at Woodsworth Hall.

The Conservatives 30 years ago were opposed to any form of pension, he said.

"The Conservatives were willing to crucify any person over 70 who could not work."

Mr. Williams said PC Leader John Diefenbaker's "intent is honest," but I doubt "his party backing."

Mr. Williams said Socred national leader Solon Low in 1945 asked if he favored old age pensions and other forms of insurance that now exist, said he was opposed to them.

He termed the Liberal attitude towards old age pensions "worth $6."

He condemned the present federal government for spending huge sums on national defence, yet money had to be begged for cancer patients.

Mr. Williams said many people who take over fund appeals are "racketeers."

All other political parties "evade the issues. The meat of the matter is—humanity."

The Liberal government in Ottawa has the worst record in Canada for "taking money away from the people and turning it over to private exploiters and buccanniers," Dr. J. H. Thomas, CCF candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said Friday night.

"We of the CCF believe the wealth that is created by the people should be shared by the people," he told a CCF meeting in the Marigold Community Hall.

"We will not rest content until what we know as capitalism has been eradicated and replaced by commonwealth Socialism."

Dr. Thomas stoutly rejected a rival party claim that the CCF's Winnipeg Declaration of 1956 was an abandonment of the Regina Manifesto in 1933.

"That is quite untrue — we have never changed our basic concept. All those who do not agree with this concept should support those parties which support the private monopoly enterprise system."

He said the CCF believed in a future society in which the "competitive law of the jungle" would be superseded by "the brotherhood of man, the recognition that we are all our brothers' keepers."

"We are a long way from the realization of that objective," Dr. Thomas said, "although we have made considerable progress in the realm of political liberties."

The CCF, he said, had been responsible for most of the social reforms brought about in spite of capitalist domination.

country's evils, but hit out at other federal policies.

The immigration department was "bumbling along" and should have foreseen the present manpower shortage years ago.

Now the department is bringing in increasing numbers of immigrants, and there are no houses to shelter them because of tight money.

A Social Credit government would make houses easier to own by reducing the down payment, lowering interest rates—to not more than 3 per cent—and allowing a longer period to pay.

Mortgage interest payments should also be made deductible on individual's income tax, as they are for corporations.

The Liberal government lacks co-ordination, has grown old and tired and should be thrown out of office, Mr. Skillings said.

In a roundabout way, he suggested that Dr. F. T. Fairley, Liberal MP for Victoria in the last Commons and running for re-election, had not adequately represented the riding.

Mr. Skillings quoted from an editorial in a national magazine entitled "Let's weed out the speechless fools."

"I won't mention any names," he said, "but if the shoe pinches, it pinches."

Canada is on the threshold of its greatest development but the government is looking to the past instead of the future.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier would disown his immediate successors," Mr. Skillings said.

country's evils, but hit out at other federal policies.

Bennett Reveals B.C. Made Earlier Offer on Columbia

POWELL RIVER—Premier W. A. C. Bennett said at a Social Credit campaign meeting here Friday night he had made a "secret" offer to Ottawa for federal-provincial development of Columbia River hydro.

The premier said that last July he offered to let the federal government take over negotiations for downstream benefits, with certain conditions attached.

"I told Mr. Lesage (Federal Resources Minister Jean Lesage) that I would leave the matter of downstream benefits up to the federal cabinet, if they thought they could get a better deal than B.C.," Mr. Bennett said.

20 PER CENT
"But I told him that B.C. wanted 20 per cent of the downstream power returned to the grid system at Vancouver, as long as they built and paid for all the dams on the Columbia."

"They would have to give us ownership of the dam and we would retain the right to build or control construction of power-generating plants on the river."

The offer was refused, said the premier. "And yet the federal government was criticizing me for selling out to U.S. power interests."

He said the federal government would be able to finance construction of the dams out of its share of the downstream benefits which, he said, Ottawa claimed should be 50 per cent of extra power made possible by the storage dams in B.C.

Premier Bennett defended the government's agreement with Swedish industrialist Axel Wenner-Gren.

At first the proposal to develop a 40,000-square mile area in the Rocky Mountain Trench "sounded a little far-fetched," the premier admitted.

"So I asked them to put down a $500,000 bond, which they did."

"There are no secrets, no concessions, no give-aways in our dealings with them," Mr. Bennett said.

"We have placed a reserve (on the area) but the reserve is in the name of the people of British Columbia, not Wenner-Gren."

The premier accused the Liberal government of draining money from B.C., and repeated his criticisms of the tight-money policy and Fisheries Minister James Sinclair.

"It is ridiculous to have a tight money policy and an immigration policy at the same time," he said.

A Social Credit federal government would give workers more take-home pay by increasing the basic income tax exemption by 50 per cent.

Mr. Sinclair's statement that Ottawa spends more money than it collects in B.C. "is not true."

Police said they were convinced no one else was trapped.

Chief Fire Marshal Martin Scott said registered letters were sent to tenants Friday advising them the building was in a dangerous condition and suggesting that they move.

Five persons lived in the building at Pitt Street, an area just east of Manhattan's Chinatown.

The old-age pension, in the first place, was a tribute to the forerunners of the CCF and it was only because of continuous pounding by the CCF that the pension was raised even to its present level."

Dr. Thomas denounced the Liberal government for increasing the federal old-age pension by only $6. He said the present $46 pension was the equivalent of about $38 in 1949.

"The Liberal government says it cannot afford more, but it can afford to give away millions to its friends in the oil companies."

He declared the Social Credit party had "deceived the people" by offering a pension of $100 a month.

"All it really offers is a federal pension of $60—the other $40 is very questionable since it would depend on the nature of provincial governments, and the means test involved."

The CCF proposed an outright pension of $75 paid by the federal government without a means test and payable anywhere in the world where the pensioner lived—not just in Canada as at present.

"The pension should be raised to a purchasing value at least equivalent to 1949. So should the family allowance."

INTOLERABLE
Dr. Thomas said the financing of school costs by the municipalities was becoming "an intolerable burden."

"This system may have been all right in New England and Ontario in pioneer times. Today it is obsolete. It means that every time a new school building goes up, the local home-owner has to bear the burden."

"We believe the federal government should make direct education grants to the provinces."

Urging an overall national health scheme, Dr. Thomas said:

"Every man, woman and child is entitled to full medical care—hospital treatment, care of eyes, teeth, ears... everything."

TO GET VOTES
He declared the Social Credit party had "deceived the people" by offering a pension of $100 a month.

"All it really offers is a federal pension of $60—the other $40 is very questionable since it would depend on the nature of provincial governments, and the means test involved."

The CCF proposed an outright pension of $75 paid by the federal government without a means test and payable anywhere in the world where the pensioner lived—not just in Canada as at present.

"The pension should be raised to a purchasing value at least equivalent to 1949. So should the family allowance."

INTOLERABLE
Dr. Thomas said the financing of school costs by the municipalities was becoming "an intolerable burden."

"This system may have been all right in New England and Ontario in pioneer times. Today it is obsolete. It means that every time a new school building goes up, the local home-owner has to bear the burden."

"We believe the federal government should make direct education grants to the provinces."

Urging an overall national health scheme, Dr. Thomas said:

"Every man, woman and child is entitled to full medical care—hospital treatment, care of eyes, teeth, ears... everything."

"This has been done in other countries; it can be done here."

'No Apology' for Opposing Sunday Sport, Says Bennett

POWELL RIVER (CP)—Premier Bennett said Friday night he would "make no apology" for his opposition to commercial Sunday sport.

"If we lose Sunday in this country the people who are going to be hurt are the working people," the premier told a Social Credit campaign meeting.

"There is a difference between sport and commercial entertainment," he said. "Why, if we permit this commercial entertainment of professional baseball, then you are going to have people saying 'there is nothing wrong with paying to see pictures of such games and other entertainment.'"

"Then there will be opening up of stores."

At the same time Mr. Bennett denied that his government had refused to legalize commercial Sunday sport.

"It was the decision of the legislature," he said. "It was a wide-open vote and no strings were attached to anybody."

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

Question: "In B.C. now a youth of 19 may vote in provincial elections. At 18 he or she can enlist in the armed services. Do you think the law is correct in saying he or she cannot have a glass of beer or liquor in a public place until the age of 21?"

J. E. Munro, importer, 3126 Earl Grey: "It all depends on the youngster. Some people shouldn't drink until they're 41. I don't think teenagers should drink so I certainly wouldn't lower the age limit. There are plenty of other things for them to do."

Munro

Lorne Lewis, vending machine operator, 1597 Despard: "Yes, the law is okay. Kids get into enough trouble when they start drinking at 21. What's the use of making the age limit 19? Making liquor available doesn't solve the drinking problem. That's like saying you put up more gas stations to sell less gas."

Mrs. R. Boucher, 1107 Bewdley: "You can't compare joining up with drinking in a public place. In Canada you don't have to join up. You're not drafted to fight for your country, as they're doing in the States now. But I agree the age limit of 21 is too high. I'd make it 20. By that age, they know how to conduct themselves."

Boucher

Mrs. G. Robertson, 1354 Hillside: "Yes, I think the law is perfectly correct. Up to the age of 21, young people are apt to get carried away by drinking. I don't believe drinking in parked cars would stop if the age limit dropped. That kind of thing happens anyway."

Mrs. F. L. Hewlett, 1938 Birch: "I'd leave the limit at 21 years. Even one year makes an enormous difference in a child's life. Something he craves one year, he wouldn't touch the next. At 20, they're still children. Their systems aren't ready for liquor."

Hewlett

Ron Martin, bus operator, 2370 Richmond: "I suppose that in some cases it would be quite alright for kids to drink at 18, but others, can't. That's why I'd leave the limit at 21 years."

PARIS (Reuters) — Pre-Guy Mollet today ushered in a weekend of urgent political manoeuvring by calling for a showdown vote on his austerity financial program.

The Socialist premier tied the life of his government, the longest in power in France since the war, to the National Assembly's verdict on proposals to raise taxes and trim the budget. The confidence vote will be taken Tuesday.

The assembly sat until early today after heated debate and three adjournments for private talks on compromise measures between party groups. In these talks the Socialists agreed to amend a major part of the tax plan.

Mollet demanded a confidence vote on the budget which calls for 150,000,000,000 francs ($420,000,000) in new taxes and 250,000,000,000 francs ($700,000,000) in economies.

A DEFIANT SPEECH He made a defiant speech to the assembly, demanding acceptance of his program to save the franc from devaluation and to finance the campaign against Algerian nationalists which is costing down 400,000 French troops in Algeria.

Fighting the toughest battle in his 15 months of administration, Mollet made two fruitless attempts in political haggling off the floor of the assembly to replace tax proposals thrown out earlier by the assembly's finance committee.

Some observers think the deputies will hesitate to overthrow the government at a time when France is alone in maintaining a boycott of the Suez Canal and is putting her case to the United Nations.

Oklahoma Flood Reaches Critical Phase Tonight

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Oklahoma looked for its third straight day of floods today amid forecasts of more rain. The danger area shifted to the eastern part of the state with expected record flooding at Tulsa and the small town of Keystone. Creeks and rivers in southern Oklahoma also poured out of their banks on the heels of rains ranging up to almost eight inches in a 12-hour period. Keystone is near the confluence of the Cimarron and Arkansas Rivers.

The Cimarron ran through Dover early Thursday and dumped water into the small towns of Coyle and Perkins Friday. Its crest was expected to join the already swollen Arkansas today.

The flood peak of 26 feet was expected to hit the south part of Tulsa around 10 p.m. tonight. Flood stage there is 19 feet.

IMMIGRATION POLICY ANTI-SOCRED WEAPON?

NORTH VANCOUVER (BUP) — A Social Credit MLA charged Friday night that the Liberal government's "dumping of immigrants" in B.C. is an outright attempt to sabotage Social Credit chances in the June 10 federal election.

The sudden rush of immigrants at a time when the Liberal tight money policy has increased unemployment in B.C. and reduced home construction has "made the provincial Social Credit government look bad to electors," said Fred Sharp, MLA for Vancouver East.

He was speaking here on behalf of Socred Coast-Capilano candidate Mrs. Evelyn Fingarson.

Federal government defence spending in B.C. is among the lowest of any province, Mr. Sharp said, yet the number of immigrants sent here is among the highest.

CLIMAX TO LONG FEUD

Douglas-Thatcher Debate on Monday

MOSSBANK, Sask. (CP)—Premier T. C. Douglas and Ross Thatcher mark the climax of a lengthy political feud here Monday night in a long-heralded public debate as part of the federal election campaign.

The oratorical contest between the leader of Saskatchewan's CCF government and the colorful federal candidate in Assiniboia who left the CCF ranks to join the Liberals, is the talk of the town in this quiet farming village.

Hundreds of farmers, city workers and holiday tourists plus a battery of politicians, newspaper, radio and TV reporters are expected to invade the village, 50 miles southwest of Moose Jaw.

Subject of the debate is Saskatchewan's Crown corporations but the whole question of socialism in Canada may be fought out on the platform before the evening is through.

Diefenbaker Urges 'Energy Board', Backs Saskatchewan Power Plan

REGINA (CP)—John Diefenbaker has coupled a promise of support for the long-awaited South Saskatchewan River power and irrigation project with a proposal for "a Canadian energy board" on power development.

Such a board is needed, the Progressive Conservative leader said here Friday night, to safeguard the country's power resources "from prejudicial and ill-timed action" and keep their control in Canadian hands.

On the multi-million-dollar South Saskatchewan project, a perennial topic of political debate in this province, he said there is "no excuse for further delay."

IN NATIONAL INTEREST The federal government to date has declined to give the project its financial backing on the grounds that the foreseeable returns would not justify federal financing.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Conservative party has long held that the dam is necessary for the province and is in the national interest. He said that since 1945 Liberals in Saskatchewan had campaigned on the slogan, "Vote Liberal and get the dam," but the province hadn't got it yet.

The Conservative leader made a one-day swing through his home province with an afternoon speech to 400 in the south-east Saskatchewan town of Kipling, population 700, and then spoke to some 800 persons at night in this city of 90,000. His speech here was broadcast over a hookup of four radio stations in the province. Mr. Diefenbaker, seeking reelection himself in Prince Albert, will return to Saskatchewan later. Today he was scheduled to fly to Calgary for television appearances there and speeches at Red Deer and Drumheller.

RECALLS FAMED CASE When he arrived in Regina a young Saskatoon man who had skipped his own wedding rehearsal for the occasion was waiting to see him.

The man was Jack Atherton whom Mr. Diefenbaker defended in one of his most noted legal cases.

Mr. Atherton, a youthful CNR telegrapher, in 1952, was charged with manslaughter in a rail collision at Canoe River, B.C., which took the lives of four railwaymen and 21 soldiers on their way to Korea.

Mr. Diefenbaker took the case, paid $1,500 to be able to practice in B.C. courts, and won an acquittal.

Mr. Atherton, now an employee of the province-owned bus lines, is being married today at Saskatoon but missed his wedding rehearsal to be in Regina Friday night.

The Big Promises

ON THIS PAGE TODAY THE reader will find an astounding set of figures. They summarize Mr. Diefenbaker's promises of increased governmental expenditures and tax reductions. And they add up to a budget deficit of at least $1.3 billions.

Even Mr. Diefenbaker will probably be surprised to see where his figures have led him. But he goes on adding to his promises almost every day. Also to the resulting deficit.

These figures are not taken, however, from Mr. Diefenbaker's campaign speeches, in which a politician is customarily allowed a certain leeway and imagination. They are taken from the official statements of the Conservative Party in Parliament, where a member is expected to stick to the facts. The facts quoted here will all be found in Hansard, the stenographic record of the House of Commons.

Mr. Grant Dexter, dean of the parliamentary press gallery, former editor of The Winnipeg Free Press and one of Canada's ablest journalists, took the trouble to re-read Hansard covering the last four sessions of Parliament. He noted the Conservative Party's various promises and worked out their cost in detail.

As Mr. Dexter's figures show, Mr. Diefenbaker has formally pledged himself, if elected, to reduce taxes by $600 millions and at the same time to increase expenditures by $852.3 millions.

The Government is budgeting for a revenue surplus of $152 millions this year. Thus the Conservative policy would not only exhaust this surplus but produce a deficit of $1.3 billions.

Mr. Diefenbaker does not stop there. After vastly increasing the ordinary running costs of government he would borrow not less than $1.2 billions for the various capital works that he has promised in profusion.

This is the same Mr. Diefenbaker who says that the Government's expenditures already are far too high and are the main cause of inflation.

Private Schools and Taxes

TO BRITISH COLUMBIANS, GIVING municipal tax exemptions to private schools for the first time this year, comes an interesting report from California.

That state, by legislation passed in 1952, granted tax exemption to nonprofit private schools below the collegiate grade. Now a group, calling itself Californians for Public Schools, is collecting signatures for a petition to repeal the exemption. Its members express the belief they will obtain the necessary number of names and will have the issue put to the public in November, 1958.

Sponsors of the petition and leaders in the movement argue that "the issue concerns the welfare of free public schools. Those who are dedicated to this cause believe that the free public schools alone are entitled to support from public funds and that no public funds, either directly or indirectly through tax exemption, should ever be given to help support any school system which competes with the public school system."

The committee does not deny the right of religious groups to maintain their own schools to indoctrinate children with the teachings of their own faiths. But it takes the stand that the entire cost of such parochial and religious schools should be borne by the religious bodies and not by the public.

The committee dismisses as of no consequence the argument that private schools save public money by absorbing the costs of educating children who would otherwise go to public schools. Private religious schools, it says, are not operated to save the taxpayers money but to propagate the faiths of particular religious sects who have no intention of abandoning this system of religious education.

These are interesting points in a widespread debate that extends beyond both California and British Columbia. The results of the campaign in the southern state will no doubt be followed with interest here.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

Where the Giants of Yesteryear Trod

VICTORIA was never a city to take her politics lightly and she has every right to maintain her critical role. For she has looked now for almost one hundred years over the political arena provincially and federally.

So many politicians of today appear in the role of pygmies when they are compared with some of the giants of a half-century ago. One of these eternally great was Sir Wilfrid Laurier whom I saw and heard in his fateful last campaign in 1911 when his party went down to defeat on the issue of reciprocity with the United States.

At that time Victoria—and most of British Columbia for that matter—was on the wrong side of the political fence. For years we had a genius for sending Liberals to Ottawa when a Conservative government was in power and electing Tories when the Griggs held sway.

At any rate British Columbia was pretty solidly Tory when Sir Wilfrid arrived, both at Ottawa and in the provincial legislature where Sir Richard McBride occupied the premier's office.

You might then have thought that the great French-Canadian would receive a chilly reception in the city named after our late, great queen and generally noted for its imperial bias, particularly when it came to "having any truck with the Yankees."

If there was even a chill in the air on the day Sir Wilfrid stepped off a CPR boat it was soon dispelled by the warmth of his reception; a welcome headed by Sir Richard was joined in by thousands of cheering citizens.

They made a distinguished pair; the federal Prime Minister tall, slight, and erect, silver-haired and dignified; our Premier more portly, genial, also silver-haired and upholding the dignity of his office and his province.

They disdained a carriage and walked the short distance to the premier's office amid an acclaim usually reserved for royalty—a tribute to two very fine men.

Sir Wilfrid frequently paused to acknowledge the tremendous ovation granted him and even I, a boy, could feel the impact of his personality. He combined the captivating suavity of a Disraeli with the vitality of a Thomas D'Arcy McGee and Sir Richard did nothing to dim the brilliance of Sir Wilfrid's reception.

As Our Readers See It

Curfew

When reading of the "Moans of the Cafe Owners" in May 15 issue, I remembered an act passed in some districts of Southern California, in February, 1957. It was printed in the Long Beach papers.

This was a curfew law, and in effect read that: "All children under the age of 18 years found loitering on the street after 10 o'clock, unaccompanied by a parent would be picked up for questioning." This law, I understand, was very effective.

If there is a fine for damaging property could it not be enforced? Children should not be brought up with the idea that they can hang around public places and damage property without paying for it.

Technical schools where boys can learn trades in the evenings are a great advantage as the boys are overflowing with energy which should be directed to useful activities. Much has been done and the majority of our young people are interested in worthy activities.

With daylight saving it is very difficult for parents to get children in early off the street.

AN INTERESTED READER.

(Editor's note: Victoria's curfew, still on the city's books, declares it unlawful for a child under 16 to be on the street unaccompanied by an adult after 9:30 p.m.)

Mr. Diefenbaker's Big Plans---And the Billion Dollar Deficit

IF A Conservative government were elected in Canada it would have to budget for a deficit of $1,300,000,000.

That is the startling fact that arises from the record of Conservative promises and proposals made in Parliament during the past year. They were made, not in the excitement of an election campaign, but in the considered debates of the Commons, and they have been tallied by Mr. Grant Dexter, of the Ottawa Press Gallery, and published in the Winnipeg Free Press.

Quoting chapter and verse of Hansard, Mr. Dexter shows how Conservative plans to cut present revenues, and to increase expenditures on various projects, would wipe out the present federal surplus of $152 millions and run up a deficit of $1.3 billions.

Since recent Social Credit promises to increase costs and decrease revenues have run neck and neck with Conservative intentions, it is obvious that if either of these parties came into power it would have to ditch its promises or face national financial ruin.

Conservatives Agreed

Mr. Dexter begins by recalling that in the fiscal year 1956-57 the Government spent $4,867 millions on current account. All of it was passed by Parliament and the Conservative Opposition did not vote against a single dollar of it, despite its generalized demands for reduced expenditures. The same applies to the current year's supply.

What are the Conservative proposals to reduce taxes? The Party would increase income tax exemptions (Hansard, page 2748) which would reduce federal revenues by $450 millions a year, with a further loss of $50 millions in the Old Age Security Fund which is supported by a two per cent levy.

This proposal would thus reduce federal income by $500 millions.

The Conservatives urge an increase in the tax exemption for charitable donations (Hansard, page 3142). It is estimated that this would cost another $7.5 millions a year.

Another Exemption

Exemption of all medical expenses from income tax—at present above three per cent is deductible—is another Conservative proposal (Hansard, page 3371) and this would reduce revenues by $30 millions each year.

Some other plans by Mr. Diefenbaker are less easily estimated. He has urged larger write-offs on prairie grain storage facilities, (Hansard, page 2189), changes in taxation of oil and gas companies, (Hansard, page 2775), removal of sales tax on drugs (Hansard, page 3038), special tax exemption for corporations with elderly personnel (Hansard, page 2957), and other measures. These are lumped together by Mr. Dexter in an estimate of $42.5 millions.

All told, the Conservative Party's proposed tax reductions amount to $600 millions. This would reduce the present federal revenues of $5,170 millions to $4,570 millions, and the surplus of $152 millions would become a deficit of $448 millions.

But this is only a beginning. The Conservative proposals for increasing expenditures are much greater.

The plans to raise old age pensions from $46 to $60 a month would cost the treasury an additional $140 millions a year, with another $10 millions to increase means-test assistance.

By tying family allowances to the cost-of-living index, Mr. Diefenbaker would increase their cost by another $250 millions a year. Pensions to disabled persons would be increased by $5 millions, civil service superannuation by $8.6 millions and veterans' pensions by $5 millions.

In last month's Parliamentary debates the Conservative Party pledged itself to include mental and TB hospitals in the national insurance plan and to make additional allowance for certain costs in the operation of other hospitals. These changes, along with increased grants for hospital construction, would boost annual costs by $102 millions according to Treasury estimates.

On numerous occasions the Conservatives have urged greater federal aid to municipalities. The extra cost of this is put at $5 millions. Extension of the Prairie Farm Relief Act to all provinces, another Conservative promise, would cost the country an additional $25 millions a year.

By waiving interest payments on Britain's debt to Canada this year (Hansard, page 438), the Conservatives would lose $22.5 millions in federal revenue.

Their proposed increases in direct subsidies to the Atlantic provinces would cost about $2 millions. Increases in Maritime coal subsidies, estimated at $5 millions, and freight subsidies—about $3 millions—would bring the total of this item to an annual $10 millions.

One of the greatest changes favored by the Conservatives would alter the existing Dominion-Provincial tax agreements to boost Ontario's allocation by $100 millions a year. Equalizing arrangements with the other provinces or this basis would cost at least another $100 millions.

University scholarships proposed by the Conservatives (Hansard, page 600) would cost at least $1 millions annually, and their plans for federal aid to primary and secondary education (Hansard, page 720) would run a minimum of $50 millions a year.

More for Mail

With more frequent mail deliveries Mr. Diefenbaker would add $5.1 millions to yearly expenditures, and extension of delivery areas would add another $6 millions. A 10 per cent wage increase for postal workers would cost an additional $7.1 millions—without considering other civil service demands that likely would follow.

All these expenses, as shown in the accompanying table, would amount to $852.3 millions.

They do not include other far-reaching Conservative plans for the Federal Government to borrow at least $1,200 millions "to build ships, power plants, dams, roads, railways and other works—most of which would not be self-liquidating."

Taken by itself, any one proposal might be feasible. Taken together, the Conservative proposals on income and expenditure become fantastically unreasonable.

The Underground Wiring

By JOSEPH ALSOP

THIS is a city with the strange charm of an oasis, set in a rich green garden amid the surrounding dusty brown of the desert hills. One can understand the irritation of the ancient Damascus, when the Hebrew prophet gave Jordan preference to his own beloved rivers, Abana and Pharpar. But all the same, for any modern American observer, Damascus at the moment is a city haunted by warning ghosts. Specifically it is haunted by the peevish ghosts of the small-minded French policy-makers who took such offence because their British opposite number failed to consult them about the Baghdad Pact.

The British, they said, were insolently taking over. The British, they charged, were flagrantly ignoring France's historic connection with the Levant.

In point of fact, that connection no longer consisted of much of anything, beyond the underground wiring of the French Secret Service left over from the time when France had real power and responsibility in this country and in Lebanon.

But that did not matter. The wiring was used. Funds were lavishly transmitted. France's bitterest enemies in Syria were aided, abetted and subsidized in order to increase opposition to the Baghdad Pact and to make sure that Syria would not adhere to it.

So far, indeed, did wounded national vanity go.

What the French did then, has a lot to do now with Syria's increasing subjugation by powerfully anti-Western forces. And for any sensible American, the ghosts of this past French folly, gibber a shrill warning because the American policy-makers are now exactly imtating the British mistake which provoked the French Folly.

We are now, in brief, engaged in replacing the vanished British influence with a new American influence as the necessary safeguard of the vital Western interests in this part of the world. As the Jordanian drama showed, the process has already gone startlingly far.

It was to President Eisenhower that Lebanon's wise President Camille Chamoun sent a personal message that the curtain could be definitely rung down on all the Arab lands if Jordan fell into anti-Western hands.

Again, it was to President Eisenhower that Jordan's young King-Hussein turned for a guarantee against Israeli attack which would free his hands for action.

Yet again, it was President Eisenhower who sent the Sixth Fleet as a stern warning to Israel and a strong hint to the Kremlin. And it was American influence too, apparently, which somewhat excitedly and imprudently secured the simultaneous movement of the Turkish Army towards the Syrian border.

Other evidence might also be cited to show how America's long, inane condition of non-policy in this area is belatedly being cured. But enough has been said to prove the point.

Any other American course would certainly be fatal. But as this reporter learned in London, we have reached no prior detailed agreement with our British allies about this new course of ours. Bermuda was the great opportunity, and the opportunity was missed.

That means in fact that we have launched upon this immensely tricky, dangerous and delicate new course without taking the smallest precautions against sparking the old but extensive British wiring throughout the Middle East in just the same way that the British sparked the French wiring in Syria.

Primarily British

It does not matter that the Western bacon the United States is trying to save in the Middle East is primarily British. It does not matter, either, that the British no longer have the influence and power to save their own bacon.

British vanity can also be wounded. British suspicions (of American designs on their oil holdings for instance) can also be too easily aroused. The British also are capable of committing follies for these reasons.

One could see the danger signals in the reactions of British public men, the British press and the British officials out here to the American role in the Jordan crisis.

There are plenty of future sparking points. Iraq is one. The obscure oasis of Buraimi, where the British are squabbling with the Saudi Arabians, is another. And the sooner the American policy-makers take the rather easy steps needed to avoid trouble, the more prudent they will be.

ZEST FOR LIFE

Nowhere is life lived with a greater fervor, a greater intensity than on the Scottish Border. In our factories, we weave our wool into fabrics so diaphanous and strong that all the world comes to buy; even the great French dress designer, Dior, himself. At a 'kirm', the winter festival of the farms, it is considered namby-pamby, sissy, almost a betrayal, to leave the dance before the winter day-break (and day-break is late with us) has melted the night's revelry into the morning's work. The favorite town game is rugby football; the favorite country sport is hard riding over the hills, fording the rivers as they come, steering at full gallop amongst the bogs, jog-trotting home for hours thereafter, in the freezing dark.

—Walter Elliot, M.P.

Rude Forefathers

The Court House clock records the passing day.
A herd of lawyers wanders o'er the lea.
The Judges clubward plod their weary way
While anxious waits a Board of grave Trustees...

—30th Century Tetrachloride SILENUS

This column has always regretted the absence from an otherwise exciting age of the cool classicism of such poets as Gray. Were he alive today, and by some odd chance living in Victoria, what an Elegy would have arisen from the ponderous litigation which ground to a halt before the Court of Appeal on Tuesday.

The battle of the giants, pro and con a new cemetery out at Goldstream makes the Country Churchyard look like very small beer indeed.

'Full many a gem of purest ray serene,
The deep unfathomed caves of Ocean bear
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen
And waste its sweetness on the desert air...

Such graceful lines, particularly the latter couplet, could certainly be said to apply to the advocacy which drowned deviously on during the protracted hearing; for since the courtroom faces west, and the sun was warming the desert air to a degree where the impulse to catch forty winks becomes almost overpowering, its sweetness may well have been wasted.

It is in such circumstances as this case, known by its short title as the Colwood Cemetery Case, that the observer of the judicial process becomes lost in admiration of their Lordships on the Bench. Sitting, as they do, high above the floor, with all eyes fixed upon them and nothing to hide behind, they somehow manage to combine alertness with dignity in the face of the most soporific situations.

And somehow lengthy arguments concerning cemeteries are soporific. For some reason they lack the ginger, the zip, the popular appeal of a hatchet murder or a divorce involving a pillar of respectable society. But they go on none the less, for while the law allows little in the way of rights to the dead, it is surprisingly voluminous on the subject of their disposal.

"Each in his narrow cell forever laid..." But where? Colwood, Royal Oak, Goldstream? That is the question.

For three whole days the gentlemen of the long robe cited wise saws and many instances, with ever and anon a backhanded swipe at the Public Utilities Commission, which for some reason got mixed up in the business. (It seems impossible these days to keep it out of anything, come to think of it.) And at last, on Tuesday afternoon (which, as gentle readers will remember, was particularly sultry), the long robe argument ended, and one and all woke up and went home, leaving the judges to sift the matter in the more lively atmosphere of their chambers.

A certain vulgar columnist, who shall be nameless, was in attendance for part of the time, but eventually left, confessing that he was unequal to the task of keeping up with the necropolis (it may not be in the dictionary, but so what?) antics of counsel. His excuse was that a popular tune of yesterday kept running through his head, preventing him from concentrating. You know how this sometimes happens. Even this morning he was whistling "They're Digging Up Father's Grave to Lay a Sewer." Surprising, the side effects of such a case.

The only conclusion which one can draw from all these goings on is that there must be money in the cemetery business; the age of Thomas Gray was not nearly so civilized.

Cricket Pools Now

LONDON—The football pools, a booming business in winter with coupons going each week to 12,000,000 homes in Britain, become a relatively small thing in the summer.

They continue, but nobody takes much interest in them because they are based on Australian soccer.

Since the games are played 12,000 miles away it is difficult to keep in touch with teams' form or be excited about them.

Thus in the summer there are never any of the whopping £75,000 wins of the winter.

But now, perhaps, the pools fans will find the summer just as exciting, because for the first time the big pools firms have started cricket pools.

The coupons are made out in precisely the same way as for soccer, except that you don't have to figure out which team will win at home, away, or tie.

The cricket pools are based on batsmen's performances—one point for more than 10 runs, two points for more than 40 and three points for more than 70. And there's an aspect which spreads out the excitement of the British institution of "checking the pools."

Instead of newspaper-sellers being besieged each winter Saturday night for the football results, in the summer they'll be selling their late editions like hot-cakes to pools fans on Mondays and Tuesdays as well as Saturdays, for the cricket pools are based on three-day matches.

Reyburn

The fact that race horses from the Queen's stables of 28 won $27,000 in stake money in a single week—and made her Britain's leading owner this season—certainly thrilled her, but it hasn't pleased everybody.

They're at her again about dashing off to the races whenever she has any free time. One paper says that "with every worker in the land being urged to work harder and longer and spend less on unessentials, she is not setting a very good example and should ration her race track visits."

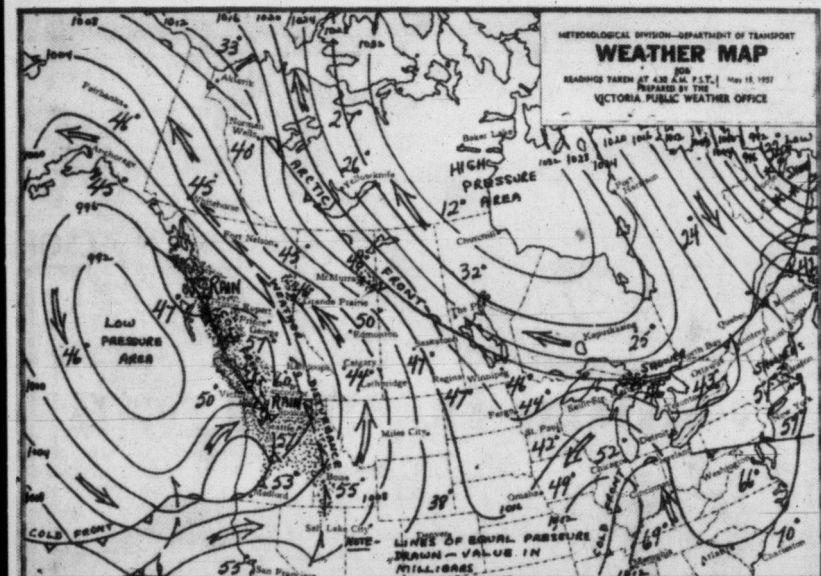

A spokesman of the Free Church of Scotland says: "The association of the race course are so unpleasant and so damaging to the fortune of so many people that one would like to see Her Majesty disassociate herself in the strongest possible terms from the betting setup."

The man closest to her, Prince Philip, is known to be so bored by her race mania that he invariably slips out of the back of the grandstand after making a token appearance with her, to spend his time elsewhere.

His boredom with her preoccupation with horses has been played up in papers with pictures of him sitting apart from the Queen and her party at horse trials, looking thoroughly dejected as she excitedly takes home movies of the horses going through their paces.

Russ Against Unlimited 'Open Skies'

MOSCOW (AP)—Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said Friday Russia never will accept an "open skies" plan for air inspection of all the Soviet Union in exchange for inspection of all the United States.

Gromyko told correspondents at a diplomatic reception such a plan would be unfair to the Soviet Union. So would any plan for mutual inspection of a half, a third or any other identical fractions of the two nations' territories, he added.

This was interpreted as an obvious reference to U.S. Secretary of State Foster Dulles' offer of "open skies" over Canadian northland.

U.S. Film Wins Gold Palm

CANNES, France (UP)—The Hollywood movie "Friendly Persuasion," which received mixed reaction from critics here, won the Grand Prix of the 10th Annual Cannes Film Festival.

It was the second U.S. movie to win the coveted gold palm in three years. "Marty" won it in 1956.

French critics had panned "Friendly Persuasion" by presenting a mock award for acting to a goose named Samantha, which played a part in the movie. They called the goose "the most sympathetic and dynamic actor of the movie."

Color photography offers some wonderful opportunities for the person who has an imaginative turn of mind and is willing, in fact anxious, to experiment a bit. The strict advocate of sunny day, out-of-doors shooting might get some interesting results by shaking the idea that color is a sensitive, temperamental medium that demands perfect conditions at all times.

For example, more than a few photographers have found that color can be used to excellent advantage indoors with window light, outdoors after sundown and in the rain. Although color rendition under less-than-perfect conditions varies somewhat from what you have been experiencing, the results in themselves are more often than not pleasing. Rain shots, for example, lack some of the vibrancy of sunlight and after sundown there may be a bluish quality to your pictures, but on the whole, a few experiments are well worth the effort. And, by the way, if you have questions or problems relating to color or any other phase of photography, JUBILEE PHOTOS LTD., 716 Yates St., will make it worth the effort to drop in and talk it over. ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Conditions Current Art

The other afternoon I was typing an article for an English newspaper and I had to stop myself from referring to Miss Emily Sartain as a Victorian artist. She is a Victorian artist, of course, but in England such a description would place her in the last century.

As an intelligent person, she would not have been offended.

The atomic age has taught us respect for the steady course set by Victorian England. It therefore seems appropriate, at this time of local festivity, for modern Victorians to look back at Victorian art. I doubt if any body who has ever read the critical writings of John Ruskin would for a moment question the supremacy of the Victorian mind, nor deny that it will be centuries before the cultured discard the shackles of Victorian influence.

Victorian art literally swamped the world, and still does. All counter-revolutionary movements, such as Impressionism, were doused in the cold waters of Victorian disapproval so that even today, 57 years into the 20th Century, the majority of people would rather look at Landseer's "Monarch of the Glen" than at a painting of Rouen Cathedral by Claude Monet.

Victorian Products Fashionable

Since the end of Second World War, Victorian culture has been in the ascendancy. Scholars have published books confirming what we already knew—that Victorian artists were very fine painters. Mayfair antique shops have their windows filled with Victorian bric-a-brac. Victorian furniture is costly. Victorianism is fashionable.

Now, as my last article implied, I am not one of those people who think that they should look at a bad picture rather than not look at a picture at all. Yet I often feel that I would rather look at a second-rate Victorian painting in preference to a second-rate modern. Victorian painters, even the inferior ones, worked to higher standards and we can learn from them. They may have been sentimental, overzealous with detail, too photographic and often downright puerile. But they were sincere. They reflected the age in which they lived and they believed in what they painted. They had the technical ability to express their thoughts with untrammelled, concise vision.

Sincere, But Sentiments Differ

Our contemporary abstract painters are equally sincere, but their sentiments are different. I have never talked with any important abstract painter who has not been appreciative of the finer qualities in Victorian art. If the Victorian age had been ready for abstractionism, I am convinced that by now the world would have been flooded with abstract pictures. Victorians never did anything by half-measure.

English Were Ignorant of Art

When Queen Victoria came to the throne the English people, including artists, were deplorably ignorant in regard to art. Only the wealthy who had toured Europe, and one or two artists with rich patrons, knew anything at all about European or Classical painting. The National Gallery, opened in 1838, was at best a makeshift collection, mainly visited by Londoners.

Prince Albert, Victoria's Consort, was the first to come to the rescue and he instituted mammoth art exhibitions in London and the Midlands. Exhibitions at the Royal Academy became increasingly influential and then, half way through the century, nine years before the founding of British Columbia, a group of young painters, backed by Ruskin, thrust themselves upon the public.

They called themselves the Pre-Raphaelites, and from then onwards Victorian art was known to today reached out to every corner of the globe. So when next we look at a Victorian painting we should enjoy ourselves and at the same time, thankful for our wonderful heritage, keep a check on our tastes.

Carr Collection
Future Uncertain

The handsome and immensely valuable collection of Emily Carr pottery pictured above, is in possession of a friend of the late Victoria artist, Mrs. Kate Mather, 829 Broughton Street.

Mrs. Mather is vitally interested in the move to "bring Emily Carr home" through building of a fireproof wing on the Victoria Art Gallery.

She has numerous other pieces as well as those shown and is determined not to break up the collection or sell it to any private individual.

Emily Carr canvases formerly in her possession, she was forced to sell to an Alberta museum though she tried to keep them in Victoria.

"I have prospective buyers everywhere but in Victoria," says Mrs. Mather. "How wonderful if, in the centennial year, someone would come forward to present the collection to the Art Gallery—if and when there is a fireproof wing."

Intelligent Novel
Is Fable of HistoryTHE BRAINTREE MISSION.
By Nicholas E. Wyckoff; Macmillan.

This novel is a charming historical fable describing what might have happened if Britain had tried to appease its rebellious American subjects by offering to elevate their leaders to the peerage. Its moral: it was misunderstanding more than malice that made the American Revolution inevitable.

The central character of the story is the Earl of Hemyng, a non-partisan agent sent to Boston in 1770 by Lord North to choose the six Americans who were to be offered earldoms and the chance to speak for their countrymen in negotiations for American representation in parliament.

Hemyng was a normally sensitive, intelligent man, and he sincerely felt he was behaving handsomely when he offered a peerage to the John Adams who was fated to become America's second president rather than its first.

In fact, however, it was only the quick tact of Adams' wife Abigail that prevented an explosion that might have started the Revolution six years ahead of its time.

Wyckoff, a "confirmed Californian" with an absorbing interest in early American history, makes the book an urbane.

intelligent novel about urbane, intelligent people. Hemyng and his secretary, Giuseppe Tompkins, are the only fictitious personages of the story. Everyone else who appears—including William Pitt the Elder, whose personality dominates the book—is a character from history, quoted either in his recorded words or according to his known feelings.

Pottery is a type of ceramics which is of the earthenware variety—that is, it is not translucent. Pottery can be formed in three ways—by hand, on a potter's wheel or by casting or molding.

BASHFUL FARM BOY

Inferiority Complex Kept Welk Dumb, Hidden Behind Accordion

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA). — Until 1938 bashful Lawrence Welk sat in the back row of his own orchestra and happily played the accordion. Now and then he permitted himself an embarrassed bow. But he never talked. Some one else always announced the numbers.

He was still hiding, any psychiatrist would have told him, in the North Dakota barn of his childhood.

"I knew I wasn't a personality," he told me. "I was bashful and I worried about my accent. I don't think even a psychiatrist could explain it. But maybe he could—I've never been to one."

But by 1938, at the age of 35, Welk had risen to name-band level. He was playing his "Champagne Music" with the first of his six "Champagne Lady" singers in a big Pittsburgh hotel and over the coast-to-coast Mutual Radio network. But personally he was a nonentity with a worried manager.

TURNED PALE
"The radio people would like you to make the announcements," the manager casually told him one day. "It would help business in the ballrooms, too." Welk turned pale, but agreed to "talk a little."

The announcement "Welk Talks" caused almost as much stir in the orchestra world as the radio world.

WELK AND Champagne Lady: Alice Lee is No. 6.

bashful child. And a sickly one I had bad eyes and a ruptured appendix, when I was in the fourth grade, led to an 18-month convalescence and I never went back to school."

That's the reason he's always been an avid, hungry-for-knowledge reader.

FELT INTERIOR
Young Welk loved to play the accordion when company came, "but I always had to be asked. I was either hiding in my room or out in the barn where I pretended the anvil, the pitchfork, the hoe and the rake were musical instruments and I was an orchestra leader."

He doesn't talk about it, but old friends say that as a youngster and growing teen-ager, Welk developed an inferiority complex. His three brothers were big, strong-backed farm workers. He was next to the youngest—the smallest and the frailest.

At 15, after arduous saving, Welk bought his own accordion from a mail order house for $19.90. At 17, he talked his father into buying a professional $400 instrument on the installment plan. It was a huge investment for Ludwig Welk, and the first time he had bought anything on credit. Young Welk promised to pay back every cent by playing at local barn dances—and he promised to remain on the farm until he was 21.

"I was the bashful boy with accordion," he remembers, "but once I started playing I never liked to stop. I remember travelling to a barn dance in another city on a train, and someone asked me to play. I played so long a man finally yelled, 'Stop. We've had enough.'"

RADIO DEBUT

From solo accordionist at barn dances, Welk's fortunes progressed to adding a drummer, a saxophone and a piano. In Yanton, S.D., the four-piece Welk band and his "want-to-dance" beat made its radio debut on station WNAX.

The year was 1935. With no sponsor pleading for him, Welk, always a shrewd business man, became his own sponsor. The product was chewing gum, which he bought from a wholesaler and sold in his spare time.

"I finally had to stop," he grins. "I guess it wasn't very good gum."

Because of his Yankton radio program, Welk's "biggest little band in America" became a favorite dance band throughout the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska and Minnesota.

Then came small hotels, bigger ballrooms, the resort circuit from Denver in the winter, bigger hotels, Pittsburgh Mutual network radio, San Francisco and Los Angeles ballrooms and then, in 1939, the Trianon ballroom in Chicago.

The "want-to-dance" beat was catching on—a local level and on a minor radio network.

Next: Back to his own beat.

TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE

AA (Oscar Class) BB (Worthwhile)
A (Don't Miss) B (For Rainy Days)
C (To put in time)

(A) "DESIGNING WOMAN" (Royal): "Designing Woman" is obviously designed to please adults of both sexes.

The ladies should go for it because of the impressive gowns (or lack of same) and Gregory Peck.

The men should enjoy it immensely because what is in (or out) of the gowns and Lauren Bacall.

In short, this is a comedy that is funny. It is both slapstick and sophisticated. That the plot is highly improbable doesn't matter at all.

Written by George Wells from a suggestion by Helen Rose, "Designing Woman" brings two worlds into collision—the world of fashion design and the rugged world of sports. That they sometimes have to live together in a Manhattan luxury flat adds a sauce that lights up the whole concoction like a brandy flame on a plum pudding.

Peck once again comes with a splendid effort as the two-fisted sports writer who wakes up from a binge to discover that he is married to famed dress designer Bacall.

Once he gets used to the apartment he manfully tries to put up with his wife's friends, wonderfully weird characters from fashion and the theatre. Meanwhile, Lauren is trying to adjust herself to the sports crowd and especially to one place drunk ex-fighter named Mickey Shaughnessy who sleeps with his eyes wide open.

THEY BOTH might have made out tolerably well, too, except that Peck's wife stumbles over an affair hubby was having with an actress, Dolores Gray, up to and shortly after their marriage. To complicate matters Peck is having to hide out from some thugs who are trying to bash his brains in because of his articles exposing elements of the fight racket.

Those taking part will be Beverly Brown, Dina Stewart, Ann Tracy, Cheryl Borris, Barbara Anne Court, Gillian Gerry, Bernard Goward, Florence Goward, Patsy Loft, Janice Hickman, Margaret McEwen, Kenneth Johnson, Karen Dickson and Mary Goward.

Concert is free to the public.

Walt Disney says that he hopes "Johnny Tremaine" will prove his dramatic theory that it's the story and not necessarily the time of the story that's important. The film is about the American Revolution and seen through the eyes of a teenage boy and girl. "The most fascinating entertainment comes from history," Disney said. "It's the story that counts; the time is incidental." Disney will find out how many agree with him after the picture is released.

GRUBER CONDUCTS

Steed in No Need Of Defence Counsel

Graham Steed stands in no need of my services as counsel for defence on his behalf. In any case, the first he will know of my meddling in the little recent controversy will be when he opens today's paper, just like you.

Nor am I in a position to commit myself publicly as to my agreement or otherwise with the benefits or, as Mr. Steed will have it, the evils, of music festivals and current teaching methods. I cannot claim to sufficient experience as a music pedagogue.

But, Mr. Steed can. He has Hans Gruber long been a professional teacher in musical subjects. He is an instrumental executant of the virtuoso class. He is a choral director whose ability I myself have had more than one occasion to bless. As a conductor, I have repeatedly witnessed his pulling his charges through momentary situations of some stickiness—situations which made me thankful, from the safety of my seat in the hall, that it was he, rather than I, for instance, who had to cope.

He speaks, writes, and lectures with a felicitous and enviable lack of ambiguity. Personally, he has been known to me for many years as a man of catholic taste and uncommonly wide intellectual curiosity. His genuine love for music imbues him with, to me, admirable moral courage to flail out against institutions no matter how traditional or entrenched that, in his opinion, do not serve his art to advantage. Mr. Steed knows full well

U.S. Economy Shows Signs Of New Vigor

By WALTER BREEDER, JR.

NEW YORK (AP)—After spluttering along in indecisive fashion, the United States economy this week showed new and unexpected signs of vigor.

Business sentiment—dropping on a short time ago—perked up noticeably. Merchants, manufacturers, stockholders and wage earners seemed to be saying: "Things aren't so terrible after all."

The stock market romped to a 1957 high.

Beginnings of a potential pickup were noted in at least three sectors of the economy where soft spots had developed—autos, appliances and textiles.

As for the economy as a whole, bankers, industrialists and others gave this estimate of things to come:

Business activity, over all, should keep on rising. Not as fast as last year, probably, but the trend for the rest of 1957—and certainly for 1958—should be up, not down.

The upward parade of prices should pause for a while. Business costs are sky-high but goods are in great abundance and competition is razor-sharp. This—at least for the time being—should hold price increases in check.

Those inclined to optimism could point this week to a continued high level of consumer income and consumer spending.

Personal income of Americans, at latest count, had climbed to a record annual rate of nearly $339,000,000. It represents a gain of $18,000,000 in just one year.

Wage increases for coal, oil, steel and other workers should push consumer income—and possibly some consumer prices—to still higher levels in the coming months.

Employment is on the upbeat, too. While there isn't as much overtime in the auto factories and steel mills as there used to be, there are more jobs in the trades and services than ever before.

Auto production is picking up a little right now—this week's output of 1,236,000 cars is the highest in more than a month.

Western Oils Make Long Overdue Spurt

By RON ANDREWS

Western oils stepped smartly ahead this week on Canadian stock markets but industrialists and miners sauntered through five sessions of fairly listless activity.

Observers said the advance in the oil group was long overdue and forecast the group to continue moving higher. They said world consumption is increasing and demands for Canadian oil is on the upswing.

On the Toronto Stock Exchange, the western oil index was the only one to gain during the week. It climbed four points and was less than 1½ points away from the all-time high, set last August when the crisis in the Middle East first began.

CONSISTENT WINNERS

A noteworthy aspect about the oil movement was the fact that of the dozen 1957 highs reached in the section, a large percentage made up of high-priced stocks such as Pacific Petroleum, Home Oil and Calgary and Edmonton.

Among the industrial groups, refining oils, utilities and selected foods were the most consistent winners. Pipelines, with the exception of Trans Mountain, fluctuated.

Trans Mountain was the feature industrial issue. It gained $5.62½ on the week, despite a $4.25 loss Friday through profit-taking, to close at $39.25. At one time it touched an all-time high of $45.

Repeated highs were established.

lised by the Loblaw issues, confined to a 25-cent range but most issues gained.

Trading was slow compared with most other weeks. A total of 21,688,000 shares was exchanged compared with 24,863,000 the previous week.

Index changes at Toronto: industrials up 48 to 480.3; golds up 85 to 79.15; base metals up 1.66 to 205.74; western oils up 4.09 to 182.85; Of 87 issues traded, 335 advanced, 362 declined and 190 were unchanged.

Index changes at Montreal: banks up 0.30 to 52.71; utilities up 1.1 to 150.9; industrials up 2.1 to 289.8; combined oil 1.0 to 243.5; papers up 9.47 to 1268.86; golds off 1.31 to 83.37.

Week's volumes: 666,325 industrials and 2,321,300 mines compared with 440,918 industrials and 3,713,112 mines the previous week. Of 423 issues traded, 134 advanced, 170 declined and 119 were unchanged.

LIBERALISM PREFERS PERFORMANCE TO PROMISES. The Liberal record is one of progress and growth. Canada's expansion and prosperity are visible - - in population, jobs, homes, factories. And while these are achievements of the Canadian people, the assurance that they will be maintained lies in able, experienced government--in sound policies at home and abroad. This is truly Canada's century, but the best is yet to be. Twenty-two Liberal candidates offer B. C. an opportunity to increase this province's influence in directing Canada's future. Whether cabinet minister, former member or newcomer, your Liberal candidate stands pledged to policies which have been good for Canada - - policies which enjoy the nation-wide confidence essential to our continued prosperity and security. Let's not gamble with what we have and cherish.

Farmers Well-Stocked for Opening Games

The traditional cries of "Play Ball," "Go for Three" and "Get Your Red-Hots" will ring through Athletic Park Monday as Farmer Construction opens its Northwest International League schedule with a doubleheader against Burnaby Athletics. Supplying pitching power from both sides of the mound will be Bill Prior and Bill Garner, at left, who will start the two games for Farmers. At right, Bruce Carmichael and Ron Martin indicate just how tough a fight they both are putting up for the second base job. They are expected to divide keystone duties on opening day. —(Times photos by Bill Halke)

Home-Town Farmers Pack Pro Experience

WHAT'S THE SCORE?

BY

Denny Boyd

You say you want to own a hockey club? Well, come along, friend. Let me take you by the pocket-book.

Today we are in a position to offer you one hockey club, slightly used but completely unblemished, fully equipped with all the modern conveniences and stocked with a muscular line-up. Interested, friend?

All you have to do to take possession of this bargain buy is to tie up a few "formalities."

You may have seen in the morning paper that the withdrawal of the Victoria Cougars from the Western Hockey League was just "a formality" and that there has been "no change" in the hockey picture here from the situation that existed a couple of days ago.

Thursday the Cougars were in the WHL. Friday they were out of it. No change in the picture? What it will take to get them back in the league and operating next season is $30,000 in cash.

This is a "formality"?

Around our house, we don't talk about 30 Gs in terms of formalities. Do you?

There is no use kidding ourselves that the present situation can be jollied off as just a matter of routine clearing of the decks.

The Cougars are out of hockey and they will stay out until someone gets behind them and gives them a big money push.

Possibly that money can be raised among the directors who stuck with the club through last season, even though they could see the greenbacks dribbling through their hands.

Possibly the franchise will be transferred to an outside interest for operation here.

We doubt that the Cougars will make a public appeal for funds. Baseball and senior basketball both tried to stay alive by that method. And may they rest in peace, poor souls.

We don't agree with some of the things Lester Patrick is alleged to have said about hockey in this town recently, but we do agree with The Fox when he says that sports interest has cycles, just the same as weather and crops.

Television Cycle May Be Near End

Lester has said many times that all sports are beginning to see the end of the Television Cycle. For the last three or four years, when almost two families out of three in Victoria and a smaller percentage nationally, have purchased TV sets, the incentive to get out and see sports attractions has waned. A guy will sit down in front of the idiot box after supper, open a beer and he is there for the night, even though there is a good game on in town.

But TV, like Chinese food, loses its novelty after a while and it must keep its viewers on merit. Sometime, it could be this year, people are going to decide that a hockey game or a baseball game is more fun than I Love Lucy. Then the sports fans will return.

There is another prickly problem that is, perhaps, peculiar to Victoria and a reason why our cosmopolitan city has such trouble supporting professional sports.

Victoria is a wealthy city. But the trouble is, the money does not move. It is tied up in retirement and sat upon and the lack of financial flow makes Victoria what could be called a Tight Little Island. If one big industry moved into Victoria, it might open the financial gates and start people opening their wallets again.

Certainly, during the wartime boom, when everyone had plenty of money, there was no lack of sports interest here.

But we could cite reasons and hopes all day and that isn't getting the team back in the WHL.

And if we don't get hockey back, it will be a tragedy, for you, for me and for all those kids who get up at 6 in the morning to play minor hockey.

DECISIONS RORY CALHOUN

Joey's Plans Blurred

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP) — Middleweight contenders Joey (Rhubarb) Giardello and Rory Calhoun were as confused today about future plans, because of brow stitches, as the customers were Friday night about the winner of their bruising TV 10-rounder at the Cleveland arena.

Giardello, the ex-Philadelphia who now lives in New York, wound up with a split decision. But the 3,052 fans didn't know it until the ring's pandemonium because of a drowned-out announcement had subsided.

Announcer Tom Dwyer was the innocent instigator when he made the mistake of announcing the only favorable vote for Calhoun of White Plains, N.Y., first. He announced that referee Lou Parker had favored him on points, 46-45. That evoked such tremendous boating that no one heard Dwyer's next announcement that judge Herb Williams favored Giardello, 47-45. Some did hear that judge Charlie Bill had Giardello ahead, 46-45.

The announcing mix-up was an unfortunate aftermath to an excellent fight in which seventh-ranking Giardello's boxing skill and booming left hooks to body and head gave him a distinct advantage in the first five rounds. After that Calhoun came on and appeared superior in the last half.

Giardello, a last-minute 65 underdog, suffered a fourth-stitch gash at the corner of his right eye, and was uncertain whether it would heal in time for him to accept a TV-bout with Germaine Ballarín of France at Norfolk, Va., on June 12.

AN OLD FAVORITE with Victoria fans, when he was catching for the Victoria Tyees, Jim Harford will be calling the shots for Farmer pitchers Monday in opening twin-bill.

SNEAD CROWDS HOGAN

Bantam Ben Back In Familiar Role

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (UP) — Ben Hogan played an old familiar role today.

The terrific little Texan took over the leadership at the halfway mark of the 72-hole Sam Snead Festival. And he emerged as both the betting and sentimental favorite as the field swung into the third round of play.

At 45, Bantam Ben was playing his tournament with the same determination and will-to-win that carried him to eight major titles after he came back from his near fatal auto accident a decade ago.

Ben shot a 65 in the opening round Thursday. Then Friday, "playing a better game," he forged ahead of first-day leader Paul Hageny of Worcester, Mass., with a 66 for a 36-hole total of 131.

To make it just like old times, Hogan was getting his biggest challenge from his one-time perennial foe — Slammin' Sam Snead, the tournament host.

Sam, in the same threesome with Hogan Friday, matched Ben's 66 for a two-round total of 132. This put the slammer in a second place tie with Harvey, who slipped back to a 69 from his sensational opening round 63.

The name of this tournament has been changed from the Greenbrier Open to the Sam Snead Festival — to honor the slammer on his 20th anniversary. But the race for top money is as tight as it has been every year since the tournament was originated in 1948.

Only five strokes separated the first nine men. Al Balding of Islington, Ont., the only Canadian entered, shot a par 70 in the opening round.

Greater Victoria Junior Boys Softball League will hold a general meeting of the executive Wednesday, May 22, at 1266 Dunsterville Street at 8 p.m.

Vince Sees Medal Hope Fly Away

Three Victorians Qualify in Amateur

Burly Vince Clarkson of Colwood Golf Club tasted a scrumptious mouthful of glory Thursday morning but just about choked on it in the afternoon.

The long-limbed redhead fired a blistering three-under-par 69 at Vancouver Golf and Country Club to lead the first round of the B.C. Amateur Golf Tournament.

However, Clarkson soared to an 80 in the afternoon round and lost his chance at medal honors.

He did qualify, however, with his 149 as medal scores were high.

Clarkson was one of three Victorians to nail one of the 32 qualifying berths in the championship division as he was joined by clubmates Vic Painter, 78-73-151, and Laurie Kerr, 75-77-152.

Rain hurt scores.

A 156 score was good enough to qualify as a late afternoon downpour sent scores skyrocketing.

Don Elford of Glen Oaks, Johnny Russell of Point Grey and Len Morgan of Fraserview tied for the medal with 146 scores.

Last year's B.C. Amateur was held at Gorge Vale Golf Club, with Vancouver's Gordon McKenzie defeating Rod Funseth of Spokane.

Neither player is entered in the tournament this year.

Colwood Medal Round

Mrs. C. Denham fired a 94-176 to win the silver division of a women's medal round at Royal Colwood Golf Club Thursday.

Mrs. G. d'Easum took bronze division laurels with 105-29-76 and Mrs. M. Grant paced "C" division with 130-36-94.

Cats May Ask Outside Help

Al Leader Confident Of Victoria Return

Western Hockey League president Al Leader closed off the league's annual meeting Friday night and went back to Seattle to draw up next season's schedule.

He planned to include Victoria in the schedule.

Although he had received the Victoria Hockey Club Ltd.'s franchise only a matter of hours before, Leader expressed complete confidence that the club would be operating next season.

Leader said, "I can't agree with some statements made by the former owner of the club that hockey is dead in Victoria."

"Victoria has been one of our finest franchises and I see no reason why it can't be the same again."

"I am going back to draw up next year's schedule and I am including Victoria in it. In addition, I am going to take steps to see that there is no dispersal of the playing personnel of the Victoria club."

Want to Keep Franchise Control Here

Leader said, "Primarily, we want to keep the franchise in the hands of Victoria interests, but, failing this, we may seek an outside purchaser."

This would not be a new situation for the WHL as Fred Hume, Vancouver mayor, owns the New Westminster franchise and Jim Piggott, who resides in Saskatoon, operates the Brandon club.

Holms disclosed that the decision to surrender the franchise to the league was made at a directors' meeting last Monday.

"We agreed at that time that we could not find anyone within our own group who could carry the full financial load."

In other developments arising from the two-day meeting, the league agreed unanimously not to accept the joint proposal of the National Hockey League and the American Hockey League to field draft rights on WHL players without protection from the NHL.

Leader said, "They can't make the change without our approval and we'll ignore it."

The three leagues and the Quebec League signed an agreement in 1953 giving the AHL a draft rights on the WHL, and QHL but better players in the WHL were put on the NHL protected list. The new proposal would remove this protection and leave the WHL open for unrestricted raiding.

Next season will see the first playing of an all-star game between the all-star teams of the coast and prairie divisions; the use of two linesmen and one inter-divisional trip for each team.

In addition, a $9,000 benefit fund has been set up which will be administered by parties close to the league for injured players. New Westminster's Pete Durham, who received a broken neck in a game here, will be the first player to benefit from the fund.

Leader was disappointed that no representatives showed up from St. Paul, Minn., which had been hinting it would like to enter the league. The St. Paul backers felt they couldn't put together a competitive team, he said, because the National Hockey League wouldn't promise any support.

Leader said Portland, Ore., would "almost definitely" be in the league by 1958, when a planned new rink should be completed.

Has Birdie Stolen Leo's Magic Wand?

HERB 'HAPPIEST GUY'—EARLY RETURN POSSIBLE

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP)—Southpaw Herb Score appears on the way to complete recovery and he may be back on the firing line for the Cleveland Indians again as early as June 9.

Score, struck in the right eye by Gil McDougald's line drive during a game with the Yankees on May 7, Friday received the brightest news since he was hospitalized when Drs. Charles Thomas, an eye specialist, and Donald B. Kelly, the Indians' club physician, told him he had suffered no retina detachment.

"Herb was the happiest guy I've seen in a long time," said Dr. Thomas.

The two doctors were able to get an unhampered look at Score's entire retina for the first time Friday and they reported:

"There is no tear (puncture) evident at this time."

MINOR BASEBALL

Larry Swells List Of Hitting Pitchers

Hitting pitchers are continuing to crop up in Victoria minor baseball circles with the latest coming out of the Saanich Babe Ruth League Friday night as Larry Fletcher paced island Decorators to a 9-1 win over Outdoor Supermarket.

Fletcher hurled a one-hitter and slammed out three big hits, one a bases-loaded triple, to set the tone of Decorators' victory.

It was a tight game for five innings with Ste. Wallace, of Supermarket, matching Fletcher pitch for pitch until the sixth when the winners cut loose with a seven-run rally to ice the decision.

Victoria and District Babe Ruth League teams had a tight game at Beacon Hill Park where, Centennial Optimists barely managed a 5-4 win over Pirates on the strength of three runs in the second inning and a pair in the third while only managing to gain five hits off Brian Gray and Doug Bowker.

Pacific Sheet Furnaces bounced back from a 6-3 deficit in the fourth inning to blast home four runs in the sixth and slip through to a narrow, 7-6 win over Morrison's Chevs in Colt League action Friday night.

Winning pitcher, Jim Marshall, went the route, giving up only six hits while three Morrison hurlers combined to hold the Furnaces to five base knocks.

Redleg Lead 1 1/2 Games; Yanks Lose

By Associated Press

Remember 1954?

Leo Durocher was the manager of the New York Giants and the word around the National League was that all he had to do was wave his magic wand and presto, there was a genie who was ready to grant his every wish.

Maybe no one but Durocher could see the genie, but he got results. The Giants won the pennant and the world series in four straight from Cleveland.

Now it's 1957 and the suspicion is beginning to make the rounds that Cincinnati pilot Birdie Tebbets has borrowed the magic wand and the slightly worn genie who goes with it.

The amazing Redlegs now have won 15 of their last 16 games, including Friday night's 11-1 slaughter of the Giants. They lead the National League by a game and a half and Tebbets is the new genius of the loop.

COMES LIKE MAGIC

He needed a lefthanded pitcher with Joe Nuxhall laid up, and along came Don Gross, a young fellow who throws baseball lefthanded only because he broke his right wrist when he was a little shaver. Gross gave up just five hits in licking the Giants. It was his third start, third complete game and third victory.

Against the sad-sack Giants, Gross needed very little help. Frank Robinson blasted two homers and Gus Bell one. That was more than he needed.

In the only other National League game, Robin Roberts pitched the Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals despite the fact that he was clubbed for homers by Wally Moon and Ken Boyer.

The Brooklyn at Chicago and Pittsburgh at Milwaukee games were rained out.

SOX STRETCH LEAD

In the American League, Chicago White Sox also pulled a game and a half ahead of the pack by edging Baltimore Orioles 3-2. Cleveland Indians moved into a second-place tie with the New York Yankees with a 3-1 triumph over the Washington Senators while the world champions were dropping a 4-1 decision to Detroit Tigers.

The Boston Red Sox squeaked past the Kansas City A's 4-3, in the other league game.

The White Sox had no easy time of it. They collected just six hits off Art Cecarelli but had to overcome a one-run deficit to hang up their sixth straight.

Three home runs—off the bats of Charlie Maxwell, Bill Tuttle and Al Kaline—provided the Tigers with enough mileage to crush the Yanks. Bill Hoft chipped in with an eight-hitter.

Tudor House Gains Third-Place Tie

Jack Harding closed the gate on Re-refined Oil after the second inning of Senior "B" Softball League action at Heywood Park Friday night to pitch Tudor House to their second win of the season and into a third-place tie with Fletcher. Oilers collected three runs in the first and one in the second before Harding settled down. Tudors picked up a pair in the second and singles in the third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh to wind up with a 7-4 victory.

Mary's Clip Arrows In Opener

Senior softball's annual Celebrations Tournament uncorked its first surprise Friday night at Central Park when Mary's Coffee Bar, on the bottom of the senior B ladder, came up with a 10-7 upset of Arrow Furniture.

Mary's started off the first game of the tourney with a two-inning hammering of starter Dawson Briscoe that produced six runs before reliever Charlie Adams was rushed in to take over mound chores.

Adams managed to hold the coffee crew for one inning before he was hammered for four more runs and the winning edge.

It wasn't all one-sided as Arrows, behind 10-2, going into the fifth, found the range on Ron Rogers and drove home four markers in the fifth and a single in the sixth before he could regain his control and stop the flood.

Victoria High Athletes Shatter Eight Records

Victoria High School's track record book was swiftly and systematically ripped into shreds on Friday.

No fewer than eight records topped as the annual week-long meet wound up with a bang with Friday's track events.

Most impressive dusting was accomplished by long-striding Ian Fraser, but it was Bob Beckwith's dramatic senior quarter-mile victory that got the most applause.

Fraser lopped an amazing 35 seconds off his own record in the open two-mile run as he completed the eight laps in 10 minutes 13 seconds.

But for the majority of spectators, if noise was any indication, the senior 440-yard race was the highlight of the day's activities.

Visibly tiring toward the end, Beckwith managed to hold off Dave Work and Rick Kelsall to chalk up a time of 55.4 seconds for the distance.

Also in the nature of an upset was Tom Collett's record-setting win in the half-mile race.

Also the victims of a combination of good running and perfect conditions were former records in the junior boys' 440, the senior girls' 60, the junior boys' 880, the junior boys' mile, the junior girls' relay, and the junior boys' relay.

For the second straight year, husky Rick Kelsall won an aggregate championship. The junior over-all winner last year, Kelsall took three field events and third spot in the 440-yard race for a total of 17 points and the senior crown in this year's meet.

Closest race for individual honors was in the junior boys' division, where Dave Dawson was finally named champion with 13 1/2 points.

GIBSON REPEATS

Individual champions in Esquimalt High School's track and field meet continued a habit of repeating themselves. Take a look at this year's crop, decided after the week-long meet on Friday when the track events were runoff.

First off, there's senior boys' champion Sergi Gibson. If you think you've seen that name before, you're right. He was also the senior aggregate champion last year.

Then there's senior girls' winner Jennifer Savage. If you think you've seen that name before, you're right again. Last year she was the senior champion at Esquimalt, and the year before as a junior she coped the individual crown in both the Esquimalt and the inter-high meets.

Stepping down to the junior ranks, there's lanky Darryl McIntyre, winner of the under-16 boys category. Again, he's a duplicate champion, having gained an identical position in the 1956 meet.

However, the string breaks with the junior girls. Sandra Johnstone, this year's champ, was only second-best last year. But wait till 1958; Sandra will still be a junior then.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

Well Deserved SIDNEY REVIEW

Members of Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce are fully deserving of the award which came their way at the annual meeting of the B.C. Chamber in Vancouver recently. The island group was awarded the silver-plated gavel symbolic of the "most active and progressive Chamber serving a district whose population does not exceed 3,000." President A. M. J. Field, his predecessor in office, Colin Mouat, and the membership at large can all take justified pride in the award.

Salt Spring Chamber has a very large membership, embracing every business house on the island and numbers of retired residents as well. On Salt Spring, Chamber members have set an example to others on working together with a unity of purpose towards many worthwhile goals. We are confident that the zeal shown by the membership at large will continue in the years to come. As a result of the leadership given by the Chamber, it won't be long before it will be forced out of the "under 3,000" population class.

On some of the other islands, residents are toying with the possibility of forming a Chamber of Commerce. Success of Salt Spring's Chamber will be a further incentive.

Injured Man's Booming Voice Brings Rescuers

MILL BAY—Donald C. Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Johnston, Mill Bay, was recuperating in hospital this week from injuries suffered when his right leg was pinned between two logs while working in the woods.

His shouts attracted the attention of Mrs. Alec Bell who telephoned for help.

Rescuers were unable to carry him out because of the dense bush, so the victim, released from the logs, hobbled out himself though in extreme pain.

Said his mother: "I'll never again wish my son didn't have a big booming voice. His shouts would never have been heard otherwise."

KISS FROM MAYOR Percy Scurrah followed crowning of Miss Victoria, Sue Pearson, at Parliament Buildings Friday. He turned over the city for weekend.—(Photos by Bill Halkett)

MONTE ROBERTS

Wonder what urge it is that makes ma and pa pile the car high with blankets pots pans cans of beans and kids and go dashing madly off in all directions every time there is a holiday weekend . . . wonder if Dr. Gordon Shrum the eminent educationist stole his idea for a five-day week-end from yours sincerely . . . wonder if he'd also support me in my plea for triple time for undertime . . . wonder if this forecast will stand up for the weekend; Saturday warmer with mostly scattered; Sunday not bad; Monday good; Tuesday ugh . . .

Wonder what is wrong with our men of science . . . they have not yet developed a strain of grass which grows to one and one sixteenth inches and then stops . . . wonder if anybody else in the world has grass as tough as mine . . . it's so tough it even chokes out the weeds . . . wonder which came first, the lawn or the lawn-mower . . . wonder if I can dream up a reason for not working in the garden which won't result in working in the house . . . wonder what we're celebrating this weekend Empire Day? Queen's Birthday? My birthday? Last Monday but one in the month day? . . .

Wonder if a man who drives a Monarch is a Monarchist . . . wonder if the right definition of tight money is dough spent on booze . . . and if any of the candidates talking about international affairs know anything about international affairs . . .

Wonder what will happen if the kitten succeeds in her objective of catching up with the doggie's tail . . . wonder when the doggie will realize she doesn't really need to be jealous of the kitten . . . wonder if I'll ever have the privilege of securing a licence for the latter . . .

Wonder if what this country needs isn't a good five cents . . . wonder what became of Century Sam? . . . wonder when we're going to start saving the Cougars? . . . and whatever became of the Tyees? . . . wonder if this town will ever support professional sport . . .

Wonder if you agree that the funniest thing on the comic page isn't a comic . . . wonder what I'll do if the paper isn't delivered to our house on time tonight? . . . fire the paper boy? . . . wonder if the Jaycees aren't missing a bet if they don't invite Mao Tse-Tung to swim Juan de Fuca Strait . . . he's supposed to be a super swimmer . . . and the Jaycees could put up a special prize if the Commie president got halfway over and stayed there . . .

Wonder how I got into this . . . and how I'm going to get out . . . wonder if stopping isn't the best way to finish . . .

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Victoria Aged Pensioners Association No. 3 will be guests at a 2.30 p.m. Monday baseball game in Athletic Park.

For fishing without a licence in non-tidal waters, Oren Havelock Wright, Camp Gordon Head, was fined $10 and $3 costs in Colwood RCMP court Friday.

Dickens Fellowship will meet at the home of E. F. Watherston, 515 Marifield, Monday at 8 p.m.

Believed to have been kicked in the back of the head by a grazing horse Friday afternoon, Linda Wilkinson, six, 2832 Parkview, is in satisfactory condition at Jubilee Hospital today.

Her mother, Mrs. Fred Wilkinson, said the little girl told her in hospital she had been feeding the tethered animal some grass on the way home from school at 3.45 p.m.

Apparently the child, who is fond of horses, tried to stroke the animal or brush away a fly, and fell in front of the horse.

The horse was tethered on a boulevard near Austin and Gorge, about three blocks from Linda's home.

TUESDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Electric Club: Montrey Restaurant, 12.05 p.m. Representatives of Fairley Aviation Co. will speak.

Victoria Kiwanis: Empress Hotel, 12.10 p.m. Will Preston, B.C. Telephone Co., will discuss "Microwave Communication."

North Kiwanis: Monterey Restaurant, 6.15 p.m. Guest speaker, Fred Blakeney, Goodwill Enterprises of Victoria Ltd.

Come on, tulip growers, top this one! Mrs. William Barnes, 2147 Oak Bay Avenue, has an Orange Admiral tulip with five blooms on one stem.

In the last week, three persons have come forward with four-headed tulips, and there are lots more with three and two heads. So, anyone like to try for six?

Victoria's unemployment picture continued to improve last week.

The National Employment Office reports 200 persons found jobs during the week, dropping the total to 2,218.

"This is not quite as good as last year's figure, but is approximately 100 below the average totals of the past eight years," said local manager J. H. Fox.

Victoria Social Credit Constituency Association will hold its regular monthly meeting Monday night in the K of P Hall on Cormorant Street at 8 p.m. Victoria Scored candidate Waldo Skillings will be present.

A young man who collided with a sidewalk scaffolding shortly before midnight Friday was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for a nose injury and admitted.

In good condition today is Robert George Twyman, 1438 Fort, who told police he ran into a painter's scaffolding on Broad Street at 11.50 p.m.

Victoria Lions elected Nels Foster president at a meeting Friday. Other officers are Ed. St. Jorre, first vice-president; Jack Horne, second vice-president; Sid Sigway, lion tamer; Milton King, tail-twister; and Earl Cross, George Murphy, Percy Frampton, Sam Taylor, Dr. Harold Turner and Harold McWilliams, directors. Returned by acclamation were Art Cann, secretary, and Jim Wilson, treasurer.

Sweet Sue Keeps Smilin' Through; Queen's Job Is 'Just Wonderful'

Queen Sue isn't "smiling through her tears" anymore. Everything is "just wonderful," and she likes being queen.

Sue Pearson, 18, admitted to "a little nervousness" before the pageantry of the May Queen crowning ceremony at the Legislative Buildings Friday night.

"But it was nice. We had a lovely time," she said today. "Everyone smiled and made me feel so good."

Queen Sue continues her royal rounds tonight at a pageant in Memorial Arena and at holiday celebrations Sunday and Monday.

She was crowned May Queen before a crowd of 2,000, which gathered on the legislative grounds despite threatening showers.

Four wide-eyed moppets who "couldn't see very well," quietly settled on the red carpet at Queen Sue's feet just as the crown was placed on her head by Mayor Percy Scurrah.

Later when Mounties and Frontiersmen dislodged them, Rosalind Ramage, five; Marie Adams, four; Eddie Clifford, five, and his sister Carol, seven, all of Heather Street, gave a simple explanation of the move.

"We couldn't see very well," said spokesman Carol, and "We like her."

Queen Sue expressed royal approval today. "I thought it was sort of sweet of them," she said. "I wasn't at all annoyed."

Ceremony began at 7.30, when Miss Victoria and princesses Grace Chew and Annlyn Florence alighted from the yacht Iorana while the firebug Island Comet laced the air with towers of spray and 11 speedboats cavorted alongside.

From the Causeway float to the lawns of the Legislative Buildings, a royal motorcade bearing the queen and her entourage was guarded by Victoria Girls' Drill Team.

Members of Victoria Chapter, Order of DeMolay, lined the ceremonial area. Four RCMP officers assisted the queen and princesses from the royal car.

Darlene King, eight, and Cheri Wong, nine, of the Chinese Girls' Drill Team, were train bearers to the queen.

Royal procession marched past the brass band of the 5th Independent Medium Battery

as four buglers played a fanfare.

Following the ceremony, the procession paraded briefly on Government, Yates and Douglas, carrying the queen to the first of many attractions, planned for the holiday weekend, an aquatic display at Crystal Garden.

The holiday program includes: Sunday—Indian Festival, Maple Bank Park, 11 a.m.; speedboat races, Thetis Lake Park, 1.30 p.m.; motorcycle rodeo, Athletic Park, 2 p.m. Monday—grand parade, 10 a.m.; army display, Legislative Buildings, 12 noon; horse show, Victoria Riding Academy, 1.30 p.m.

Later Queen Sue, and Princesses Grace and Annlyn, danced away the evening at the Crystal with Jaycee escorts.

KISS FROM EX-QUEEN, Marilyn Dawson, transferred royal obligations to Queen Sue. She will fulfill traditional duty of smiling graciousness at pageant, parade, regatta, rodeo and other events.

ASSISTED FROM ROYAL LIMOUSINE by Mountie, her train carried by loyal subjects, Queen Sue trod red carpet toward her coronation. Artillery bandmen fronted a crowd of 2,000 who gathered to watch annual pageantry. It was a Cinderella story in real life for finance company typist Sue Pearson and will be climaxed by a magic carpet trip to Hawaii after holiday celebrations.

Spectators Right on Top Of Races at Thetis Lake

Spectators will be only a few feet from roaring speedboats along the course of a Thetis Lake regatta Sunday.

Victoria Inboard and Outboard Association meet gets under way at 1.30 p.m.

Officials say the lakeside viewpoints are so close to the course at some places it would be almost possible to leap into the boats.

But this isn't recommended—some of the high-speed outboards will reach speeds of 60 miles an hour—a water speed which lifts boats almost into the air and makes spills a constant threat.

About 40 boats will be working towards annual high points trophies. There are entries from Chilliwack, Vancouver, Campbell River, Nanaimo, Sproat Lake, Cowichan Lake and perhaps Vernon.

Teaser IV, owned by Jim Hutchison, Vancouver, holder of the Canadian 135 Hydro record will also compete.

An added attraction will be a display of water skiing. Officials say there is adequate parking at the lake and refreshment booths will be open.

SWIM TWINS TRY STRAIT

A double-pronged attack on Juan de Fuca Strait will be made Sunday by swimmers Ben Laughren and army pay corps Cpl. Bruce Holmes, the weather permitting.

The two plan to swim side-by-side from Ediz Hook, Port Angeles, at about 1 p.m. in order to catch a fast tide for Race Rocks and Victoria.

They will be taken aboard navigator Dave McMillan's boat, Oyster Clipper, leaving Parson's Bridge at about 9 a.m.

Leadership Greatest Need For Youngsters

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Every boy must have a leader and if the leadership is right he won't go far wrong.

That is Basil Tippet's answer to the problem of rowdiness and youthful delinquency—and Mr. Tippet, as national president of the YMCA, is probably the biggest salesman for youth leadership in Canada.

If Mr. Tippet wasn't so busy selling the "Y" he could probably sell the proverbial refrigerator to the proverbial Eskimo.

This dapper, blue-eyed enthusiast can talk anyone under the table where youth and the YMCA are concerned, and is doing so daily on a cross-Canada tour which brought him to Victoria from his Toronto headquarters today.

GROWING "Y" "Look at the figures," says Mr. Tippet. "We have a world membership of 4,000,000 spread over 78 different countries. We have over 100,000 members in Canada alone and we have 100 associations or centres spread across the country."

"All very well to talk of juvenile delinquency. Do you ever stop and think how many more there would be without the YMCA?"

Fairly bubbling with facts, philosophies and statistics, Mr. Tippet produced a solid local statistic—the fact that 1,200 Victoria boys were taught to swim at the "Y" last year. "Our staff out here are doing a tremendous job," he said, "and they are adjusting themselves to local conditions. That is something we all have to do. The YMCA program of 40 years ago would not attract the youth of today."

"They need a more lively leadership and programs have to be brightened up to meet the competition from TV and the movies."

Mr. Tippet emphasizes that, while the YMCA seeks to develop "a Christian personality," it does not insist on the Christian faith.

He points out that 85 per cent of "Y" members in Cairo belong to the Moslem faith. In Israel 90 per cent are Jewish, while in India 95 per cent are Hindus.

FIRST HOLIDAY MISHAP

Alberni Boy Badly Hurt

Unconscious 14 Hours After Fall From Bike

A Port Alberni boy is victim of the first serious accident to mar the holiday weekend on Vancouver Island.

Thirteen-year-old Jurgen Beckers was unconscious 14 hours after receiving head injuries in a bicycle accident Friday afternoon.

He is still unable to speak and officials at West Coast General Hospital say his condition is "only fair."

HIT PEDESTRIAN

Jurgen was riding down steep 10th Avenue Hill when he collided with a boy pedestrian who was crossing the road. In his fall his head struck a curb.

The other boy was uninjured. School children witnessing the accident said the bicycle was travelling at a high rate of speed when the collision occurred.

B.C.E. to Supply Blue Uniforms For Bus Drivers

B.C. Electric bus drivers soon will be decked out in uniforms again.

The operators wore uniforms until two years ago when the Street Railwaymen's Union protested the 50.50 cost-sharing arrangement with the company.

Since that time their dress has been optional. But today a company official disclosed that tenders have been called for 1,350 uniforms for drivers in Victoria, Vancouver, North Vancouver and New Westminster.

The uniform of matching jacket and trousers will be a "medium blue" color.

Replacements will be provided by the company when justified.

Youngster Hero In Lake Mishap

A 12-year-old Saanich boy saved a swimming companion from drowning last Thursday afternoon but mentioned it to no one.

Rickie Bertram, West Saanich Road, a new member of Royal Oak Boy Scout troop, was one of three youngsters who tried to swim across Beaver Lake.

He and one of his companions made it to the west shore, but the third boy, known only as Tom, got into difficulty and began screaming and shouting he couldn't make it.

Mrs. E. O. Olson, 667 Beaver Lake Road, watched as Rickie, who had started to walk back to the other side, dove back into the lake and swam for the boy.

The swimmer had covered about three-quarters of the distance before giving up and crying for help.

"He nearly drowned me in the struggle," Mrs. Olson quoted Rickie as saying afterward.

"Rickie was kind of shaky and the other boy was awful scared. I asked him if he wanted to come up to the house (a short distance away), but he said he was all right and just lay down on the grass for a while."

"He was a much bigger boy than Rickie. I thought that was pretty plucky for the little kid to go back in and save the bigger boy."

19 Victorians to Attend Capt. Vancouver Ceremony

A group of 19 Victorians will attend a ceremony in Petersham, Surrey, England, on Sunday where B.C. Lieutenant-Governor Frank M. Ross will honor the memory of Capt. George Vancouver.

Thirty-nine other B.C. residents now visiting in England also will attend.

The Lord Mayor of nearby London, Col. Sir Cullum Welch, and other civic officials will take part in laying of wreaths, at the gravesite.

Capt. Vancouver, after whom the island and the city were named, was a pioneer navigator of the Pacific coast. He was born at King's Lynn, Norfolk, June 22, 1757, and Sunday is the 200th anniversary of his birth.

A statue of the early explorer which normally adorns the dome of the B.C. Legislative Buildings in Victoria was recently removed for cleaning and regilding and has not yet been replaced.

Victorians at the ceremony will be Miss Fiona Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Lewder, Major L. Bullock-Webster, Miss Barbara McCaul, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Norrie and Mr. Gordon Norrie, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Senior, Miss Marilyn Berry, Miss H. Bradshaw, Mr. H. Litter, Miss Jane Anne Moore,

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—Was the name of the city of Kelowna of Indian or English origin?—T.L.D.

A.—The Encyclopedia of Canada records events as follows: "Kelowna, a city in the Osoyoos district of British Columbia on the east side of Okanagan Lake and the terminus of the Kamloops-Kelowna branch of the C.N.R. The name is an Indian word meaning 'grizzly bear' and was given by the surveyor of the site of the city in 1891-2."

Q.—What was the name of the steamship which was wrecked near the mouth of Victoria's Outer Harbor and was removed after lying on the reef for years?—W.A.

A.—That was the San Pedro, which had a cargo of coal to deliver in Victoria. Since the wreck was removed the Brochle Light has stood guard over the spot.

NERVOUS COPS RAID 44 'WORSHIPPERS'

NEW YORK (UPI)—A number of nervous-but determined policemen gathered outside the Pentecostal Mission church on lower Third Avenue Friday, hesitated a moment and then broke down the door.

The noise of the splintering door proved highly distracting to some 44 well-dressed "worshippers" inside.

They weren't reading the elaborately-lettered scriptures on the wall, however. They were gathered around a dice table—and about $25,000 in cash. There wasn't a pew in sight.

Police said they had been watching the "church" for some time as the suspected setting place for a veteran floating crap game, but were reluctant to move in until they were sure they weren't breaking up a prayer meeting by mistake.

Prince Takes U.K. On TV World Tour

LONDON (Reuters)—Prince Philip took millions of British children and their parents 40,000 miles around the world Friday night in a television peep at the British Commonwealth, whose people he declared "stick together not by force, but because we all like each other."

The 35-year-old prince, the first member of the Royal Family to present a studio television program, spoke to the children of Britain for 56 minutes in an illustrated lecture of a four-month Commonwealth tour he made last winter.

His audience was estimated to be larger than the previous viewing record here, the 11,500,000 who saw the soccer cup final early this month.

Tele-recordings of Philip's lecture will be flown today to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the Australian Broadcasting Commission.

MODEL ON DESK

His lecture was prepared specially for the young and delivered on the children's television programs of the BBC and the commercial network.

Philip spent about eight hours

rehearsing before the studio lights winked on and he flashed on to about 7,000,000 television screens, seated at a desk on which stood a scale model of the royal yacht, Britannia, in which he travelled for much of his journey last year.

A slight touch of pancake makeup on his forehead was the only concession the prince made to television's glaring banks of lights.

He worked from a series of notes on his desk, and wandered round the studio as he spoke, showing viewers the gifts he had collected on his tour and pointing out the places he had visited on a wall map and a globe.

ALL WENT BACK

He recalled the story of convicts in New Guinea who liked prison much—"they get three square meals a day"—that when they were released during the war to fight the Japanese and told to report back after it was over, did just that—five years later. Not one failed to turn up.

Philip played a record of a group of New Guinea people talking pidgin English and told his viewers that he was known there as "Number one fellow belong Mistress Queen."

When a chart, showing the weight and size of various parts and species of whale was shown, he grinned and said: "think how awful it would be to wake up in the morning with that weight of liver. And as for three tons of tongue to look at—how awful."

'GRAVE THREAT'

Peaceful Atom Radiation Worse Than Fall-Out

BROOKHAVEN, N.Y. (AP)—Is radiation from the "peaceful" atom becoming a greater threat to the human race than the fall-out from testing nuclear weapons?

A noted American biologist thinks the answer is yes.

Dr. H. Bentley Glass of Johns Hopkins University described the dimensions of the danger before the inter-American conference on atomic energy.

GRAVE WARNING

"The threat to mankind of exposure to radiation arising from the peaceful development of atomic energy may outstrip not only that from exposures due to weapons testing and fall-out, but even that from the exposure necessary for medical and dental diagnosis," he said.

The effect on human reproductive capabilities due to radiation from a testing weapons "need not cause undue concern," but isotopes created in a weapons explosion, lodging in the bones of thyroid glands, "may arouse concern regarding their somatic effects." He cited the possibility of causing cancer, the blood disease of leukemia, and shortening of life.

HOT WASTE PRODUCTS

The problem of disposing of atomic waste products which are still "hot" was growing rapidly. "I have seen it stated on good authority that a 100-megawatt heat reactor will produce annually the same quantity of long-lived fission products as the detonation of a one-megaton fission bomb."

"When it is envisioned that by 1965 Great Britain expects to be producing 6,000 megawatts of atomic energy and that within 20 years the U.S. may produce 20,000 to 40,000 megawatts, it is quite clear that the safe disposal of these fission products will be of major proportions."

It was "imperative" that some system of keeping a continuing record of exposure, for every human being, be set up.

Ruins of pyramids, temples and towns of the old Mayan era have been found in many parts of British Honduras.

Blind Craftsmen Happy With New Workrooms Above the CNIB Centre

Newly-completed workroom at CNIB Centre is spacious, fully equipped to give craftsmen the opportunity to turn out finest work. Carpenter and paint shops and a storage room all adjoin the main workroom. (CNIB Photos by Irving Strickland.)

Combination kitchen-lunchroom for blind craftsmen and women is a fine example of modern design. Every kitchen convenience is available, and to seeing visitors, the room is bright and attractive.

By KITT DIXON

Victoria's blind craftsmen have new workrooms.

They can't see the pastel walls, smart lighting fixtures and expansive, tiled floors. They can't visually appreciate the gay luncheon-kitchen, with its green bamboo drapes, attractive dinette suite and latest electrical appliances. They can't see the cheery bouquet of fresh-cut flowers centring the kitchen table.

But they can smell them. They can feel their way about the brand new suite of rooms, in what used to be the attic of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind centre on Blanshard Street and they are overjoyed at the new freedom which is theirs.

From one or two cubby-like rooms where they worked elbow to elbow, the craftsmen and women now enjoy the luxury of ample space and complete equipment.

Their thanks belongs to the memory of Mrs. Helen Crowe, whose bequest made the workrooms possible. Kitchen and lunch room were fitted out through the generosity of Mrs. H. R. Beaven.

The suite includes one large general workroom with plenty of floor space and three large vaults in which to soak the reed used in weaving baskets and the raised sides of trays. There is a carpenter's shop complete with benches and saws, a paint shop completely outfitted and a storage room with adequate space.

Hallways are broad and fitted with guide railings, and atop the stairs, which must be climbed to reach the workrooms, there is a latched gate to protect the blind from missing their footing and falling.

Virtually everything has been considered in planning of these rooms for the blind, and the finished product far exceeds their dreams.

They are proud of the rooms and want the public to know and appreciate what has been done for them. Consequently the workrooms will be open on May 28 from 3.30 to 6 p.m., when the Woman's Auxiliary to the Victoria branch of the CNIB will sponsor an afternoon tea and open house at the Blanshard Street headquarters. Mrs. Andrew Milligan is general convener.

Proceeds from the "house-warming" will be used to inaugurate a new project.

The auxiliary hopes to start a garden of fragrance in which flowers, shrubs and trees with pleasant scents will be grown. Identifying signs in Braille will be attached to the plants, which will probably grow in raised beds, so that those walking in the garden will not have to stoop to obtain full benefit from the fragrance.

A housing project for the blind of Victoria is also being planned.

Color-Splashed Materials For Your Summertime Togs

By PENNY SAVER

Patterned terry cloth for beach outfits is brighter than ever this year, and reflects all the wonderful shades that are so popular in sports clothes. The material, 36 inches wide, costs $1.95 a yard and comes in a delightful variety of patterns. A beach hut and scene has a white background with gold, green and blue pattern, while a red, white and blue boating motif with anchors, lifesavers and such pleases the nautical minded. On a background of pink, yellow or turquoise are white seahorses, while black whales swim in white and grey patterned seas. Chartreuse, turquoise, deep green, black and white accents are used effectively in the designs.

Drip dry cotton, another marvel material to make summer time laundering so much easier, is striped, all widths and shades. Mustard yellow, red or turquoise stripes are teamed with chartreuse, black and white. To make an outfit for outdoor living, buy matching solid color drip dry cotton in any of the dominant shades, and sew some separates. The 36 inch striped material is $1.89 a yard, while solid color is $1.19.

Denim materials in a host of stripes, is available in abundance now, too. You name the color, and you have a pretty good chance of finding just the shade you want. A yard is 89 cents.

More finery for the ladies are festive hats, that are dainty and summery as can be. Lattice-work bands of velvet tubing forms these little chapeaux trimmed with rhinestones of little posies. Shades to go with your afternoon dresses are featured. These hats are $1.98.

Flower headbands in a range of pastels are also very popular with milady. These bandeaux are just $1.

If you would like to know where I shopped, call me at 2-3131. The short call will save you many extra steps on shopping day.

NOSTALGIA HITS OFFICE LIFE

MONTREAL (CP) — Wives who resist their husbands' appeals to "clear that junk out of the attic" might smile when they learn how some husbands treat a similar situation in the office, says Mrs. B. W. G. Holt, head of a Montreal records-management firm.

"If you think the attic's bad, imagine the accumulation of old, useless records in an 80-year-old firm with thousands of employees," she said.

That's the sort of situation she encounters daily. The cause is usually a nostalgic executive who can't bear to throw anything away.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

A tremendous amount of research is being done concerning the problem of cholesterol. This is a fatty substance in the blood. We need some of it but an abnormal amount may lead to clogging of the blood vessels and hardening of the arteries. These factors account for a large percentage of heart attacks and may lead to cerebral embolism or a stroke.

These maiming, crippling and murderous diseases, will be conquered before long now. Although the time of full understanding and control has not yet arrived, much has been learned already about hardening of the arteries.

Recently, at the national meeting of the Federation of American Experimental Biologists, scientists urged that a national campaign be waged to cut down on fat in the diet and fat on the body. There is certainly enough evidence to convince one that diets which are high in fat lead to a high cholesterol level in the blood. Diet is not the only factor however, since some folks manufacture cholesterol out of foods other than fats, and keep a high fat level in the blood even when they are on a low fat diet.

The United States Public Health Service has done some interesting work along this line. They examined a group of middle-aged men as to their cholesterol levels, blood pressure and body weight. Those who were normal in all three ways had a heart attack rate of one-fourth that of the usual rate for the age group which was tested. Those who were abnormal in one of the three conditions had attacks two or three times as often as those normal in all three ways.

So, it seems extremely important to cut fats in the diet (animal fats are the worst) and to lose any extra weight you may have. If you do so, your blood pressure is likely to be normal. Sometimes the simple procedure of losing extra pounds will bring high blood pressure back to normal.

For understanding we can compare blood vessels which are coated and narrowed by cholesterol to rusty pipes.

Full-Skirted White Gowns For 1957's Girl Graduates

By NONA DAMASKE

White, frilly frothy gowns are the fashion highlight in homes where there is a lass who is about to take part in graduation ceremonies.

For many a young lady this is the most important gown she will wear until she chooses a bridal gown. The solemnity of the occasion is enhanced by the pristine whiteness of dainty dresses of the girl graduates. Discreet touches of pastel shades are quite permissible but for the most part white is the traditional theme. Titled Anne Mayhew wears an exquisite dress of pure white nylon net.

Nona

The apron skirt is embroidered with scrolls of white silk and is drawn to the back over a full skirt which has tier upon tier of tiny frills. Draped delicately around her shoulders is a matching stole.

Gail Manning's dark beauty is set off to perfection by her white nylon organdy gown, which has an overall pattern of minute Dresden blue flowers. The overskirt is caught up from the hemline with small nosegays of blue flowers. Her matching stole provides adequate covering for her shoulders during the graduation ceremonies and is then easily removed for dancing.

The young people in today's picture are an extremely busy group and participate fully in the activities of the Oak Bay Senior High School.

Anne is secretary of the Students' Council, a prefect in the high school office, president of the United Nations Club, secretary of the French Club and a member of the Newspaper Club. Anne will enter Victoria College in the fall and major in arts. Journalism is Anne's first love and during the summer will work in the social department of The Victoria Daily Times.

Gail is president of the Y. Teen Club, a prefect, and is also a member of the Newspaper Club which produces the Oak Bay Senior High School paper, the Oakleaf.

During the summer Gail will take a drama course at Victoria College and later will go to Stockton, Calif., to attend the College of the Pacific.

Bill is vice-president of the Students' Council, a prefect, plays senior B rugby, is a member of the High-Y Club, badminton club, photography club, ex-president of the Red Cross Club and a member of the Rover Crew, which is the senior branch of scouting. Bill will enter Victoria College next term and later will go to the University of British Columbia to study law.

Roland holds the very important position of president of the Students' Council and to him will go the honor of giving the valedictory address at the graduation ceremonies.

Roland is a prefect and is ardently interested in sports. He is captain of the rugby team and swimming team and he will play lacrosse during the summer as well as hold a job. He also belongs to the High-Y Club. Roland will attend Victoria College for a year and then go on to the University of British Columbia to study engineering or law.

Standing on the threshold of their chosen careers, these and many other young people look forward with the utmost confidence to a bright and successful future in British Columbia.

Of Interest to Victoria Is Wedding in Vancouver

Friday evening in Ryerson United Church in Vancouver Rev. M. W. Stevenson officiated at the choral service when Miss Dorothy Mary Hamer of Vancouver, became the bride of Bryan Hood Appleton, of Victoria.

White stock, delphiniums and gladioli formed the background for the ceremony uniting in marriage the daughter of Mrs. Douglas G. Hewitt, 1778 West 58th Avenue, Vancouver and the late Mr. Harold G. Hamer, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Appleton, 735 Pandora Avenue, Victoria. The church choir sang selections during the service and soloist was Miss Muriel Cook.

The attractive bride was given in marriage by her mother. The bridal gown of white satin lily of the valley brocade was fashioned with a bouffant floor-length skirt, extending into a chapel train, portrait neckline and lily point sleeves. Her fingertip veil of illusion net misted from a tiny cap of seed pearls. Her bouquet was of white gardenias and lily of the valley.

Matron of honor, the bride's sister, Mrs. John C. McBride of Ingersoll, Ont., wore a floor-length gown of rose beige satin brocade with portrait neckline and short scalloped sleeves. Her Juliet cap was of matching brocade. Bridesmaids, Miss Lucy Mae Anderson, cousin of the bride, and Miss Diane Shildrick wore similar gowns of blue satin brocade in floor length. Their headresses were Juliet style in matching blue. Bouquets of sweetheart roses with stock and ivy completed their ensembles.

The groom's brother, Donald R. Appleton, was best man, and ushers were William Wright and Garnet R. Lineker.

A reception followed at Point Grey Golf and Country Club, where A. T. Alsby proposed the toast to the bride. A three-tier wedding cake surrounded by white candles centred the bride's table.

For travelling on a honeymoon trip south the bride donned a blue tweed suit with matching cashmere topcoat and navy blue accessories.

HERBS IN THE HOME

Favorite Recipes Using Salad Herbs Will Be Enjoyed All the Year 'Round

Last week's column mentions a herb-vinegar for the low-calorie salad-dressing. This is how it is made:

MIXED HERB-VINEGAR

Two handfuls of fresh Tarragon (crushed) and one of green crushed Chervil (chives and parsley like) are included as well, if you like. Also a large clove of garlic (if you don't eat garlic, a few cloves of chives). Place these herbs in a large open-mouthed jar with three bottles of white vinegar; cover and leave to infuse for about 10 days.

Strain carefully through clean muslin, and pour into vinegar bottles.

If you have only dried herbs on hand and still want to make this mixed herb vinegar, the correct quantity would be two teaspoons each herb to one pint vinegar.

TARRAGON VINEGAR

This is best made with True French Tarragon (obtainable here); but I have also made it with the coarser Ukrainian Tarragon though this no doubt would make an expert herbarist shudder! I used a quart preserving jar for this, and filled it first with fresh young Tarragon leaves (the tips are best). The correct measurement is about four ounces of leaves to a quart of vinegar. Be sure the leaves are carefully sorted and washed before use—a shower of rain may have freshened the plants the day before in the garden, but the lower leaves (if used) may also be mud-spattered! Pour wine vinegar into the jar of leaves and then seal it carefully. Leave it sealed for at least a fortnight. Then strain and pour the contents into a narrow-necked vinegar bottle, using a funnel (I used to put a leaf or two in the vinegar-bottle, to show that this was my special Tarragon vinegar as against the ordinary kind; but one sniff of the contents should always confirm this! Once you've used fragrant Tarragon vinegar for making homemade mayonnaise or "sauce tartare," you'll never want to be without it.

Mint-vinegar can be made in more or less the same way; also Basil, Chervil and dill-vinegar.

DRIED DILL CAN BE USED IN SALADS

Dill is so easy to grow, you'll want to make the best use of it you can. I have searched through my scrapbook for a salad recipe using dill, and this vegetable salad-bowl sounds attractive and quick to make.

One head lettuce, ¼ cup sliced scallions or small onions, ¼ cup sliced radishes, dash of black pepper, 1½ teaspoons dried dill, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ sliced, pared cucumber, 5 tablespoons salad oil, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon sugar.

Break washed lettuce into salad bowl. Add onions, cucumber, radishes. Chill until serving time. Place remaining ingredients in small bowl; beat well to mix thoroughly. Pour this dressing over salad. Toss well.

FRENCH DRESSING

You will want to have one of these, if you use or grow herbs. It can be kept indefinitely in a refrigerator, if tightly stoppered.

Three tablespoons olive oil, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, clove of garlic, ½ teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon sugar.

Mix dry ingredients. Pour in oil slowly. Whisk in vinegar. Add garlic.

Aqua and Pink Complements All-White Bridal Ensemble

A trio of attendants in light aqua peau de soie empire gowns formed the entourage for lovely bride, Miss Ruth Lillian Cairns whose marriage to Leonard Trevis Archer took place this afternoon in St. John's Anglican Church in Duncan.

Rev. B. Page heard the vows of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert, Keddie Cairns, Duncan, and the son of Chief Constable, and Mrs. G. J. Archer, Vancouver. Spring flowers in shades of pink, white and mauve decorated the altar. Miss Muriel Evans, organist, accompanied soloist, Mrs. Elsie Carter, who sang "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an original empire model gown of deep lustrous satin fashioned with draped bodice highlighted with frostings of guipure lace. The sheath style skirt was styled with fullness from the sides to the back into a train. A head-dress of braided satin held her chapel veil and completing her ensemble, she carried a cascade of gardenias.

Mrs. James Cairns of Youbou, matron of honor, Miss Ailsa Dickson of North Vancouver and Miss Marilyn Selkirk of Victoria, bridesmaids, were similarly gowned in aqua gowns featuring full back panels. To complement their gowns, they wore pink caps of net and pearls and carried cascade bouquets of pink carnations.

The groom had Darrell Sherrin, Vancouver, as best man. Ushers were Gilman Middleton, Vancouver, and James Cairns, Youbou.

Guests were received at Maple Bay Inn following the ceremony. A four-tier wedding cake centred the bride's table. Dr. G. W. C. Bisset of Victoria proposed the toast to the bride.

For her going-away outfit, the bride wore an imported cashmere suit of dusky rose accented with navy blue accessories and an orchid corsage.

LOUISE DAVIS

We Love Spareribs, But Oh! My Linen Napkins!

I learned how to make "sweet and sour" spareribs from a Chinese acquaintance, and my friends seem to love them. But they are messy to eat, and I am wondering if it wouldn't be all right to serve paper napkins (lots of them) with the meal. I find it difficult to get greasy stains out of the linen ones.

Louise Davis

Louise Davis Answers:

If a dinner dish is as delicious as that, there is no reason why you should deprive your friends of the pleasure, and it seems silly to serve your linen napkins when paper ones would be much more satisfactory and when your guests more than using them much more than soil your linen ones. I wouldn't recommend a formal table setting, however, or even a semi-formal one. The next time you decide to serve your sweet and sour spareribs, it might be a good idea to make light of it when you invite your friends. If you don't mind telling them in advance what they will have, say that you are going to serve one of the "specialties of the house," your favorite sweet and sour spareribs, and, because of the nature of the concoction, your dinner will be most informal. You needn't make any apologies for having paper napkins. If any of your guests should be even slightly surprised, they'll understand before long. If you still have your qualms, you might want to redeem yourself by serving the dinner buffet style.

Petronella Stirs London's Social Set With Her Book 'How To Be a Deb's Mum'

LONDON (Reuters) — London's debutantes, "deeply enmeshed in the annual social season, are taking a beating from the newspapers' few of them read."

Much of the laughter at the deb's expense comes from a new book called How To Be a Deb's Mum, written by a titled society woman who signs herself Petronella Portobello.

The book, published this week, describes the trials and tribulations of a mother organizing her daughter's social debut. "No one knows how caty women can be until they are launching a kitten," she declares.

In these days of heavy taxes, much attention is paid to financial problems. Petronella decided it is not wise for people with relatively little money to bring out a girl too young.

"The cash and bing last for so short a time under present conditions, that if they're too young and shy to enjoy themselves, it's just a pitiful waste."

Mothers connive to get their daughters invited to the greatest possible number of parties, but problems arise. "If Mrs. X entertains Miss Y to dine for Lady Z's ball, then Mrs. Y will have to ask Miss X to the Y-family dance, even though Mrs. X has avoided bankruptcy by refusing to give any ball and has merely held a few dinner parties."

BASTION OF SNOBBERY
The Daily Sketch used the book as a springboard to blast the debutante system as "the last ultimate bastion of 19th-century snobbery" and Deb's mothers as "the instigators, champions and

YOUNG VICTORIANS TO RECEIVE UNIVERSITY DEGREES

University exams are over, and seven attractive young women relax in gardens of the Empress Hotel to discuss their futures. They will be among Victorians who will receive their graduation diplomas Wednesday, at the University of British Columbia congregation in Vancouver. Left to right: Misses Katharine Riddle, Mary Jean Levis, Marilyn De Wolf, Lorraine Brand, Marilyn Bassett, Sheila Hardie and Gloria Molofy. The girls will all be graduated with bachelor of arts degrees. Miss Bassett and Miss Riddle plan to return to UBC next fall for teacher training. Miss Brand, winner of the French Government medal for proficiency in French, will continue at UBC for her masters degree, and Miss Levis will leave Victoria for New Haven, where her future husband, Peter Smith, plans to study for his PhD at Yale. Miss De Wolfe is leaving shortly for Quebec to enter social work. A trip abroad is in store for Miss Molofy, who sails in October for Europe. Miss Hardie will work at University of British Columbia next year.

Dixon-Carroll Wedding Mass Celebrated Today

In Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Oak Bay, this morning, Father M. J. McNamara performed the Nuptial Mass during which Miss Marie Johanna Carroll and Peter Thomas Dixon were wed. Peonies and white stocks were placed on the altar, and colonial bouquets of white lilac marked guest pews for the ceremony.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carroll, 2202 Cadboro Bay Road, was given in marriage by Hedley Irwin of Vancouver.

For the ceremony, the bride wore a gown of white brocade tulle on princess lines with ballerina-length full-flared skirt, V-neckline and short sleeves. Her waist-length veil of tulle was held to a dainty shell cap of nylon trimmed with mother-of-pearl sequins and pearls. Completing her bridal ensemble, she wore pearl jewelry and carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Violet Chungnes was maid of honor. She wore a gold-toned princess style dress fashioned with gold satin ribbon accenting the matching skirt. She wore a small gold hat of matching material and carried bouquet of white lilac and carnations.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dixon, Maple Avenue, Sooke, had Victor Knipik as best man and Robert Kent as usher. Miss Dottie Gubels played traditional wedding music during the ceremony.

A reception party was held in Our Lady of Lourdes Hall, where Mr. Irwin, who gave the bride in marriage, proposed the toast.

For a honeymoon trip to Kelowna and surrounding points, the bride wore a navy blue princess style dress with bell sleeves and scoop neckline accented with white pleated organza. Her accessories were white, and her corsage of lily of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Dixon will live at 2202 Cadboro Bay Road.

Naval Chapel Is Setting For Wedding

Escorted by her father, Miss Mary Elizabeth Jones entered HMCS Naden Protestant Chapel last evening to become the bride of William Lawrence Edwards, in a ceremony performed by Padre D. H. T. Fuller.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Evan Jones, 1135 McClure Street, chose for the ceremony a waltz-length gown fashioned with fitted waistline, full pleated net skirt with overlay of lace panels and full-length lace sleeves. A small coronet held her off-the-face veil of net. Red roses and lily of the valley with white streamers formed her bridal bouquet.

Miss Mary Ruth Wilkinson was the bride's only attendant. She wore a waltz-length gown of light blue tulle with empire waistline and embroidered nylon bodice. Her headpiece was of matching blue and her corsage of pink carnations.

The groom, son of Mrs. A. McKenzie and Mr. F. T. Edwards, Calgary, had Harry Sherman as best man. Ushers were Andy Wong and William Steele.

Spring flowers were placed at the front of the church and ribbons and flowers decorated the guest pews. PO Thompson played traditional organ music. A smorgasbord dinner was served guests at the reception held in the Olde England Inn in Esquimaht. Frank Wilkinson proposed the toast to the bride.

For her going-away outfit, the bride wore a suit of rose barathe, a neutral-toned camel-hair coat, navy accessories and a red rosebud corsage.

Following a motor trip through the United States, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards will live at 2804 Cook Street.

Island Temple No. 8, Pythian Sisters, sewing tea, Tuesday at 8 p.m., home of Mrs. H. Bank, 849 Richmond Road.

Mr. Ernest Barnett will be best man, and Mr. Larry Sawchuk and Mr. Eric Robb, ushers.

In Honor of The Bride

THREE SCENE FOLD-UP

Three scenes in their present state above do not make much sense. They will make sense, however, if you follow out these instructions:
Cut out the entire drawing (in one piece).
To see the first scene, fold dotted line 1 down to meet dotted line 3. Hold this in place and fold dotted line 4 down to meet dotted line 6. What do you see?
Scene 2 will appear as follows: Fold dotted line 2 down to meet dotted line 4. Hold in place; fold line 5 down to meet line 7.
To see the third scene, fold line 3 down to meet line 5. Hold in place. Fold line 6 to line 8. Add colors to respective scenes.

ANAGRAMBLE TEST

In this vocabulary game, you change each of the following words into another word by the addition of the single letter indicated, and arrangement of all the letters as necessary. For example, pate plus I equals pleat.

3. PRIME anagrambled with E is _____.
4. SPASM anagrambled with L is _____.
5. TANGLE anagrambled with E is _____.
6. WREATH anagrambled with E is _____.

STRANGE TALK

The original form of rebus is a simple arrangement of a few letters to designate a word or phrase. An example is:

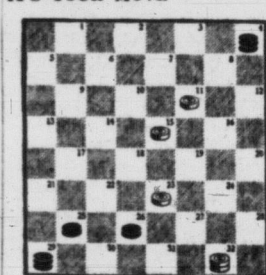

stand oath

Which is a sort of shorthand for "You understand you are under oath." Now, what 10-letter word is represented by

THE STORY: By Immigration Minister Pickersgill in Victoria recently —

THE FACTS: By William McKinstry, regional director, Unemployment Insurance Commission —

THE STORY: Fisheries Minister Sinclair in the Vancouver Sun, March 25, 1957 (The federal offer to assist in developing the Columbia River) would be good only if B.C. voters.

agreed to let the B.C. Power Commission—and not private power interests develop the mighty Columbia.

THE OTHER STORY: Fisheries Minister Sinclair in the Victoria Colonist, May 15, 1957. "I didn't say there wouldn't be help if it were private development."

One of the injustices of our present taxation system which is discriminating against the little man is the income tax charged on mortgage interest paid by home owners.

The corporation can build a factory or an administration building or any other industrial structure and deduct the mortgage interest from its taxable income.

The wage earner on the other hand gets no deduction from his income taxes for interest paid on his home mortgage.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q.—I have seed on my plant of Christmas Rose. When should I sow this, and how long will it be before the new plants flower?—W. N., W. Vanc.

A.—Allow the seed to ripen in the pod, but watch that it does not drop before you gather it. Keep it for a day or two to dry, then sow immediately. Either around the parent plant, or in a flower pot kept outdoors in shade for summer will be satisfactory. Keep dampened during dry weather, and set out the plants about mid-October. Some will flower in two years time, 1959, others later.

Q.—Why are parsley plants so seldom seen for sale if they are one of the hardy perennial herbs?—P. R., Colquitz.

A.—Parsley is at best a biennial herb, since the plants tend to run to flower in their second season. Due to the long tap roots, even the seedlings are difficult to transplant. A few seed sown now, and again in early August, outdoors, will give plants for use all summer, and through winter into next spring.

Plane Missing 3 Months Found in New Brunswick

HALIFAX (BUP)—The RCAF reported Friday that one of its planes had discovered the wreckage of a missing Tri-Pacer light plane missing since Jan. 22 between Fredericton and Moncton with three men aboard.

Wreckage was spotted some 14 miles west of Harcourt, N.B., in a heavily wooded area.

The plane carried New Brunswick Minister of Municipal Affairs, T. Babbitt Parlee, pilot L. C. Russell and civil defence official Howard Smith.

An RCAF helicopter was guided to the scene by an Otter aircraft and its crew found the bodies with the wrecked plane. A government party set out for the scene to conduct a ground investigation.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Gardeners Should Distinguish Annuals, Biennials, Perennials

There are at least two reasons why it is important for home gardeners to be able to distinguish between annual, biennial, and perennial plants. One is their cost, which is relative to the time they serve as garden subjects, and the other is the right time for sowing seed, or for setting out the plants.

Annuals, the plants which mature in one growing season and then die, are the lowest in price.

Biennials make their growth during one season and their flowers the following year, after which they are discarded. These are a little higher in price than annuals.

Perennials, those which give three to five years of bloom before division is necessary (and you then have five or more plants in place of the original one) cost more because they give more.

Then there are what might be called "true perennials", the shrubs and trees, and these command the highest price of all.

Our main interest now is the second reason, for it is nearing the time to sow seed of those in the biennial group, the two-year plants.

FOR SEPTEMBER

Under home garden conditions this work should be done around the end of May in order to have sturdy, well grown plants to set out in late September and withstand the winter.

Quite a few gardeners leave the sowing until later and this results in plants too small to make a good display the following spring.

In order that home gardeners may obtain seed in time, or place an order with their plant supplier for quantities needed to set out this fall, the most popular biennials are included in the following list.

Wallflowers and forget-me-nots are probably the top favorites. There are many shades in the newer strains of wallflowers which are obtainable in separate colors enabling the home gardener to make some startling and pleasing spring displays.

NEW SHADES

Forget-me-nots, often listed under myosotis, are now found in colors of white, pink, carmine and shades of blue, and there is an extra dwarf strain for edging small beds and borders.

Foxgloves, or digitalis, have been improved to produce blooms which are notable for their spotting and others with especially large flowers. The newest and most interesting is the Excelsior strain which has its flowers facing outwards around the entire stem instead of all facing in one direction. Canterbury Bells (campanula) may be had with single bells, double bells, and the popular cup and saucer arrangement of flower, and in colors of white, pastel blue. These shades make beautiful arrangements for June weddings.

A plant which is both useful and pleasing because it blooms so early is lunaria, the money plant or honesty. The large flat seed pods, like half-dollars,

Körria japonica, cut each stem back to where new side shoots have started.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Because of their masses of fibrous roots, rhododendrons, azaleas and heathers can be planted at any season.

Alpines, and other plants sold in pots or cans, may also be set out at any time.

Lobelia, petunia, mimulus (monkey flower), annual aster, verbenas, stock, may now be set into permanent positions in beds and borders.

Complete the planting out of violas and pansies.

See that the moisture-loving species of primula receive plenty of water (Primula rosea, P. pulvifera).

Shrubs located under wide eaves and against concrete foundations will probably require watering now.

Sow bush and runner beans, and include some bush limas.

Set out early celery plants in previously prepared trenches.

Sow sweet corn, at least three short rows in a close block for pollination.

Set out well-hardened tomato plants in districts free from late frosts.

Remove old flowers from azaleas and rhododendrons.

Pieris floribunda, lily-of-the-valley bush, requires no pruning unless for removal of dead wood.

Körria japonica, cut each stem back to where new side shoots have started.

Q.—What kind of sandpaper is best for finishing a piece of furniture?—A.F.P.

A.—Assuming you're hand-finishing the piece, choose a garnet-type paper. The abrasive substance is the same mineral which forms the garnet, a semi-precious jewel. It is hard, sharp and stands up well for relatively long use.

Crippled Editor's Paper Wins City Newspaper Guild's Award

By DINAH KERR

In Carole McIntyre's life of "supreme endeavor and perseverance over adversity" came another personal victory today.

The Woodlands Junior High School paper "Dragnet" at Nanaimo, which she edits, was judged best junior high entry in the Victoria Newspaper Guild's School Awards Contest Friday night.

Winning senior entry was "The Phoenix," edited by Ted Charesworth at Alberni District High School.

Both papers were chosen on the basis of all-round excellence. The five judges gave special mention to the "extraordinary" art work and layout in "Dragnet."

DIDN'T KNOW

They did not know that Carole, 17, attended a regular school for the first time in 1955.

Handicapped by a crippling disease at the age of five, she entered Woodlands school on crutches and coped with the hustle and bustle of hallways and stairs without assistance.

She completed grades seven and eight in one year, was elected class president and served on the students' council as well.

Last September, Carole entered grade nine and became editor of the "Dragnet."

SETS STANDARD

"It is Carole who sets the standards of writing and illustration," newspaper sponsor Peter G. McLoughlin said in a "biographical note," kept secret from judges.

"She knows exactly what she wants and by charm, tact and firm executive ability, she has her newspaper staff producing at a very high level for junior high school. She edits everything and plans the layout completely."

When other students were taking physical education last year, Carole received extra art instruction from teacher Gino Sedola.

"It was soon evident that Carole had great potentialities in art and crafts," Mr. McLoughlin said.

As editor of "Dragnet," she cuts all the illustrations on wax stencils and "has the art of shading them at her fingertips."

Carole's father died last November and her mother is in poor health. Soon she will have to leave school to earn her living.

"She deserves at least one good break," Mr. McLoughlin said. "Could some B.C. publication find a position for her as an illustrator?"

Abbotsford Refugee Camp To Close Down 'Shortly'

VANCOUVER (CP)—P. W. Bird, ordered several weeks ago after reports circulated that the camp, with 1,600 refugees, was overcrowded and lacking in facilities. Mr. Bird said the movement away from Abbotsford was made possible through a stepped-up program of placing refugees in private homes.

ROSS SEES RCMP RIDE

SHREWSBURY, Eng. (CP)—Canada's visiting RCMP contingent drew a record crowd, estimated at 20,000 to the Shropshire and West Midland Agriculture Show Friday. Among the visitors watching the RCMP's famous musical ride were Hon. Frank Ross, Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, and Mrs. Ross.

Jaycees Collect $1,000 in Scrap

The Junior Chamber of Commerce has collected about 80 tons of metal worth $1,000 in its scrap drive to raise funds for the mass swim across the Strait of Juan de Fuca this summer.

Its objective is $10,000. Jaycee director Jim Nicol said the chamber has been swamped with offers of metal since the scrap drive began three weeks ago.

He said it will take two or three weeks for trucks to catch up on present collections.

Found: Way to Break Russian Red Tape

HANNOVER, Germany (AP)—A Bengal tiger got loose on the Berlin-Paris Express Friday night and chewed up Iron Curtain red tape.

The tiger, young, strong and unsocial—was put aboard in a crate in West Berlin for a trip to a Dutch zoo.

He burst from the crate after the express had passed behind the Iron Curtain on its westward run toward Hannover.

A conductor happened into the baggage car, saw the tiger on the loose, got out of there fast, locked the door, and spread the alarm.

At the Communist East German frontier east of Hannover there normally would be some red tape about the baggage car and what it holds.

But this time the Iron Curtain guards knew what was in there, and they were in no mood to pass on a tiger's travelling credentials.

They waved the train on through and sent a warning to station officials in West Germany's Hanover, where the tiger was finally caged.

Operation Polio, part one, was completed Friday night.

Everyone agreed it was a success. A total of 15,563 persons received their first injections during the week.

Victoria Medical Society, which sponsored the drive; the Pharmaceutical Association, which supplied the Salk vaccine at cost; and the Registered Nurses' Association, which assisted the doctors, all were praised.

The efficient organization was evident at the two inoculation centres, the nurses' residences at St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospital, where there was almost no waiting.

Second injections will be given next month, and the third "booster" shot in January.

In deep-freeze surgery the heart is stopped for up to eight minutes while doctors open it, repair the wall inside, and close it again.

JUDGE IRKED

Lawyer Sent From Court, Won't Return

VANCOUVER (CP)—A defence counsel Friday for the second time failed to show up in Assize Court after being ordered from the court Thursday.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson had ordered senior defence lawyer Dugald J. McAlpine to leave the court because of a remark he made while addressing a jury in defence of three men charged with criminal assault.

Neither Mr. McAlpine nor his assistant, C. S. Ruhr, returned to the court when requested to do so 30 minutes after the defence counsel was ordered out.

Mr. McAlpine had sent a message to Mr. Justice Manson saying he wished to consult with another lawyer before returning. The case was adjourned.

OUT OF CONTACT

When court assembled Friday, crown counsel W. A. Schultz announced he had not been able to contact Mr. McAlpine. The case was adjourned to Tuesday, the jury before calling his defence when Mr. Justice Manson told him he must confine his remarks to outline of evidence.

"Of course, I do not agree with that skeleton enunciation of it... I am fed up with interruptions," the lawyer said to the jurors.

When the judge asked Mr. McAlpine whether he was referring to his remarks, the lawyer said he would make no definite statement.

Mr. Justice Manson: "I take it then, Mr. McAlpine, that you have made no reference to any remarks or interruptions by me."

Mr. McAlpine: "I did not say that."

WITHDRAWAL ORDERED

The judge: "All right, Mr. McAlpine, you will withdraw from the case. You cannot be heard further. I expect courtesy from an officer of this court. I do not have to take nasty remarks from a man who should be loyal to the court."

Mr. McAlpine: "Very good, my lord."

Being tried are Charles Thomas McLean, John Knowlan and Alfred Raitlon. They are accused of picking up a 31-year-old woman last July 31 on the pretext of taking her to a party, taking her instead by car to Stanley Park and there criminally attacking her.

more fluorine in one day than they would in 10 years of fluoridated water," Dr. McLuhan told the Association at its 41st annual convention in the Empress Hotel.

"No medical question has had such long and intensive study as water fluoridation," he declared.

"Compare it to polio vaccine. It has been generally accepted in only a space of two years, but fluoridation has been under study since 1878."

Water is now fluoridated in Prince George and Smithers, and Vancouver will vote on it soon.

"Several other B.C. towns are also planning fluoridation," Dr. McLuhan said.

The dental association set up its fluoridation committee last year to compile accurate information for all interested groups and to co-ordinate all B.C. fluoridation programs.

Dr. McLuhan said many dentists believe the benefits of fluoridation apply only to children up to eight or nine years.

ALL AGES

"But it has been proved that fluoridation will cut down tooth decay in adults as well," he said.

"Several years ago, fluoride insecticides were used in the Okanagan and the wind carried it over Lake Okanagan."

"The fluorides dissolved in the lake and one test showed three parts to every 1,000,000 parts of water. At the same time, a startling drop in tooth decay was noticed."

"But when they stopped using the fluoride insecticides, the amount in the water dropped and tooth decay increased rapidly."

The dentists' three-day convention wound up today with the annual meeting of the association, at which Dr. L. W. Beamish was elected president in succession to Dr. W. B. Milburn.

2 Engines Out, Giant Airliner Lands Safely

PARIS (UP)—An Air France Super-Constellation lost two of its four engines past the fatal "point of no return" in mid-Atlantic today, but the pilot nursed it safely from a cruising altitude of 18,000 feet to a tense landing at Gander, Nfld.

The 13 passengers slept through the drama while crewmen in the plane and rescue forces at Gander sweated out five harrowing hours of flight on half-power.

Paris airport officials said it might have been a different story if the big plane had been carrying a full load instead of coasting along with only 13 passengers.

Air France officials here said veteran pilot Raymond Dupont shepherded his big 70-ton airliner to a perfect landing at the Canadian airfield.

Most of his passengers—but not his eight fellow crew members—were unaware how narrowly they had escaped a deadly force-down in the freezing ocean.

The first engine had gone dead with about 800 miles to go on the 1,968-mile hop from Shannon, Ireland.

A U.S. air-sea rescue plane which had mounted guard over the crippled Connie when the second engine conked out two hours later, touched down.

Officials said they could remember only one precedent for an European plane in similar circumstances.

In 1947 Commandant Charles Le Chevallier landed a Constellation in Casablanca, Morocco, after flying at an altitude of 90 feet above the storm-lashed Atlantic.

Strikers Mourn Death Of Gaspé Bishop

MURDOCHVILLE, Que. (CP)—Hundreds of union members today mourned the death Friday of Most Rev. Albini Leblanc, bishop of Gaspé—the man who had given them hope for a settlement of their 69-day-old strike.

Bishop Leblanc said Thursday he was willing to intervene in the dispute if he was asked by both the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) and Gaspé Copper Mines Limited.

The statement was greeted enthusiastically by the union. USWA spokesman Emile Boudreau Friday asked the bishop to step in and "obtain justice for members of his diocese." The company did not comment on the offer.

TRIED TO INTERVENE

Bishop Leblanc said he tried, unsuccessfully, to intervene when the strike broke out.

"The company refused the bishop's offer of conciliation," Mr. Boudreau said. "The union has always been ready to discuss the strike."

The 63-year-old bishop was killed

VANCOUVER CHINESE SLAIN

'I've Just Murdered a Man' Says Suspect in Knifing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A young man was taken, handcuffed, to police headquarters today, two hours after a Chinese confectionery store operator had been found dead of knife wounds in the rear of his store.

(C. H. Klingbell, 23, B.C. Electric employee, was charged with murder, British United Press reported this afternoon.)

First police to reach the scene said a young man was standing in the store with a knife in his hand when they arrived. They found the store operator, identified as Lee Yung lying dead in a back room. His throat was cut.

B.C. INDIANS GIVE POPE WOOD CRUCIFIX

A "totem" crucifix carved by British Columbia Indians has been presented to Pope Pius XII on behalf of Roman Catholic Indians of Canada, it was learned here today.

The presentation was made Friday by the superior general of the Oblate Fathers in Vancouver City on the occasion of the Pope's 40th episcopal anniversary.

The crucifix, which stands about two feet high, was carved by Jimmy John, a Nootka Indian from Cedar, B.C., five miles south of Nanaimo, and finished by Percy Paul of the Squamish Indians near Vancouver.

'UNHOPPY' DAY FOR CANADA

French Frog Flips Into Fast Favor

ANGELES CAMP, Calif. (AP) — Qualifying jumps in the 31st annual Calaveras Jumping Frog Jubilee began today under a pall of rain clouds—suitable to the frogs, especially the foreigners. They always get here kind of dehydrated.

Some 20 frogs from 15 foreign countries are participating. The event is billed as an International Frog Olympics. It commemorates Mark Twain's famous story of the "Jumping Frog of Calaveras County."

CANADIAN THREAT

Oldtimers are worried about a huge Canadian import, Miss Assignment, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp's entry. The Canadian hopper makes all other entries look like pygmies.

A foreign entry with hopes of surpassing the existing world record of 16 feet 10 inches is Won Long Hop, the Free China champion from Formosa, sponsored by China Air Transport—Gen. Claire Chennault's air line.

A French frog, Denise, from the Seine near Paris, was due to arrive by helicopter today. Denise reached San Francisco Friday night via Trans World Air Lines. A TWA spokesman described her as "rather a petite frog, very soignée."

Australia Drought

MELBOURNE, (Reuters) — A serious drought threatens vast areas of eastern Australia, where sheep and cattle producers are facing feeding hardships.

In New South Wales, where no useful rain has fallen for four months, an estimated 80 per cent of the state is experiencing the worst conditions in 10 years.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Eternal God, in all the relationships of this day help us to live by the values of Christ. May our ideas of duty and honor and justice be those which Thou hast revealed in his life. So may we be his faithful witnesses and gain a measure of the goodness that we find in Him; in Christ's name. Amen.

Benny Cheats Death

Courage, Valor, Luck Play Part in Rescue

(UP and AP Dispatches) MANORVILLE, N.Y. — The death-defying valor of volunteer rescuers, a steady flow of oxygen, the indomitable courage of the victim—and luck—were credited today with the rescue of seven-year-old Benny Hooper from the bottom of a well shaft where he was entombed for nearly 24 hours.

Suffering only from exposure and shock, the slender, blue-eyed boy was reported resting comfortably and in good condition at Bay View hospital in nearby Mastic Beach. He took his first solid food—cereal.

Doctors, who expressed amazement at the child's survival in the bottom of the 10-inch pit, said he was regaining his color and was well on the road to recovery, although suffering from a shoulder injury.

"He's doing fine," said the boy's father, Benjamin Hooper. Hooper and his wife, Borg-hild, kept a vigil at their son's bedside.

"Mommy" was his first word and then he called for "Daddy," said Dr. J. H. K. the attending physician. "He is able to talk and asked for food. Everything is on the up and up."

Benny took some beef broth, hot tea with sugar and ginger ale. He was given penicillin as a guard against the possibility of respiratory infection. His temperature was nearly normal.

Kris said doctors would need to keep a close watch for 24 hours because of the danger of pneumonia in such cases of exposure.

Benny's rescue was a triumph of perseverance for 200 grimy workmen who battled hour after desperate hour to save the boy. They fought with oxygen lines, power shovels, piping, wooden shoring—and sweat.

They fought with the hopes and prayers of millions.

They never gave up hope even when it appeared that only a miracle would save the boy.

And a "miracle" is just what many of the weary men called it.

'Change Proposed' For Reply to Russ Says Spokesman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressure by Russia for a Western reply to its latest disarmament plan has set off a top-level review of United States disarmament policy.

The state department said Friday new decisions are in the making. They are expected by the end of next week.

Harold E. Stassen, U.S. representative in United Nations disarmament talks at London, who returned to Washington Friday, reported to State Secretary Dulles and other officials.

A state department press officer said Stassen made "a full report" on the negotiations and had answered a number of questions which were not publicly reported.

"The meeting today," he said, "was the beginning of discussions which will lead to further formulation of the United States position in the light of various pending proposals, including the Soviet proposals of April 30."

NEED REPLY

It was understood that Soviet representative Valerian Zorin told the five-power meeting in London a few days ago that Russia did not see how any further negotiating could be effectively carried on until Western powers replied to the Soviet plan.

The London talks were recessed Thursday until May 27. The Russian proposal, which covered all aspects of disarmament from ending hydrogen bomb tests to cutting military manpower and setting up a limited system of international aerial inspection, has interested American officials chiefly on two points.

In the first place, it was interpreted here as meaning that Russia accepts the principle of aerial inspection as applied to Soviet territory.

In the second place, it declared Russian readiness to approach a disarmament agreement by relatively easy stages instead of insisting on initial development of a complete program, beginning with abandonment of atomic weapons as instruments of war.

Coldwell Urges UN Action on H-Bomb

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF leader M. J. Coldwell said Friday night radioactivity in the atmosphere from atomic and hydrogen bomb explosions is nearing the danger point.

He appealed to Prime Minister St. Laurent to initiate a movement among the world's smaller powers to put a stop to bomb tests by the United States, the United Kingdom and Russia. It was a matter for decision by the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Mr. Coldwell said scientists agree that when a certain level of radioactivity is reached human health both now and in the future will be seriously endangered.

"And we are nearing that level," he said.

The great powers of the world had reached a diplomatic impasse on methods to halt bomb tests. Proposal after proposal had been made but nothing had happened.

"The Soviet Union has hypocritically continued with its tests in blatant disregard of the facts that scientists are beginning to discover about the dangers of these tests. So has the United States. Now the United Kingdom, too, is joining in the hydrogen bomb race.

"It is now time for the smaller nations of the world to take a hand," he said. "This question is not just a matter for the great powers to decide. The tests that the Soviet Union and the United States are conducting are contaminating our atmosphere as well as that over the rest of the world."

"... Canada could use her position in the Commonwealth and the United Nations to take an imaginative lead in this matter and bring this great issue before a special session of the UN ... I urge the prime minister even in the midst of this election campaign not to delay."

The statements were included in a recorded speech broadcast over the CBC Trans-Canada radio network originating in Toronto.

ON THE HUSTINGS

Rally Tuesday
For Diefenbaker

Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker will highlight another busy week of election campaigning here next week.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who spoke in Victoria last March soon after his election as national leader, will speak at a public rally Tuesday night in Memorial Arena.

The arena has a seating capacity of more than 6,000, and local Conservative officials predict the meeting will be the largest political rally ever held on Vancouver Island.

Mr. Diefenbaker drew a capacity crowd of 1,500 in Central Junior High School auditorium the last time he spoke here.

TO SEE VETS

The Conservative leader will arrive at Pat Bay airport at 3 p.m. Tuesday and plans a visit to Veterans' Hospital before his evening address.

The following day, Mr. Diefenbaker will motor up-Island, with public meetings scheduled at Duncan, Nanaimo and Courtenay. He flies to Vancouver from Comox Thursday morning.

The other main event locally next week is the Social Credit rally at the Royal Theatre Friday night which will feature Premier Bennett as speaker.

It is the party's first big pitch in the Victoria area and local candidates Noel Bell (Esquimalt-Saanich) and Waldo Skillings (Victoria) will be on the platform.

Federal Liberal cabinet ministers will continue their active campaigning in B.C. next week, but only one will be in Victoria.

He is Health Minister Paul Martin, who is scheduled to make a brief address at a public reception in the lower ballroom of the Crystal Garden at 12:25 p.m. Thursday.

UP-ISLAND

Mr. Martin will spend most of his time up-Island and plans speeches at Parksville Thursday afternoon and Nanaimo in the evening.

Finance Minister Walter Harris will be in the Vancouver and Lower Fraser Valley regions for one day on Tuesday.

Defence Minister Ralph Campney and Fisheries Minister James Sinclair will both be campaigning throughout the province next week.

Mr. Campney will address a public meeting in Duncan on Friday.

In addition to the parties' "big guns," the eight local candidates have a full schedule of meetings throughout the week.

(Details will appear in The Times each day.)

Leon Ladner, co-chairman of the Progressive-Conservative federal election campaign in B.C., Friday night challenged Fisheries Minister James Sinclair to debate Columbia River power development.

"We are not going to force control and ownership on the province that properly owns it," Mr. Ladner told a meeting at Nelson. "It is up to the provincial government to decide what it is going to do."

Mrs. Evelyn Fingerson, Social Credit candidate for Coast-Caplan, said Friday night she was told reliably that Union Steamships Ltd. is selling out "to a foreign country."

SUBSIDY BOOSTED

Mrs. Fingerson, speaking at a meeting with Premier Bennett at Powell River, did not elaborate except to say that Senator S. S. McKen and F. B. Brown and associates of Vancouver held 147,000 of the company's 158,000 shares.

She said the company's $200,000-a-year federal subsidy was boosted by $300,000 in the past year.

Fisheries Minister Sinclair said in Kitimat Friday night Canada is the envy of the world.

The Canadian standard of living is the second highest in the world and it is to Canada, not the United States, that immigrants are trusting their most precious possessions, their own lives and the lives of their children," he said.

"Canada has risen during the last eight years from 14th to fourth trading nation in the world," Mr. Sinclair said.

"We have done this by expansion of foreign trade and by expansion at home. Every province is surging ahead from coast to coast."

SAM WOODSON
... answered call

RESCUER SAYS:

God Said Go
And Help Get
That Boy Out

Editor's note: Sam Woodson, a 28-year-old Negro construction worker, was the first person to reach Benny Hooper, Jr., in his sandy tomb. Here is Woodson's story.

By SAM WOODSON

As Told to United Press
MANORVILLE, N.Y. (UP)—I heard about that boy at work and all of a sudden I got the sensation that God was saying to me, "Sam, you must go and help get that boy out."

I went home and told my wife, "I'm going to see if I can help that boy. My wife called her sister and they went to the church to pray for him."

I went to the boy's house. People tried to keep me back but I pushed through. I was in and out of that hole all day.

I kept thinking, "God told me to come here so the boy must be alive and I'll get him out." I got tired but I thought of my little girl and it helped keep me going.

I was digging carefully when I saw the jacket covering the top of Benny's head. I started to brush the sand away from his coat when I heard him whimper.

Just then we started to cave. I grabbed him a little bit and he looked at me and started to cry. "I didn't have a chance to talk to him. I talked to God."

I had to yank Benny pretty hard because the sand really started coming. And when I yanked, John (Arambo, the worker behind Sam) yanked me to keep me from letting go. But we got him out.

When we found him, I turned to John and told him, "the boy is alive, thank God."

I looked at that boy and looked into his big blue eyes and I tell you, "that was the happiest moment of my life."

VATICAN CITY (UP) — Pope Pius XII invested Polish primate Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński with his symbolic red cardinal's hat today and urged him to be "intrepid even unto death and the shedding of blood."

CHRONOLOGY of the RESCUE

MANORVILLE, N.Y. (UP) — The timetable of suspense in the ordeal of Benny Hooper:

THURSDAY

7.50 p.m.—The boy falls in the well.

7.52—A frantic Benjamin Hooper Sr. drops Benny a rope, but child cannot hold onto it.

7.53—Dad calls police. West-hampton air force base, and fire department, begs for oxygen equipment.

8.20—Oxygen arrives. Manorville fire department, other rescuers, arrive.

8.30—Manorville firemen start digging hole next to well. Benny is unable to hold on to hook dropped down.

9.15—Power bucket shovel goes in operation to widen crater next to well. At 4-foot depth, sand is struck and crater starts filling in. Workers start digging manually.

11.00—Eight-foot depth is reached. Thirteen feet to go to match well's depth.

FRIDAY

1 a.m.—Seven feet to go.

3.00—Reach 21-foot depth. Diggers start cutting across 12 feet to the well.

3.10—Small earth slide in excavation stops work. After shoring operation, work resumed.

4.15—Hooper calls down well to Benny: "Move your hand." No answer.

6.00—Worker sees movement at shaft bottom.

6.10—Cross-tunnel shoring collapses. Digging must start over.

7.30—Dr. J. H. Kris says longer the boys stays down in well, slimmer are chances for survival.

11.30—Kris and firemen veto proposal to use vacuum to pull sand out of well on grounds it would displace more sand and draw out oxygen.

Noon—Slowly the sand sifts down and buries outstretched hand of Benny Hooper. Hope for rescue lessens.

2.10 p.m.—"This is a lost cause," says Suffolk County chief deputy sheriff Phillip Coros. He announces a derelict and bucket will be used to try to remove sand quickly and reach the boy.

3.42—Section of 48-inch piping fitted into rescue shaft. Eight minutes later, an eight-inch pipe is lowered into well so oxygen hoses may be pushed through to bottom.

5.15—Rescue shaft operation continues as new piping is sent down.

7.00—Benjamin Hooper, Sr., comes out of house. Air of excitement in the Hooper backyard becomes more intense.

7.20—Final section of pipe fitted in place.

7.32—Rescuers make contact with well shaft. The call comes: "He's alive!"

7.41—"He's all clear," someone shouts up from the rescue shaft. "He looks fine."

7.46—Benny Hooper is brought up from what almost was his grave. The ordeal is over.

Tories, Socreds
Fought Pensions
Claims CCFer

Both Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties are asking the public to forget they once opposed old age pensions, Victor Williams, Victoria CCF candidate, told a meeting of 20 persons Friday at Woodworth Hall.

The Conservatives 30 years ago were opposed to any form of pension, he said.

"The Conservatives were willing to crucify any person over 70 who could not work."

Mr. Williams said PC Leader John Diefenbaker's "intent is honest," but I doubt "his party backing."

Mr. Williams said Socred national Leader Solon Low in 1945 asked if he favored old age pensions and other forms of insurance that now exist, said he was opposed to them.

He termed the Liberal attitude towards old age pensions "worth $6."

He condemned the present federal government for spending huge sums on national defence, yet money had to be begged for cancer patients.

Mr. Williams said many people who take over fund appeals are "racketeers."

All other political parties "evade the issues. The meat of the matter is—humanity."

Bennett Reveals B.C. Made
Earlier Offer on Columbia

POWELL RIVER—Premier W. A. C. Bennett said at a Social Credit campaign meeting here Friday night he had made a "secret" offer to Ottawa for federal-provincial development of Columbia River hydro.

The premier said that last July he offered to let the federal government take over negotiations for downstream benefits, with certain conditions attached.

"I told Mr. Lesage (Federal Resources Minister Jean Lesage) that I would leave the matter of downstream benefits up to the federal cabinet, if they thought they could get a better deal than B.C.," Mr. Bennett said.

20 PER CENT
"But I told him that B.C. wanted 20 per cent of the downstream power returned to the grid system at Vancouver, as long as they built and paid for all the dams on the Columbia."

"They would have to give us ownership of the dam and we would retain the right to build or control construction of power-generating plants on the river."

The offer was refused, said the premier. "And yet the federal government was criticizing me for selling out to U.S. power interests."

He said the federal government would be able to finance construction of the dams out of its share of the downstream benefits which, he said, Ottawa claimed should be 50 per cent of extra power made possible by the storage dams in B.C.

Premier Bennett defended the government's agreement with Swedish industrialist Axel Wenner-Gren.

At first the proposal to develop a 40,000-square mile area in the Rocky Mountain Trench "sounded a little far-fetched," the premier admitted.

"So I asked them to put down a $300,000 bond, which they did."

"There are no secrets, no con-

N.Y. Building

Woman Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—One woman was killed today in the collapse of a three-story brick tenement building on the lower east side.

Rescuers unidentified tentatively as the woman, identified tentatively as that of Mrs. Anna Levkovic, who had occupied a second-floor apartment.

Police said they were convinced no one else was trapped.

Chief Fire Marshal Martin Scott said registered letters were sent to tenants Friday advising them the building was in a dangerous condition and suggesting that they move.

Five persons lived in the building at Pitt Street, an area just east of Manhattan's Chinatown.

Liberals Give People's Money
To Exploiters, Says Dr. Thomas

The Liberal government in Ottawa has the worst record in Canada for "taking money away from the people and turning it over to private exploiters and buccannery," Dr. J. H. Thomas, CCF candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said Friday night.

"We of the CCF believe the wealth that is created by the people should be shared by the people," he told a CCF meeting in the Marigold Community Hall.

"We will not rest content until what we know as capitalism has been eradicated and replaced by commonwealth Socialism."

Dr. Thomas stoutly rejected a rival party claim that the CCF's Winnipeg Declaration of 1936 was an abandonment of the Regina Manifesto in 1933.

"That is quite untrue — we have never changed our basic concept. All those who do not agree with this concept should support those parties which support the private monopoly enterprise system."

He said the CCF believed in a future society in which the "competitive law of the jungle" would be superseded by "the brotherhood of man, the recognition that we are all our brothers' keepers."

"We are a long way from the realization of that objective," Dr. Thomas said, "although we have made considerable progress in the realm of political liberties."

The CCF, he said, had been responsible for most of the social reforms brought about in spite of capitalist domination.

"The old-age pension, in the first place, was a tribute to the forerunners of the CCF and it was only because of continuous pounding by the CCF that the pension was raised even to its present level."

Dr. Thomas denounced the Liberal government for increasing the federal old-age pension by only $6. He said the present $46 pension was the equivalent of about $38 in 1949.

"The Liberal government says it cannot afford more, but it can afford to give away millions to its friends in the oil companies."

TO GET VOTES

He declared the Social Credit party had "deceived the people" by offering a pension of $100 a month.

"All it really offers is a federal pension of $60—the other $40 is very questionable since it would depend on the nature of provincial governments, and the means test involved."

The CCF proposed an outright pension of $75 paid by the federal government without a means test and payable anywhere in the world where the pensioner lived — not just in Canada as at present.

"The pension should be raised to a purchasing value at least equivalent to 1949. So should the family allowance."

INTOLERABLE

Dr. Thomas said the financing of school costs by the municipalities was becoming "an intolerable burden."

"This system may have been all right in New England and Ontario in pioneer times. Today it is obsolete. It means that every time a new school building goes up, the local homeowner has to bear the burden."

"We believe the federal government should make direct education grants to the provinces."

Urging an overall national health scheme, Dr. Thomas said:

"Every man, woman and child is entitled to full medical care — hospital treatment, care of eyes, teeth, ears... everything."

"This has been done in other countries; it can be done here."

'No Apology' for Opposing
Sunday Sport, Says Bennett

POWELL RIVER (CP)—Premier Bennett said Friday night he would "make no apology" for his opposition to commercial Sunday sport.

"If we lose Sunday in this country to the people who are going to be hurt are the working people," the premier told a Social Credit campaign meeting.

"There is a difference between sport and commercial entertainment," he said. "Why, if I permit this commercial entertainment of professional baseball, then you are going to have people saying there is nothing wrong with paying to see pictures of such games and other entertainment."

"Then there will be opening up of stores."

At the same time Mr. Bennett denied that his government had refused to legalize commercial Sunday sport.

"It was the decision of the legislature," he said. "It was a wide-open vote and no strings were attached to anybody."

BASHFUL FARM BOY

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Until 1938 bashful Lawrence Welk sat in the back row of his own orchestra and happily played the accordion. Now and then he permitted himself an embarrassed bow. But he never talked. Some-one else always announced the numbers.

He was still hiding, any psychiatrist would have told him, in the North Dakota barn of his childhood.

"I knew I wasn't a person," he told me. "I was bashful and I worried about my accent. I don't think even a psychiatrist could explain it. But maybe he could—I've never been to one."

But by 1938, at the age of 35, Welk had risen to name-band level.

He was playing his "Champagne Music" with the first of his six "Champagne Lady" singers in a big Pittsburgh hotel and over the coast-to-coast Mutual Radio network. But personally he was a nonentity—with a worried manager.

TURNED PALE

"The radio people would like you to make the announcements," the manager casually told him one day. "It would help business in the ballrooms, too." Welk turned pale, but agreed to "talk a little."

The announcement "Welk Talks" caused almost as much stir in the orchestra world as Hollywood's one-time announcement: "Garbo Talks."

But Welk confined himself to one-sentence announcements which he memorized, sometimes read.

"Standing in front of a microphone and saying, 'We will now play 'Ain't She Sweet' was a mouthful for me in those days," he laughs.

SOLE POSSESSION

A man's childhood can play strange pranks.

Lawrence Welk was born on a wheat farm near Strasburg, N.D.—reared in a family of four boys and four girls. His parents, Ludwig and Christine Welk, were immigrants of pure German stock from Alsace-Lorraine. Ludwig, a farmer, brought with him an old-fashioned accordion. It was his sole possession when he arrived in America.

At the age of two Welk fingered the imitation pearl buttons on the old squeeze box as his dad played. Starting at four he gradually learned to play the instrument.

"But as early as I can remember," Welk told me, "I was a bashful child. And a sickly one. I had bad eyes and a ruptured appendix. When I was in the fourth grade, led to an 18-month convalescence and I never went back to school."

WELK AND Champagne Lady: Alice Lon is No. 6.

That's the reason he's always been an avid, hungry-for-knowledge reader.

FELT INFERIOR

Young Welk loved to play the accordion when company came, but I always had to be asked. I was either hiding in my room or out in the barn where I pretended the anvil, the pitchfork, the hoe and the rake were musical instruments and I was an orchestra leader.

He doesn't talk about it, but old friends say that as a youngster and growing teen-ager, Welk developed an inferiority complex. His three brothers were big, strong-backed farm workers. He was next to the youngest—the smallest and the frailest.

At 15, after arduous saving, Welk bought his own accordion from a mail order house for $19.90. At 17, he talked his father into buying a professional $400 instrument on the installment plan. It was a huge investment for Ludwig Welk, and the first time he had bought anything on credit. Young Welk promised to pay back every cent by playing at local barn dances—and he promised to remain on the farm until he was 21.

"I was the bashful boy with the accordion," he remembers, "but once I started playing I never liked to stop. I remember travelling to a barn dance in another city on a train and someone asked me to play. I played so long a man finally yelled, 'Stop. We've had enough.'"

RADIO DEBUT

From solo accordionist at barn dances, Welk's fortunes progressed to adding a drummer, a saxophone and a piano. In Yankton, S.D., the four-piece Welk band and his "want-to-dance" beat made its radio debut on station WNAX.

The year was 1935.

With no sponsor pleading for him, Welk, always a shrewd business man, became his own sponsor. The product was chewing gum, which he bought from a wholesaler and sold in his spare time.

"I finally had to stop," he grins. "I guess it wasn't very good gum." Because of his Yankton radio program, Welk's "biggest little band in America" became a favorite dance band throughout the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska and Minnesota.

Then came small hotels, bigger ballrooms, the resort circuit from Denver in the summer to Lake Placid in the winter, bigger hotels, Pittsburgh, Mutual network radio, San Francisco and Los Angeles ballrooms and then, in 1939, the Trianon ballroom in Chicago.

The "want-to-dance" beat was catching on—a local level and on a minor radio network.

Next: Back to his own beat.

TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE

AA (Oscar Class) BB (Worthwhile) A (Don't Miss) B (For Rainy Days) C (To put in time)

(A) "DESIGNING WOMAN"

And it should.

The ladies should go for it because of the impressive gowns (or lack of same) and Gregory Peck.

"The men should enjoy it immensely because what is in (or out) of the gowns and Lauren Bacall.

In short, this is a comedy that is funny. It is both slapstick and sophisticated. That the plot is highly improbable doesn't matter at all.

Written by George Wells from a suggestion by Helen Rose, "Designing Woman" brings two worlds into rollicking collision—the world of fashion design and the rugged world of sports. That's sometimes have to live together in a Manhattan luxury flat adds a sauce that lights up the whole concoction like a brandy flame on a plum pudding.

Peck once again comes in with a splendid effort as the two-fisted sports writer who wakes up from a binge to discover that he is married to famed dress designer Bacall.

Once he gets used to the apartment he manfully tries to put up with his wife's friends, wonderfully weird characters from fashion and the theatre. Meanwhile, Lauren is trying to adjust herself to the sports crowd and especially to one punch drunk ex-fighter named Mickey Shughnessy who sleeps with his eyes wide open.

THEY BOTH might have made out tolerably well, too, except that Peck's wife stumbles over an affair hubby was having with an actress, Dolores Gray, up to and shortly after their marriage. To complicate matters Peck is having to hide out from some thugs who are trying to bash his brains in because of his articles exposing elements of the fight racket.

GRUBER CONDUCTS

Steed in No Need Of Defence Counsel

Graham Steed stands in no need of my services as counsel for defence on his behalf. In any case, the first he will know of my meddling in the little recent controversy will be when he opens today's paper, just like you.

Nor am I in a position to commit myself publicly as to my agreement or otherwise with the benefits or, as Mr. Steed will have it, the evils, of music festivals and current teaching methods. I cannot claim to sufficient experience as a music pedagogue.

But, Mr. Steed can. He has Hans Gruber long been a professional teacher in musical subjects. He is an instrumental executant of the virtuoso class. He is a choral director whose ability I myself have had more than one occasion to bless.

As a conductor, I have repeatedly witnessed him pulling his charges through momentary situations of some stickiness — situations which made me thankful, from the safety of my seat in the hall, that it was he, rather than I, for instance, who had to cope. He speaks, writes, and lectures with a felicitous and enviable lack of ambiguity. Personally, he has been known to me for many years as a man of catholic taste and uncommonly wide intellectual curiosity.

His genuine love for music imbues him with, to me, admirable moral courage to flail out against institutions no matter how traditional or entrenched that, in his opinion, do not serve his art to advantage. Mr. Steed knows full well that his crusade against our applauding everything with equal indiscriminate is not likely to win him personal popularity contests.

But, it seems to me, if an experienced professional like Steed feels strongly enough about something concerning his field, let us try to lay aside personal anger, and take searching stock as to whether the activities under fire may not, after all, be open to some improvement.

MILLE MIGLIA RACE—BANNED

ROME (Reuters)—Count Aymo Maggi, a promoter of the Milles Miglia auto race in which 13 persons were killed last Sunday, said today "we have decided to give up the race."

Trapped Boy, 2, Buried in Sewer; Cries Unheard

CODY, Wyo. (AP)—A two-year-old boy was buried alive and suffocated Friday in a narrow sewer line near his home.

Richard Thun apparently was playing in the five-foot-deep trench when his right foot became wedged between the clay side of the ditch and the pipe at the bottom.

A heavy power shovel filled in the trench with earth at 11 a.m., just 30 minutes after the boy's mother last saw him alive.

Armed with shovels and some using their bare hands, the men attacked the 20-foot sewer line. After about 45 minutes, they came across Richard's yellow cap.

With his right foot wedged between the side of the ditch and the pipe, he apparently was unable to free himself. And the power shovel was so noisy the boy's cries went unheard.

Narthex, Hall To Start Soon For St. Paul's

Construction will begin soon on addition of a narthex and church hall to St. Paul's Anglican Church, Esquimalt.

The narthex, including a balcony and choir vestry, will be linked by corridors with the church and the new hall, architects Birley and Simpson said this week.

The hall will contain Sunday school rooms in the basement, an auditorium on the main floor with fireproof room and offices. A stage may be added at some later date.

Duncan Man Faces Auto Theft Charge

James Winston Cook, Duncan, was remanded without plea in city police court Friday to appear next Friday on a charge of auto theft.

The car was subsequently in an accident and Cook spent three weeks in hospital recovering from head injury.

A probation report was ordered and bail set at $500.

$1.5 MILLION TO SPEND Nova Scotia Village Awaits Rich Legacy

HUBBARDS, N.S. (CP)—This tiny Atlantic coast fishing spot and resort, 10 miles south-west of Halifax, is potentially the richest community of its size in Canada. It will be visited this summer by the trustees of its fortune.

With $1,500,000 to spend, plus $40,000 to $50,000 annual interest, the community, the trustees and their advisers are pondering how best to spend it to comply with the wishes of the donor.

When Jefferson D. Shattford, Chicago industrialist and oil magnate, died Sept. 5, 1955, at age 93, his body, at his own request, was returned to his native Hubbards for burial, and his will left the bulk of his life's earnings to that community.

The money was to be used for the benefit of the people of Hubbards... religious, charitable and educational purposes... proper care of the poor, indigent, crippled and blind.

Trustees appointed by the will—Hugr Weir, Barton Cummings, Ralph Farrington and Robert McCormack of the New York Chemical Corn Exchange Bank and William R. Brown of Miami, Fla.—paid a visit last summer to meet members of the community.

This year, trustees will meet with local advisers and formulate plans for meeting terms of the will. Local advisers appointed were Rev. Samuel Miller, rector of St. Luke's Anglican church, Dr. Philip A. Cole and Lionel L. Shattford, a nephew of Jefferson Shattford.

Chief obstacle to immediate use of the money was lack of a ruling on the area taken in by Hubbards, since it had never been incorporated as town or village.

Recently, the surrogate's court of the county and state of New York fixed the area extending four miles east and six miles south of Hubbards' Cove, taking in both sides of No. 3 provincial highway in the designated area. About 1,500 people are included.

That, said the Liberal leader, would mean either higher taxes for the whole country or less revenue for other provinces. He challenged the national Progressive Conservative leader to say which course he would follow.

"Just what are Mr. Frost and Mr. Diefenbaker up to?" he asked in a town hall political rally here Friday as he reached the half-way mark in his six-week campaign.

"The question is not only much on the minds of the people of Ontario but also in Quebec and in eastern and western Canada."

U.S. Economy Shows Signs Of New Vigor

By WALTER BREED, JR.

NEW YORK (AP)—After spluttering along in indecisive fashion, the United States economy this week showed new and unexpected signs of vigor.

Business sentiment—drooping only a short time ago—perked up noticeably. Merchants, manufacturers, stockholders and wage earners seemed to be saying: "Things aren't so terrible after all."

The stock market romped to a 1957 high.

Beginnings of a potential pickup were noted in at least three sectors of the economy where soft spots had developed—autos, appliances and textiles.

As for the economy as a whole, bankers, industrialists and others gave this estimate of things to come:

Business activity, over all, should keep on rising. Not as fast as last year, probably, but the trend for the rest of 1957—and certainly for 1958—should be up, not down.

The upward parade of prices should pause for a while. Business costs are sky-high but goods are in great abundance and competition is razor-sharp. This—least for the time being—should hold price increases in check.

Those inclined to optimism could point this week to a continued high level of consumer incomes and consumer spending.

Personal income of Americans, at latest count, had climbed to a record annual rate of nearly $339,000,000. It represents a gain of $18,000,000 in just one year.

Wage increases for coal, oil, steel and other workers should push consumer income—and possibly some consumer prices—to still higher levels in the coming months.

Employment is on the upbeat, too. While there isn't as much overtime in the auto factories and steel mills as there used to be, there are more jobs in the trades and services than ever before.

Auto production is picking up a little right now—this week's output of 1,236,000 cars is the highest in more than a month.

Western Oils Make Long Overdue Spurt

KISS FROM MAYOR Percy Scurrell followed crowning of Miss Victoria, Sue Pearson, at Parliament Buildings Friday. He approved her command that everyone enjoy themselves. (Photos by Bill Halkett.)

Sweet Sue Keeps Smilin' Through; Queen's Job Is 'Just Wonderful'

Queen Sue isn't "smiling through her tears," anymore. Everything is "just wonderful," and she likes being queen.

Sue Pearson, 18, admitted to "a little nervousness" before the pageantry of the May Queen crowning ceremony at the Legislative Buildings Friday night.

"But it was nice. We had a lovely time," she said today. "Everyone smiled and made me feel so good."

Queen Sue continues her royal rounds tonight at a pageant in Memorial Arena and at holiday celebrations Sunday and Monday.

She was crowned May Queen before a crowd of 2,000, which gathered on the legislative grounds despite threatening showers.

Four wide-eyed moppets who "couldn't see very well," quietly settled on the red carpet at Queen Sue's feet just as the crown was placed on her head by Mayor Percy Scurrell.

Later when Mounties and Frontiersmen dislodged them, Rosalind Ramage, five; Marie Adams, four; Eddie Clifford, five, and his sister Carol, seven, all of Heather Street, gave a simple explanation of the move.

"We couldn't see very well," said spokesman Carol, and "We like her."

Queen Sue expressed royal approval today. "I thought it was sort of sweet of them," she said. "I wasn't at all annoyed."

Ceremony began at 7.30, when Miss Victoria and princesses Grace Chew and Annlyn Florence alighted from the yacht Iorana while the firebug Island Comet laced the air with towers of spray and 11 speedboats cavorted alongside.

From the Causeway float to the lawn of the Legislative Buildings, a royal motorcade bearing the queen and her entourage was guarded by Victoria Girls' Drill Team.

Members of Victoria Chapter, Order of DeMolay, lined the ceremonial area. Four RCMP officers assisted the queen and princesses from the royal car.

Darlene King, eight, and Cheri Wong, nine, of the Chinese Girls' Drill Team, were train bearers to the queen.

Royal procession marched past the brass band of the 5th Independent Medium Battery

as four buglers played a fanfare.

Following the ceremony, the procession paraded briefly on Government, Yates and Douglas, carrying the queen to the first of many attractions, planned for the holiday weekend, an aquatic display at Crystal Garden.

The holiday program includes: Sunday—Indian Festival, Maple Bank Park, 11 a.m.; speedboat races, Thetis Lake Park, 1.30 p.m.; motorcycle rodeo, Athletic Park, 2 p.m. Monday—grand parade, 10 a.m.; army display, Legislative Buildings, 12 noon; horse show, Victoria Riding Academy, 1.30 p.m.

Later Queen Sue, and Princesses Grace and Annlyn, danced away the evening at the Crystal with Jaycee escorts.

KISS FROM EX-QUEEN, Marilyn Dawson, transferred royal obligations to Queen Sue. She will fulfill traditional duty of smiling graciousness at pageant, parade, regatta, rodeo and other events.

Just wondering around . . .

Wonder what urge it is that makes ma and pa pile the car high with blankets pots pans cans of beans and kids and go dashing madly off in all directions every time there is a holiday weekend . . . wonder if Dr. Gordon Shrum the eminent educationist stole his idea for a five-day week-end from yours sincerely . . . wonder if he'd also support me in my plea for triple time for undertime . . . wonder if this forecast will stand up for the weekend; Saturday warmer with mostly scattered; Sunday not bad; Monday good; Tuesday ugh . . .

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Victoria Aged Pensioners Association No. 3 will be guests at a 2.30 p.m. Monday baseball game in Athletic Park.

For fishing without a licence in non-tidal waters, Oren Havelock Wright, Camp Gordon Head, was fined $10 and $3 costs in Colwood RCMP court Friday.

Dickens Fellowship will meet at the home of E. F. Waterson, 515 Marfield, Monday at 8 p.m.

Believed to have been kicked in the back of the head by a grazing horse Friday afternoon, Linda Wilkinson, six, 2832 Parkview, is in satisfactory condition at Jubilee Hospital today.

Her mother, Mrs. Fred Wilkinson, said the little girl told her in hospital she had been feeding the tethered animal some grass on the way home from school at 3.45 p.m.

Apparently the child, who is fond of horses, tried to stroke the animal or brush away a fly, and fell in front of the horse.

The horse was tethered on a boulevard near Austin and Gorge, about three blocks from Linda's home.

TUESDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Electric Club: Monterey Restaurant, 12.05 p.m. Representatives of Fairley Aviation Co. will speak.

Victoria Kiwanis: Empress Hotel, 12.10 p.m. Will Preston, B.C. Telephone Co., will discuss "Microwave Communication." North Kiwanis: Monterey Restaurant, 6.15 p.m. Guest speaker, Fred Blakeney, Goodwill Enterprises of Victoria Ltd.

Come on, tulip growers, top this one! Mrs. William Barnes, 2147 Oak Bay Avenue, has an Orange Admiral tulip with five blooms on one stem.

In the last week, three persons have come forward with four-headed tulips, and there are lots more with three and two heads. So, anyone like to try for six?

Victoria's unemployment picture continued to improve last week.

The National Employment Office reports 200 persons found jobs during the week, dropping the total to 2,218.

"This is not quite as good as last year's figure, but is approximately 100 below the average totals of the past eight years," said local manager J. H. Fox.

Victoria Social Credit Constituency Association will hold its regular monthly meeting Monday night in the K of P Hall on Cormorant Street at 8 p.m. Victoria Social candidate Waldo Skillings will be present.

A young man who collided with a sidewalk scaffolding shortly before midnight Friday was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for a nose injury and admitted.

In good condition today is Robert George Twyman, 1438 Fort, who told police he ran into a painter's scaffolding on Broad Street at 11.50 p.m.

Spectators Right on Top Of Races at Thetis Lake

Spectators will be only a few feet from roaring speedboats along the course of a Thetis Lake regatta Sunday.

Victoria Inboard and Outboard Association meet gets underway at 1.30 p.m.

Officials say the lakeside viewpoints are so close to the course at some places it would be almost possible to leap into the boats.

But this isn't recommended—some of the high-speed outboards will reach speeds of 60 miles an hour—a water speed which lifts boats almost into the air and makes spills a constant threat.

About 40 boats will be working towards annual high points trophies. There are entries from Chilliwack, Vancouver, Campbell River, Nanaimo, Sprout Lake, Cowichan Lake and perhaps Vernon.

Teaser IV, owned by Jim Hutchison, Vancouver, holder of the Canadian 135 Hydro record will also compete.

An added attraction will be a display of water skiing. Officials say there is adequate parking at the lake and refreshment booths will be open.

SWIM TWINS TRY STRAIT

A double-pronged attack on Juan de Fuca Strait will be made Sunday by swimmers Ben Laughren and army pay corps Cpl. Bruce Holmes, the weather permitting.

The two plan to swim side-by-side from Ediz Hook, Port Angeles, at about 1 p.m., in order to catch a fast tide for Race Rocks and Victoria.

They will be taken aboard navigator Dave McMillan's boat, Oyster Clipper, leaving Parson's Bridge at about 9 a.m.

FINE COMBINATION

Appropriately it's Gee-gee—Glenna and Gamelin. Both 14-year-old Glenna Reside, one of Victoria's most promising young riders, and 21-year-old Gamelin, Victoria Riding Academy veteran jumping horse, will be seen in action Monday at the club's Cedar Hill Cross Road show ring in what promises to be a keenly-contested gymkhana. Horses and riders from the mainland and Up-Island will compete with local equestrians in a full program of events scheduled to start at 1.30 p.m. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

Leadership Greatest Need For Youngsters

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Every boy must have a leader and if the leadership is right he won't go far wrong.

That is Basil Tippet's answer to the problem of rowdiness and youthful delinquency—and Mr. Tippet, as national president of the YMCA, is probably the biggest salesman for youth leadership in Canada.

If Mr. Tippet wasn't so busy selling the "Y" he could probably sell the proverbial refrigerator to the proverbial Eskimo.

This dapper, blue-eyed enthusiast can talk anyone under the table where youth and the YMCA are concerned, and is doing so daily on a cross-Canada tour which brought him to Victoria from his Toronto headquarters today.

GROWING "Y"

"Look at the figures," says Mr. Tippet. "We have a world membership of 4,000,000 spread over 78 different countries. We have over 100,000 members in Canada alone and we have 100 associations or centres spread across the country."

"All very well to talk of juvenile delinquency. Do you ever stop and think how many more there would be without the YMCA?"

Fairly bubbling with facts, philosophies and statistics, Mr. Tippet produced a solid local statistic—the fact that 1,200 Victoria boys were taught to swim at the "Y" last year.

"Our staff out here are doing a tremendous job," he said, "and they are adjusting themselves to local conditions. That is something we all have to do. The YMCA program of 40 years ago would not attract the youth of today."

"They need a more lively leadership and programs have to be brightened up to meet the competition from TV and the movies."

Mr. Tippet emphasizes that, while the YMCA seeks to develop "a Christian personality," it does not insist on the Christian faith.

He points out that 85 per cent of "Y" members in Cairo belong to the Moslem faith. In Israel 90 per cent are Jewish, while in India 95 per cent are Hindus.

FIRST HOLIDAY MISHAP

Alberni Boy Badly Hurt

Unconscious 14 Hours After Fall From Bike

A Port Alberni boy is victim of the first serious accident to mar the holiday weekend on Vancouver Island.

Thirteen-year-old Jurgen Bockers was unconscious 14 hours after receiving head injuries in a bicycle accident Friday afternoon.

He is still unable to speak and officials at West Coast General Hospital say his condition is "only fair."

HIT PEDESTRIAN

Jurgen was riding down steep 10th Avenue Hill when he collided with a boy pedestrian who was crossing the road. In his fall his head struck a curb. The other boy was uninjured.

School children witnessing the accident said the bicycle was travelling at a high rate of speed when the collision occurred.

B.C.E. to Supply Blue Uniforms For Bus Drivers

B.C. Electric bus drivers soon will be decked out in uniforms again.

The operators wore uniforms until two years ago when the Street Railwaymen's Union protested the 50-50 cost-sharing arrangement with the company.

Since that time their dress has been optional.

But today a company official disclosed that tenders have been called for 1,350 uniforms for drivers in Victoria, Vancouver, North Vancouver and New Westminster.

The uniform of matching jacket and trousers will be a "medium blue" color.

Replacements will be provided by the company when justified.

WITH GOVERNOR AT SURREY, ENGLAND

19 Victorians to Attend Capt. Vancouver Ceremony

A group of 19 Victorians will attend a ceremony in Petersham, Surrey, England, on Sunday where B.C. Lieutenant-Governor Frank M. Ross will honor the memory of Capt. George Vancouver.

Thirty-nine other B.C. residents now visiting in England also will attend.

The Lord Mayor of nearby London, Col. Sir Cullum Welch, and other civic officials will take part in laying of wreaths at the gravesite.

Capt. Vancouver, after whom the island and the city were named, was a pioneer navigator of the Pacific coast. He was born at King's Lynn, Norfolk, June 22, 1757.

A statue of the early explorer which normally adorns the dome of the B.C. Legislative Buildings in Victoria was recently removed for cleaning and regilding and has not yet been replaced.

Victorians at the ceremony will be Miss Fiona Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Lewder, Major L. Bullock-Webster, Miss Barbara McCaul, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Norrie and Mr. Gordon Norrie, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Senior, Miss Marilyn Berry, Miss H. Bradshaw, Mr. H. Litter, Miss Jane Anne Moore,

Youngster Hero In Lake Mishap

A 12-year-old Saanich boy saved a swimming companion from drowning last Thursday afternoon but mentioned it to no one.

Rickie Bertram, West Saanich Road, a new member of Royal Oak Boy Scout troop, was one of three youngsters who tried to swim across Beaver Lake.

He and one of his companions made it to the west shore, but the third boy, known only as Tom, got into difficulty and began screaming and shouting he couldn't make it.

Mrs. E. O. Olson, 667 Beaver Lake Road, watched as Rickie, who had started to walk back to the other side, dove back into the lake and swam for the boy.

The swimmer had covered about three-quarters of the distance before giving up and crying for help.

"He nearly drowned me in the struggle," Mrs. Olson quoted Rickie as saying afterward.

"Rickie was kind of shaky and the other boy was awful scared. I asked him if he wanted to come up to the house (a short distance away), but he said he was all right and just lay down on the grass for a while."

NERVOUS COPS RAID 44 'WORSHIPPERS'

NEW YORK (UP)—A number of nervous but determined policemen gathered outside the Pentecostal Mission church on lower Third Avenue Friday, hesitated a moment and then broke down the door.

The noise of the splintering door proved highly distracting to some 44 well-dressed "worshippers" inside. They weren't reading the elaborately-lettered scriptures on the wall, however. They were all gathered around a dice table—and about $25,000 in cash. There wasn't a pew in sight.

Police said they had been watching the "church" for some time as the suspected setting place for a veteran floating crap game, but were reluctant to move in until they were sure they weren't breaking up a prayer meeting by mistake.

Prince Takes U.K. On TV World Tour

LONDON (Reuters)—Prince Philip took millions of British children and their parents 40,000 miles around the world Friday night in a television peep at the British Commonwealth, whose people he declared "stick together not by force, but because we all like each other."

The 35-year-old prince, the first member of the Royal Family to present a studio television program, spoke to the children of Britain for 36 minutes in an illustrated lecture of a four-month Commonwealth tour he made last winter.

His audience was estimated to be larger than the previous viewing record here, the 11,500,000 who saw the soccer cup final early this month.

Tele-recordings of Philip's lecture will be flown today to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the Australian Broadcasting Commission.

His lecture was prepared specially for the young and delivered on the children's television programs of the BBC and the commercial network.

Philip spent about eight hours

rehearsing before the studio lights winked on and he flashed on to about 7,000,000 television screens, seated at a desk on which stood a scale model of the royal yacht, Britannia, in which he travelled for much of his journey last year.

A slight touch of pancake makeup on his forehead was the only concession the prince made to television's glaring banks of lights.

He worked from a series of notes on his desk, and wandered round the studio as he spoke, showing viewers the gifts he had collected on his tour and pointing out the places he had visited on a wall map and a globe.

He recalled the story of convicts in New Guinea who liked prison so much—"they get three square meals a day"—that when they were released during the war to fight the Japanese and told to report back after it was over, did just that—five years later. Not one failed to turn up.

Philip played a record of a group of New Guinea people talking pidgin English and told his viewers that he was known there as "Number one fellow belong Miss Queen."

When a chart, showing the weight and size of various parts and species of whale was shown, he grinned and said: "think how awful it would be to wake up in the morning with that weight of liver. And as for three tons of tongue to look at—how awful."

ON THE HUSTINGS

Rally Tuesday
For Diefenbaker

Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker will highlight another busy week of election campaigning here next week.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who spoke in Victoria last March soon after his election as national leader, will speak at a public rally Tuesday night in Memorial Arena.

The arena has a seating capacity of more than 6,000, and local Conservative officials predict the meeting will be the largest political rally ever held on Vancouver Island.

Mr. Diefenbaker drew a capacity crowd of 1,500 in Central Junior High School auditorium the last time he spoke here.

TO SEE VETS

The Conservative leader will arrive at Pat Bay airport at 3 p.m. Tuesday and plans to visit Veterans' Hospital before his evening address.

The following day, Mr. Diefenbaker will motor up-Island, with public meetings scheduled at Duncan, Nanaimo and Courtenay. He flies to Vancouver from Comox Thursday morning.

The other main event locally next week is the Social Credit rally at the Royal Theatre Friday night which will feature Premier Bennett as speaker.

It is the party's first big pitch in the Victoria area and local candidates Noel Bell (Esquimalt-Saanich) and Waldo Skillings (Victoria) will be on the platform.

Federal Liberal cabinet ministers will continue their active campaigning in B.C. next week, but only one will be in Victoria. He is Health Minister Paul Martin, who is scheduled to make a brief address at a public reception in the lower ballroom of the Crystal Garden at 12:25 p.m. Thursday.

UP-ISLAND
Mr. Martin will spend most of his time up-Island and plans speeches at Parksville Thursday afternoon and Nanaimo in the evening.

Finance Minister Walter Harris will be in the Vancouver and Lower Fraser Valley regions for one day on Tuesday.

Defence Minister Ralph Campney and Fisheries Minister James Sinclair will both be campaigning throughout the province next week.

Mr. Campney will address a public meeting in Duncan on Friday.

In addition to the parties' "big guns," the eight local candidates have a full schedule of meetings throughout the week.

(Details will appear in The Times each day.)

Leon Ladner, co-chairman of the Progressive Conservative federal election campaign in B.C. Friday night challenged Fisheries Minister James Sinclair to debate Columbia River power development.

"We are not going to force control and ownership on the province that properly owns it," Mr. Ladner told a meeting at Nelson. "It is up to the provincial government to decide what it is going to do."

Subsidy Boosted
Mrs. Evelyn Fingarson, Social Credit candidate for Coast-Capilano, said Friday night she was told reliably that Union Steamships Ltd. is selling out "to a foreign country."

She said the company's $300,000-a-year federal subsidy was boosted by $300,000 in the past year.

Fisheries Minister Sinclair said in Kitimat Friday night Canada is the envy of the world.

The Canadian standard of living is the second highest in the world and it is to Canada, not the United States, that immigrants are trusting their most precious possessions, their own lives and the lives of their children," he said.

"Canada has risen during the last eight years from 14th to fourth trading nation in the world," Mr. Sinclair said.

"We have done this by expansion of foreign trade and by expansion at home. Every province is surging ahead from coast to coast."

SAM WOODSON
... answered call

RESCUER SAYS:

God Said Go
And Help Get
That Boy Out

Editor's note: Sam Woodson, a 38-year-old Negro construction worker, was the first person to reach Benny Hooper, Jr. in his sandy tomb. Here is Woodson's story.

By SAM WOODSON

As Told to United Press
MANORVILLE, N.Y. (UP)—I heard about that boy at work and all of a sudden I got the sensation that God was saying to me, "Sam, you must go and help get that boy out."

I went home and told my wife, "I'm going to see if I can help that boy. My wife called her sister and they went to the church to pray for him."

I went to the boy's house. People tried to keep me back but I pushed through. I was in and out of that hole all day.

I kept thinking, "God told me to come here so the boy must be alive and I'll get him out." I got tired but I thought of my little girl and it helped keep me going.

I was digging carefully when I saw the jacket covering the top of Benny's head. I started to brush the sand away from his coat when I heard him whimper.

Just then we started to cave. I grabbed him a little bit and he looked at me and started to groan.

I didn't have a chance to talk to him. I talked to God.

I had to yank Benny pretty hard because the sand really started coming. And when I yanked, John (Arambo, the worker behind Sam) yanked me to keep me from letting go. But we got him out.

When we found him, I turned to John and told him, "The boy is alive, thank God."

I looked at that boy and looked into his big blue eyes and I tell you, "that was the happiest moment of my life."

VATICAN CITY (UP)—Pope Pius XII invested Polish primate Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński with his symbolic red cardinal's hat today and urged him to be "intrepid even unto death and the shedding of blood."

CHRONOLOGY of the RESCUE

MANORVILLE, N.Y. (UP)—The timetable of suspense in the ordeal of Benny Hooper:

THURSDAY

7:50 p.m.—The boy falls in the well.

7:52—A frantic Benjamin Hooper Sr. drops Benny a rope, but child cannot hold onto it.

7:55—Dad calls police. West-hampton air force base, and fire department, begs for oxygen equipment.

8:20—Oxygen arrives. Manorville fire department, other rescuers arrive.

8:30—Manorville firemen start digging hole next to well. Benny is unable to hold on to hook dropped down.

9:15—Power bucket shovel goes in operation to widen crater next to well. At 4-foot depth, sand is struck and crater starts filling in. Workers start digging manually.

11:00—Eight-foot depth is reached. Thirteen feet to go to match well's depth.

FRIDAY

1 a.m.—Seven feet to go.

3:00—Reach 21-foot depth. Diggers start cutting across 12 feet to the well.

3:10—Small earth slide in excavation stops work. After shoring operation, work resumed.

4:15—Hooper calls down well to Benny: "Move your hand." No answer.

6:00—Worker sees movement at shaft bottom.

6:10—Cross-tunnel shoring collapses. Digging must start over.

7:30—Dr. J. H. Kris says longer the boys stays down in well, slimmer are chances for survival.

11:30—Kris and firemen veto proposal to use vacuum to pull sand out of well on grounds it would displace more sand and draw out oxygen.

Noon—Slowly the sand sifts down and buries outstretched hand of Benny Hooper. Hope for rescue lessens.

2:10 p.m.—"This is a lost cause," says Suffolk County chief deputy sheriff Phillip Coros. He announces a derick and bucket will be used to try to remove sand quickly and reach the boy.

3:42—Section of 48-inch piping fitted into rescue shaft. Eight minutes later, an eight-inch pipe is lowered into well so oxygen hoses may be pushed through to bottom.

3:15—Rescue shaft operation continues as new piping is sent down.

7:00—Benjamin Hooper, Sr. comes out of house. Air of excitement in the Hooper backyard becomes more intense.

7:20—Final section of pipe fitted in place.

7:32—Rescuers make contact with well shaft. The call comes: "He's alive!"

7:41—"He's all clear," someone shouts up from the rescue shaft. "He looks fine."

7:46—Benny Hooper is brought up from what almost was his grave. The ordeal is over.

Both Progressive Conservatives and Social Credit parties are asking the public to forget they once opposed old age pensions, Victor Williams, Victoria CCF candidate, told a meeting of 20 persons Friday at Woodsworth Hall.

The Conservatives 30 years ago were opposed to any form of pension, he said.

"The Conservatives were willing to let the public forget they once opposed old age pensions, Victor Williams, Victoria CCF candidate, told a meeting of 20 persons Friday at Woodsworth Hall.

Mr. Williams said PC Leader John Diefenbaker's "intent is honest," but I doubt "his party backing."

Mr. Williams said Socred national Leader Solon Low in 1945 asked if he favored old age pensions and other forms of forgetfulness that now exist, said he was opposed to them.

He termed the Liberal attitude towards old age pensions "worth $6."

He condemned the present federal government for spending huge sums on national defence, yet money had to be begged for cancer patients.

Mr. Williams said many people who take over fund appeals are "trackers."

"All other political parties evade the issues. The meat of the matter is—humanity."

Bennett Reveals B.C. Made
Earlier Offer on Columbia

POWELL RIVER—Premier W. A. C. Bennett said at a Social Credit campaign meeting here Friday night he had made a "secret" offer to Ottawa for federal-provincial development of Columbia River hydro.

The premier said that last July he offered to let the federal government take over negotiations for downstream benefits, with certain conditions attached.

"I told Mr. Lesage (Federal Resources Minister Jean Lesage) that I would leave the matter of downstream benefits up to the federal cabinet, if they thought they could get a better deal than B.C.," Mr. Bennett said.

20 PER CENT
"But I told him that B.C. wanted 20 per cent of the downstream power returned to the grid system at Vancouver, as long as they built and paid for all the dams on the Columbia."

"They would have to give us ownership of the dam and we would retain the right to build or control construction of power-generating plants on the river."

The offer was refused, said the premier. "And yet the federal government was criticizing me for selling out to U.S. power interests."

He said the federal government would be able to finance construction of the dams out of its share of the downstream benefits which, he said, Ottawa claimed should be 50 per cent of extra power made possible by the storage dams in B.C.

Premier Bennett defended the government's agreement with Swedish industrialist Axel Wenner-Gren.

At first the proposal to develop a 40,000-square mile area in the Rocky Mountain Trench "sounded a little far-fetched," the premier admitted.

"So I asked them to put down a $500,000 bond, which they did."

"There are no secrets, no con-

N.Y. Building
Collapses;
Woman Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—One woman was killed today in the collapse of a three-story brick tenement building on the lower east side.

Rescuers unearthed the body of the woman, identified tentatively as that of Mrs. Anna Levkovic, who had occupied a second-floor apartment.

Police said they were convinced no one else was trapped.

Chief Fire Marshal Martin Scott said registered letters were sent to tenants Friday advising them the building was in a dangerous condition and suggesting that they move.

Five persons lived in the building at Pitt Street, an area just east of Manhattan's Chinatown.

Liberals Give People's Money
To Exploiters, Says Dr. Thomas

The Liberal government in Ottawa has the worst record in Canada for "taking money away from the people and turning it over to private monopolies and bureaucrats," Dr. J. H. Thomas, CCF candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said Friday night.

"We of the CCF believe the wealth that is created by the people should be shared by the people," he told a CCF-meeting in the Marigold Community Hall.

"We will not rest content until what we know as capitalism has been eradicated and replaced by commonwealth Socialism."

Dr. Thomas stoutly rejected a rival party claim that the CCF's Winnipeg Declaration of 1935 was an abandonment of the Regina Manifesto in 1933.

"That is quite untrue — we have never changed our basic concept. All those who do not agree with this concept should support those parties which support the private monopoly enterprise system."

He said the CCF believed in a future society in which the "competitive law of the jungle" would be superseded by "the brotherhood of man, the recognition that we are all our brothers' keepers."

"We are a long way from the realization of that objective," Dr. Thomas said, "although we have made considerable progress in the realm of political liberties."

The CCF, he said, had been responsible for most of the social reforms brought about in spite of capitalist domination.

country's evils, but hit out at other federal policies.

The immigration department was "bumbling along" and should have foreseen the present manpower shortage years ago.

Now the department is bringing in increasing numbers of immigrants, and there are no houses to shelter them because of tight money.

A Social Credit government would make houses easier to own by reducing the down payment, lowering interest rates to not more than 3 per cent and allowing a longer period to pay.

Mortgage interest payments should also be made deductible on individual's income tax, as they are for corporations.

The Liberal government lacks co-ordination, has grown old and tired and should be thrown out of office, Mr. Skillings said.

In a roundabout way, he suggested that Dr. F. T. Fairley, Liberal MP for Victoria, in the last Commons and running for re-election, had not adequately represented the riding.

Mr. Skillings quoted from an editorial in a national magazine entitled "Let's weed out the speechless fools."

"I won't mention any names," he said, "but if the shoe pinches, it pinches."

Canada is on the threshold of its greatest development but the government is looking to the past instead of the future.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier would disown his immediate successors," Mr. Skillings said.

LOOKING TO PAST
"Isn't that an inspiring thought for a political party that aspires to re-election as the government of Canada?" he asked.

Canada is on the threshold of its greatest development but the government is looking to the past instead of the future.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier would disown his immediate successors," Mr. Skillings said.

The Socred candidate blamed tight money for most of the cessions, no give-aways in our dealings with them," Mr. Bennett said.

"We have placed a reserve (on the area) but the reserve is in the name of the people of British Columbia, not Wenner-Gren."

The premier accused the Liberal government of draining money from B.C. and repeated his criticisms of the tight-money policy and Fisheries Minister James Sinclair.

"It is ridiculous to have a tight money policy and an immigration policy at the same time," he said.

A Social Credit federal government would give workers more take-home pay by increasing the basic income tax exemption by 50 per cent.

Mr. Sinclair's statement that Ottawa spends more money than it collects in B.C. "is not true."

'No Apology' for Opposing
Sunday Sport, Says Bennett

POWELL RIVER (CP)—Premier Bennett said Friday night he would not apologize for his opposition to commercial Sunday sport.

"It was the decision of the legislature," he said. "It was a wide-open vote and no strings were attached to anybody."

"There is a difference between sport and commercial entertainment," he said. "Why, if we permit this commercial entertainment of professional baseball, then you are going to have people saying there is nothing wrong with paying to see pictures of such games and other entertainment."

"Then there will be opening up of stores."

HERB 'HAPPIEST GUY'—EARLY RETURN POSSIBLE

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP)—Southpaw Herb Score appears on the way to complete recovery and he may be back on the firing line for the Cleveland Indians again as early as June 9.

Score, struck in the right eye by Gil McDougald's line drive during a game with the Yankees on May 7, Friday received the brightest news since he was hospitalized when Dr. Charles Thomas, an eye specialist, and Donald B. Kelly, the Indians' club physician, told him he had suffered no retina detachment.

"Herb was the happiest guy I've seen in a long time," said Dr. Thomas.

The two doctors were able to get an unhampered look at Score's entire retina for the first time Friday and they reported:

"There is no tear (puncture) evident at this time."

MINOR BASEBALL

Larry Swells List Of Hitting Pitchers

Hitting pitchers are continuing to crop up in Victoria minor baseball circles with the latest coming out of the Saanich Babe Ruth League Friday night as Larry Fletcher paced island Decorators to a 9-1 win over Outdoor Supermarket.

Fletcher hurled a one-hitter and slammed out three big hits, one a bases-loaded triple, to set the tone of Decorators' victory.

It was a tight game for five innings with Ste. J. Wallace, of Supermarket, matching Fletcher pitch for pitch until the sixth when the winners cut loose with a seven-run rally to ice the decision.

Victoria and District Babe Ruth League teams had a tight game at Beacon Hill Park where Centennial Optimists barely managed a 5-4 win over Pirates on the strength of three runs in the second inning and a pair in the third while only managing to gain five hits off Brian Gray and Doug Bowker.

Pacific Sheet Furnaces bounced back from a 6-3 defeat in the fourth inning to blast home four runs in the sixth and slip through to a narrow, 7-6 win over Morrisons' Chevs in Colt League action Friday night.

Winning pitcher, Jim Marshall, went the route, giving up only six hits while three Morrison hurlers combined to hold the Furnaces to five base knocks.

Redleg Lead 1½ Games; Yanks Lose

By Associated Press

Remember 1954?

Leo Durocher was the manager of the New York Giants and the word around the National League was that all he had to do was wave his magic wand and presto, there was a genie who was ready to grant his every wish.

Maybe no one but Durocher could see the genie, but he got results. The Giants won the pennant and the world series in four straight from Cleveland.

Now it's 1957 and the suspicion is beginning to make the rounds that Cincinnati pilot Birdie Tebbets has borrowed the magic wand and the slightly worn genie who goes with it.

The amazing Redlegs now have won 15 of their last 16 games, including Friday night's 11-1 slaughter of the Giants. They lead the National League by a game and a half and Tebbets is the new genius of the loop.

He needed a lefthanded pitcher with Joe Nuxhall laid up, and along came Don Gross, a young fellow who throws baseball left-handed only because he broke his right wrist when he was a little shaver. Gross gave up just five hits in licking the Giants. It was his third start, third complete game and third victory.

Against the sad-sack Giants, Gross needed very little help. Frank Robinson blasted two homers and Gus Bell one. That was more than he needed.

In the only other National League game, Robin Roberts pitched the Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals despite the fact that he was clubbed for homers by Wally Moon and Ken Boyer.

The Brooklyn Dodgers and Pittsburgh at Milwaukee games were rained out.

In the American League, Chicago White Sox also pulled a game and a half ahead of the pack by edging Baltimore Orioles 3-2. Cleveland Indians moved into a second-place tie with the New York Yankees with a 3-1 triumph over the Washington Senators while the world champions were dropping a 4-1 decision to Detroit Tigers.

The Boston Red Sox squeezed past the Kansas City A's 4-3, in the other league game.

The White Sox had no easy time of it. They collected just six hits off Art Ceccarelli and had to overcome a one-run deficit to hang up their sixth straight.

Three home runs—off the bats of Charlie Maxwell, Bill Tuttle and Al Kaline—provided the Tigers with enough mileage to crush the Yankees. Bill Hoft chipped in with an eight-hitter.

Tudor House Gains Third-Place Tie

Jack Harding closed the gate on Re-refined Oil after the second round of Senior "B" Softball League action at Heywood Park Friday night to pitch Tudor House to their second win of the season and into a third-place tie with Fletcher's.

Oilers collected three runs in the first and one in the second before Harding settled down. Tudors picked up a pair in the second and singles in the third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh to wind up with a 7-4 victory.

Mary's Clip Arrows In Opener

Senior softball's annual Celebrations Tournament uncorked its first surprise Friday night at Central Park when Mary's Coffee Bar, on the bottom of the senior B ladder, came up with a 10-7 upset of Arrow Furniture of the Senior A League.

Mary's started off the first game of the tournament with a blinding hammering of starter Jim Briscoe that produced six runs before reliever Charlie Adams was rushed in to take over mound chores.

Adams managed to hold the coffee crew for one inning before he was hammered for four more runs and the winning edge.

It wasn't all one-sided as Arrows, behind 10-2, going into the fifth, found the range on Ron Rogers and drove home four markers in the fifth and a single in the sixth before he could regain his control and stop the flood.

Victoria High Athletes Shatter Eight Records

Victoria High School's track record book was swiftly and systematically ripped into shreds on Friday.

No fewer than eight records toppled as the annual week-long meet wound up with a bang with Friday's track events.

Most impressive dusting was accomplished by long-striding Ian Fraser, but it was Bob Beck with his dramatic senior quarter-mile victory that got the most applause.

Fraser lopped an amazing 35 seconds off his own record in the open two-mile run as he completed the eight laps in 10 minutes 13 seconds.

But for the majority of spectators, if noise was any indication, the senior 440-yard race was the highlight of the day's activities.

Visibly tiring toward the end, Beckwith managed to hold off Dave Work and Rick Kelsall to chalk up a time of 55.4 seconds for the distance.

Also in the nature of an upset was Tom Collett's record-setting win in the half-mile race.

Also the victims of a combination of good running and perfect conditions were former records in the junior boys' 440, the senior girls' 60, the junior boys' 880, the junior boys' mile, the junior girls' relay, and the junior boys' relay.

For the second straight year, husky Rick Kelsall won an aggregate championship. The junior over-all winner last year, Kelsall took three field events and 'third spot in the 440-yard race for a total of 17 points and the senior crown in this year's meet.

Closest race for individual honors was in the junior boys' division, where Dave Dawson was finally named champion with 13 1/2 points.

GIBSON REPEATS

Individual champions in Esquimalt High School's track and field meet continued a habit of repeating themselves.

Take a look at this year's crop, decided after the week-long meet on Friday when the track events were run off.

First off, there's senior boys' champion Sergi Gibson. If you think you've seen that name before, you're right. He was also the senior aggregate champ last year.

Then there's senior girls' winner Jennifer Savage. If you think you've seen that name before, you're right again. Last year she was the senior champion at Esquimalt, and the year before as a junior she topped the individual crown in both the Esquimalt and the inter-high meets.

Stepping down to the junior ranks, there's lanky Darryl McIntyre, winner of the under-16 boys category. Again, he's a duplicate champion, having gained an identical position in the 1956 meet.

However, the string breaks with the junior girls, Sandra Johnstone, this year's champ, was only second-best last year.

But wait till 1958; Sandra will still be a junior then.

B.C. INDIANS GIVE POPE WOOD CRUCIFIX

A "totem" crucifix carved by British Columbia Indians has been presented to Pope Pius XII on behalf of Roman Catholic Indians of Canada; it was learned here today.

The presentation was made Friday by the superior general of the Oblate Fathers in Vatican City on the occasion of the Pope's 40th episcopal anniversary.

The crucifix, which stands about two feet high, was carved by Jimmy John, a Nootka Indian from Cedar, B.C., five miles south of Nanaimo, and finished by Percy Paul of the Squamish Indians near Vancouver.

dom, too, is joining in the hydrogen bomb race.

"It is now time for the smaller nations of the world to take a hand," he said. "This question is not just a matter for the great powers to decide. The tests that the Soviet Union and the United States are conducting are contaminating our atmosphere as well as that over the rest of the world."

"... Canada could use her position in the Commonwealth and the United Nations to take an imaginative lead in this matter and bring this great issue before a special session of the UN... I urge the prime minister even in the midst of this election campaign not to delay."

The statements were included in a recorded speech broadcast over the CBC Trans-Canada radio network originating in Toronto.

Injured Man's Booming Voice Brings Rescuers

MILL BAY—Donald C. Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Johnston, Mill Bay, was recuperating in hospital this week from injuries suffered when his right leg was pinned between two logs while working in the woods.

His shouts attracted the attention of Mrs. Alec Bell who telephoned for help.

Rescuers were unable to carry him out because of the dense bush, so the victim, released from the logs, hobbled out himself though in extreme pain.

Said his mother: "I'll never again wish my son didn't have a big booming voice. His shouts would never have been heard otherwise."

Prince Charles Pens Love Note To Eight-Year-Old Blue-Eyed Girl

LONDON (UP)—It was learned on high authority today that eight-year-old Prince Charles wrote a note to a blue-eyed girl his own age last week — and signed it "with love."

Charles had never met the pretty little girl, who lives in the less-than-elite London neighborhood of Islington. But he was moved to pencil her a message on Buckingham Palace stationery while lying in bed recuperating from his tonsillectomy.

"To Maureen with love

It was Charles' tonsils which brought him together with his new pen pal, Maureen Vernon.

Her father, Jack Vernon, is a porter at Great Ormond Street Children's Hospital. He was sent around to Buckingham Palace to retrieve the operating room equipment installed there temporarily for Charles' first surgery.

The young prince, pining in his sick-bed, asked if he could talk to one of the men moving equipment. Vernon was brought in.

"Have you ever seen any tonsils taken out before?" asked Charles. "Thousands of times," said Vernon. "One of my children had them taken out last year."

"How many children have you?" asked Charles.

"Two. A boy of 14 and a girl just a month older than you. The boy is called Jimmy and the girl is Maureen."

Prince Charles paused a moment, and then he asked without a sign of bashfulness, "May I write a note to Maureen?"

"She would love it," her father replied. The note was written a. once and Charles gravely gave it to Vernon for delivery.

Maureen, whose mother is Irish-born, was tickled pink. She loves Davy Crockett, phonograph records, and ice cream, but a personal note from Buckingham Palace was really something.

"I don't know quite what to write in reply," said Maureen today. "But I'll think of something."
